Arabs Told War Is Over And Israel Has Won It

Should Recognize Fact, Enter Direct Peace Talks, U. N. Mission Warns

By John G. Rogers

Paris, Nov. 6 (NYHT).—The United Nations mediation mission for Palestine told four Arab governments today that the Palestine war is over, that the Jews have won and that the Arabs would be smart to recognize this, swallow their pride and enter into a direct peace conference with the State of Israel.

In the last two days the U.N. meditation mission has heard reports to the effect that the Jews absolutely control Palestine, either actually or potentially, and that if the Arabs keep stalling on a peace conference, the hard-hitting little Israeli army may unleash itself again and take even more Arab territory.

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, the acting U. N. mediator in Palestine who has been in Paris for some time, has been plugging the general lines of this idea both privately and at meetings of the U. N. Security Council.

Given Stark Facts

Yesterday, Brig Gen. William E. Riley, chief of staff of the Palestine truce observers, arrived from the Near East, and it is reliably understood he brought to Paris the same opinion, strengthened several times over by his knowledge of the recent Jewish military operations which not only cleaned the Arabs out of Galilee but even penetrated into Lebanon.

[It was understood that today General Riley gave the stark military facts to U. N. representatives of Egypt, Iraq, Lebanon and Syria. The facts were that the Jews have won a major engagement in the Negev and in Galilee, and there appears to be little that the Arabs can do about this.

It is reliably understood that General Riley believes that the latest Security Council resolution, calling for a restoration of October 14 lines in the Negev, is quite unworkable because it does not consider the weak position of the Arabs nor the strong position and the ambitions of the victorious Jews.

Resent U. S.-British Plans

Whether or not the U.N. diplomats have recognized it or will recognize it in the near future, there is no question that the Palestine situation has entered a new stage in recent weeks. The new stage is simply this: That the Jews are in near-complete control and can probably make the control complete at any time they choose.

The Jews owe much to the U.N., but history has marched fast in the making of Israel, and today the Jews are feeling cocky and self-assured and are resenting American and British plans in the U.N. General Assembly to strip

Stock Market Struggles Up After Beating

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—The stock market struggled to its feet today after absorbing during the week one of the worst beatings in years.

Final prices in most cases were up a few cents to more than $1 a share.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .3 of 1 point to 66. Of the 914 issues that changed hands, 425 advanced and 281 declined.

Selling has been based largely on the theory the incoming administration will adopt policies that will unfavorably affect present high business profits.

Montgomery Gaming Raids Net 13 Persons

Police Chief Leads Swoop on 2 Taverns, 2 Grills, Barber Shop

Montgomery County police arrested 12 persons, one of them a woman, in a series of gambling raids yesterday morning.

They arrested another man last night and said they were searching for a fourteenth person. Both are alleged to be involved in gambling activities at the places raided.

A special force of 20 detectives and uniformed men led by Police Chief Charles M. Orme split into groups of four and staged almost simultaneous raids on two taverns, two restaurants and a barber shop. They also arrested two drivers at hack stands.

Orme described the raids as the biggest in the county in several years. He said police confiscated six pinball machines and more than $1000 in cash.

Raided were Lee and Eddie's Restaurant, 8504 Georgia ave.; Colie's Barber Shop, 8127 Georgia ave., and the Grotto Grill, Georgia ave. and Bonifant st., all in Silver Spring; the Blue Moon Tavern, on Route 240, three miles north of Rockville, and the Blue and Gray Tavern, Montgomery Hills.

Arrested at Lee and Eddie's were Edward J. Maloy, 43, of 8502 Greenwood ave., Takoma Park, and Robert Lee Hunter, 37, of 8708 Colesville rd., Silver Spring, co-owners of the restaurant.

Maloy was charged with gaming and accepting racing bets and released on $500 bond. Hunter was charged with accepting racing bets and setting up a gaming table and released under $1500 bond. Both were ordered to appear at a hearing December 14 in Silver Spring police court.

Three men were arrested at Colie's barber shop. They were: Tuttle D. Colie, 46, of 8205 Fenton st., Silver Spring, owner of the shop, who was freed in $2500 bond after being charged with accepting racing bets and operating a disorderly house for purposes of gambling.

Wind, Rain, Other Distractions

Hottest Nov. 6 in 77 Years Sets High of 78 Degrees

The hottest November 6 in 77 years of Weather Bureau records warmed Washington yesterday as blustery winds and rain provided added distractions.

At 1:42 p. m., the mercury hit a summerlike 78 degrees, breaking the previous record of 74 degrees on November 6, 1888. The temperature at 3:20 a. m. was the highest minimum morning temperature ever recorded—67 degrees.

The weather man blamed the unseasonal heat on "a lot of tropical air" that passed over the city. Today, he said, will be partly cloudy and cooler, with a maximum temperature of about 64. Low will be about 52 early this morning, he predicted.

As for the winds, they rose to 36 miles an hour. The rain, which pitched in hard at nightfall, was gauged at about an inch by midnight—enough to be classed as the heaviest since October 5, when 1.84 fell.

The rain, among other things, flooded a shopping center in Bladensburg, forcing fire equipment from three nearby companies to respond for emergency pumping.

Police reported that George Ferguson, 57, of 1207 10th st. nw., was injured when a strong gust of wind blew a six-foot wooden fence over on him in the rear of 1207 11th st. nw., about noon.

Peace Feeler?

Molotov Lays Aggression to Republicans

Moscow, Nov. 6 (UP).—Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov suggested today that the Republican Party is to blame for the "aggressive policy" of the United States, which caused some observers to believe he was opening the door to cold-war peace talks with President Truman.

He told a revolution-anniversary crowd at the Bolshoi Theater that Mr. Truman was reelected because the majority in America opposes the Republicans' "open program of aggression."

For the most part, Molotov followed the line of recent Russian attacks on the United States before the United Nations and Soviet Premier Josef Stalin's recent charge that America is planning a new war.

However, his brief comment on the Presidential election hinted that Russia might be planning to relax attacks on the American Government, and focus on the defeated Republicans.

Foreign observers here considered the speech moderate. It made no new charges against the West, and hinted that "two-world" hostility could be eased.

Molotov told the cheering crowd gathered to celebrate the thirty-

Nantes, France, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Andre Bernier was raised on brandy. His stepfather, a farmer named Bricaud, put a bottle of it in Andre's satchel every morning when the boy left for school.

When Andre collapsed, dead drunk, in the classroom one day, the schoolmaster protested. The next morning Bricaud tinted the brandy to look like coffee. Andre kept on drinking.

This week, at the age of 5, Andre fell dead. Death was caused by acute alcohol poisoning. His liver was like that of an acute alcoholic of 65.

Marshall May Not Quit Post Until Summer

Reported Likely Now To Stay On to Handle North Atlantic Pact

Paris, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Official American sources said today that Secretary of State George C. Marshall may decide to delay his retirement until the end of next summer so he can complete negotiations for a North Atlantic defense treaty.

They thought President Truman would persuade Marshall to do so despite the Secretary's oft-expressed desire to quit at the end of this year.

However, American officials attending the United Nations meetings as well as those in Washington, already were speculating on an ultimate successor to Marshall.

Heading the guess-list here were Lewis Douglas, American Ambassador to London; W. Averell Harriman, roving ambassador for the Economic Cooperation Administration, and former Assistant Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

(In Washington Administration sources indicated that President Truman would welcome any decision by Secretary of State Marshall to continue in his present post after next January 20.

(Informants believe that if Marshall does retire from Government service, it will be solely his decision, and in no way that of Mr. Truman, who has a high regard for the soldier-diplomat. Marshall had voiced desire to return to private life, but so far as is known here, the President and Marshall have not discussed the

Citizens' Federation Reelects Connaughton in Hot Balloting

By James B. Graham

John H. Connaughton was reelected president of the Federation of Citizens Associations last night in hotly contested balloting preceded by charges that unjustified smear tactics were used against two candidates.

Connaughton, an attorney who lives at 718 Decatur st. nw., defeated Ralph W. Donnelly, insurance man, of 2328 15th st. ne., by a 73-to-55 vote.

Prior to the balloting Baxter Smith, retiring second vice president, told the meeting he had been accused "all over southeast" by Vernis Absher and others of "sitting on the Barney Circle project."

Smith received permission of the chair to describe his efforts in attempting to solve the traffic channelization problem at the busy southeast intersection. Absher is president of the Southeast Citizen's Association and of the Southeast Council.

Pay Boost Planned for Top Officials

Bill Is Proposed By Senate Group to Hike Salary of 218 By $500 to $8000

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

A tentative bill to boost the salaries of 218 top Federal executives by $500 to $8000 a year was unveiled yesterday by a three-man subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee. Only the President, of the top-drawer executives, is left out of the legislation.

The subcommittee which recommended the bill is made up of Senators O'Conor (D., Md.), the probable new committee chairman; Flanders (R., Vt.), and Baldwin (R., Conn.). It plans hearings on the bill by mid-December and a final report before the end of this year.

"This proposed bill should have top priority in the Congress next January," the three Senators said in a statement. They agreed that better top salaries would help Uncle Sam to attract and to keep able pepole in the service.

The subcommittee also promised to bring out bills that would overhaul the time-worn salary-fixing Classification Act and other personnel laws, including pay raises for District government employes. However, it has decided to treat each of these issues separately.

The proposed Classification Act revision which was favored by the subcommittee earlier this year would have had the effect of giving the 900,000 employes whose salaries are fixed by it an average increase of $90 a year. Moreover, the five different classification groups such as CAF and CPC would be abolished and be merged into a single system. Something similar to this plan is being studied.

Federal executives are the one group whose salaries haven't been lifted in years, perhaps the only one in the Nation. They have had no raise to offset higher living costs. Most of the salaries were fixed by Congress in 1925. A $10,000 salary at that time is now worth only $3500.

If approved, it will have the effect of making the executives more sympathetic with the salary needs of their subordinates, a healthy situation. As it is now, hundreds of employes and subofficials are paid more than the top executives.

This is a scandalous condition. The blame for it lies with Senator Byrd (D., Va.) who led the successful fight to kill the provision for higher executives salaries in the recent Langer-Rees pay raise act. That's strange "economy." However, Byrd won't have the influence with the new Congress that he had with the Republican Congress.

The three-Senator group said it was releasing its tentative bill at this time for the purpose of inspiring suggestions for its improvement from Federal officials and the public. This is what it proposes:

That secretaries of departments be raised from $15,000 to $20,000; that undersecretaries be boosted from $10,000 to $12,000 to $18,000, and assistant secretaries be increased from $10,000 to $15,000.

Military Services Not Included in Requests Acted On; Balance Is Goal

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday approved generally lower budgets for 16 departments and agencies, and his budget director announced:

"We have adopted a hard-boiled budget policy."

Budget Director James E Webb did not name the 16 departments and agencies whose estimates for expenditures in the coming fiscal year were approved.

He told reporters after a conference with the President, however, that they did not include the military services, and constituted only about one-tenth of the entire contemplated budget outlay.

Higher for Few Cases

He said the figures approved yesterday for the fiscal year which starts next July 1, are "somewhat lower" than the current year's budgets.

"There may be a few cases where they are higher, but generally speaking they will be lower," he said, adding that the budget will be made as "tight as possible in order to get as nearly as possible to a balance."

However, he would not estimate the total of the new budget, or whether there will be a deficit at the end of the present fiscal year.

This year's budget is $42,200,000,000. Last August Mr. Truman estimated there would be a $1,500,000,000 deficit next June 30, because of the Republican tax cut and other factors.

"The President's policies will be to hold down expenditures to the lowest possible level which will meet the needs of the country," Webb said. "When we do that, the question of whether we have a surplus or deficit depends on revenue."

Letter Made Public

Although yesterday's conference did not concern the military, the President recently announced that he has asked the armed services to trim their original estimates of about 23 billion dollars down to 15 billion dollars, of which 600 million dollars would be for stockpiling strategic materials.

Webb said the estimates approved yesterday conform to a directive Mr. Truman sent to all departments and agencies last July 22. His instructions then were to plan to continue operations at or below the current year's level — "unless exceptional circumstances clearly make this impossible."

The letter, made public for the first time, told the departmental officials that "for budgetary purposes it should be assumed that production and employment will continue high. Prices and wages should also be

Oil-Coated Lake Traps Thousands Of Migrant Ducks

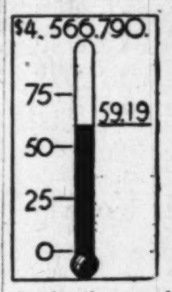
Montreal, Canada, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—More and more southbound ducks were being trapped like flies stuck on flypaper as they landed to rest today on oil-coated Lake St. Peter, 65 miles east of here.

Twenty thousand dead ducks already have been counted and hundreds more were landing every hour, as two United States Government chemists worked frantically to save them. Officials said an entire winter flight might die in the oil slick left by a tanker, if the birds continue landing on the lake. The chemists used a new-type chemical in an attempt to "dry clean" the surviving ducks

Chest Reports Biggest Lag in Business Unit

Only Third of Some 75 Divisions Up to Campaign Average

The Community Chest yesterday released figures showing that only about one-third of approximately 75 divisions in Business Unit I are up to the general Chest average in percentage of quota filled. The unit is one of the pivotal groups on which success of the 1949 Red Feather drive for $4,566,790 depends.



The thermometer for the overall Greater Washington Chest drive stood at 55.19 per cent last Friday, with the Business Unit I record at 53.14 per cent of its $1.785,271 goal.

Eleven divisions of the Business Unit had filled less than 10 per cent of their quotas last Wednesday, and one had filled less than 1 per cent, according to the statistics, released by Herbert J. Rich, chairman of the unit, and based on pledges turned in at a report luncheon November 3.

Rich said he was issuing the figures in an effort to put "new life into the drive," after a "serious inventory of progress" last Friday.

"We know people are ready to give," Rich declared. "Now we've simply got to give them a chance to give by approaching them."

'Shaky' 132-Year-Old Firetrap

White House Is Being Closed To Visitors for Safety's Sake

The White House is being closed immediately to all sightseeing and social events because of its precarious physical condition, it was announced yesterday.

The announcement, made by Mrs. Jane Helm, White House social secretary, made no reference to the First Family's plans, but it is likely that they will move to other quarters.

White House Architect Lorenzo Winslow said the entire second floor is to be closed pending repairs, and probably the whole mansion. The President's living quarters are on the second floor.

The decision to close the 132-year-old "firetrap" to the public was made at a conference with the newly elected President upon his return to Washington Friday, Winslow said. Mr. Truman leaves today for Key West for a two-week rest Mrs. Truman and their daughter Margaret are expected to join him there for the second week.

When the time comes for the Trumans to move they will probably transfer their belongings across the street to Blair House, 1651 Pennsylvania ave., which they occupied for a time when President Truman first took office, and which is the Govern-

Late Returns Put Truman Vote Over Total of 3 Rivals

Late returns show President Truman with more votes than his other three major opponents combined in Tuesday's presidential election.

Last night, on the basis of returns from 130,774 voting places out of a total 135,855, this was the standing:

Truman 23,667,727.
Dewey 21,542,581.
Thurmond 1,005,945.
Wallace 1,116,379.

The Dewey-Thurmond-Wallace vote adds up to 23,664,905, which is 2822 less than Mr. Truman's alone. This was the first time that the Thurmond States' Righter vote passed the one million mark.

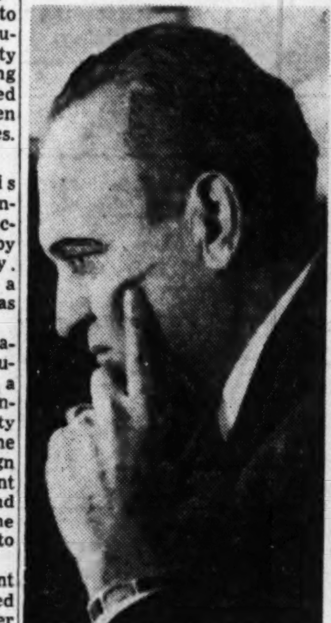
Illinois' Handsome Senator Scott Wike Lucas Has Barrymore Face, Lincoln Background

There's an unorganized fan club on Capitol Hill which insists that the handsomest profile in Congress rests on the broad, athletic shoulders of cornstalk-tall Scott W. Lucas, senior Senator from Illinois.



SENATOR SCOTT LUCAS
Distinguished profile

With the Democrats about to take over the saddle, it's been rumored—with substantial authority—that the friendly, fun-loving Minority Whip will be promoted to Senate Majority Leader when the Eighty-first Congress convenes.

A Way with People

But it's not because of his Barrymore-vying visage that Senator Lucas is expected to succeed to the post formerly held by Vice President-elect Barkley. Rather, it's because Lucas has a way with people, Congressmen as well as constituents.

In Congress—as a Representative and Senator for 13 years—Lucas has been more or less of a New Dealer, particularly pertaining to farm and social security legislation. He went down the line for the Administration's foreign policy. He did oppose President Roosevelt on several measures and made several speeches (in the House) denouncing the plan to enlarge the Supreme Court.

As Minority Whip in the recent Eightieth Congress, Lucas served as lieutenant to Majority Leader Barkley, steadfastly plugging away for Truman-indorsed legislation. Once, though, he did oppose Truman, by voting to override the veto on the GOP tax reduction bill.

Destined to Politics

Scott Wike Lucas was born on a farm near Chandlerville, Cass County, Ill., and was reared in nearby Abe Lincoln country—in the hard-work Lincoln tradition. He was destined for a political future from the day of his baptism. He was named after Representative Scott Wike, and as a boy he idolized Speaker Henry T. Rainey, his Congressman. The disciple was elected to Congress to fill the master's shoes when Rainey died in 1934.

Scott's parents were tenant farmers, barely able to make the soil produce enough to feed their six children. As a youngster, he managed to get in some catfishing and baseball, but most of his childhood and adolescence were devoted to work. He was always first to meet the "Showboat" coming up the river—so's he could press the clothes of the crew and actors with his mother's iron.

Brother Aided Him

An elder brother, Allen — who died some years back—encouraged Scott in overcoming the hardships and helped him get through school, first Normal State Teachers College, then Illinois Wesleyan University for his law degree. The rugged farm boy waited on tables, stoked furnaces, and won his letter in the major sports.

Before hanging up his lawyer's shingle in Havana, Ill., Scott played professional baseball in the Three-Eye League.

He's Still a Rabid Fan

Shortly after launching his legal practice, Scott found himself in World War I. He joined the Army as private, came out a lieutenant, later served for many years in the Reserve and National Guard.

Meanwhile, Scott was elected Mason County State attorney, and became active in the American Legion, was elected state commander in '26 and national judge advocate for the next five years.

Named Commissioner

In 1933, Lucas was named to the Illinois State Commission, and two years lated was elected to Congress. In 1938, Lucas bucked the Kelly-Nash machine to win the senatorial nomination. He won the election handily. He was reelected in 1944, this time with the support of Chicago's Mayor Kelly.

Senator Lucas is proudest of the fight he made in '43-4 for a simple voting ballot for GIs. The final version of his bill was so distorted by amendments that when the measure came out of conference Lucas voted against it.

In Washington, the Scott Lucases live in the Wardman Park. Their son, Junior, attends Stuyvesant School at Warrenton.

A Practical Joker

A practical joker, Lucas gets a bang out of calling up senatorial colleagues and acting up like an irate constituent. He whiles away dull debate on the Senate floor by writing verse.

At 56, the Illinosian retains a fresh, lithe appearance with frequent rounds of golf at Burning Tree and duck hunting back home in South Illinois whenever he can get away After a vigorous speaking campaign for the Democratic ticket, he spent election morning down in the duck blinds bagging the daily limit.

Truman Upset of Traditions Has Political Experts Baffled

By The Associated Press

President Truman upset many political traditions with his victory over Governor Dewey of New York.

He tossed into the ash can so many factors that appeared to favor his opponent, the "experts" are still looking for the whys and wherefors.

For example he won a fifth straight victory for the Democrats, the first time any party had achieved this since the Civil War. And he won despite the following factors:

1. From the Civil War until now, the party winning an off-year congressional election always went on to win the Presidency two years later. The GOP captured control of Congress in 1946.

Democratic Party Split

2. The Democratic Party was split, with Henry A. Wallace winning more than a million votes, most of them perhaps from the Democrats, and Gov. J. Strom Thurmond taking 38 electoral votes for the States Righters.

3. The "Solid South" was broken for the first time since 1928, when Herbert Hoover captured five States for 62 electoral votes.

4. Many city and State party leaders, who had fought tooth and nail against Mr. Truman's nomination, did little if anything to further his campaign.

5. The vote was small. All signs indicated the Democrats needed a large turnout—55 million or so—to beat Dewey. The vote probably will be less than 50 million.

War Chest Small

6. The Democratic war chest was small. None of the old regular contributors shelled out as before. Southern State organizations diverted their cash to the anti-Truman States Rights candidates. The party usually gets more than $500,000 from the South. It received less than $50,000 for the 1948 campaign.

7. Mr. Truman triumphed without the electoral votes of New York and Pennsylvania, something no candidate of either party had done since Woodrow Wilson won over Charles E. Hughes in 1916.

Some Democrats were inclined to credit his victory, despite these obstacles, to prosperity, the women's vote, the labor vote and a Midwest farm uprising.

Green Sees Vote As Mandate to Kill Labor Law

Wellesley, Mass., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—AFL President William Green said today that the election results were "a real and unmistakable mandate" from the people against the Taft-Hartley Act.

Green told some 1600 employers and investors at the thirty-fifth National Business Conference that the Labor Act "unquestionably" was the only major issue in which the voters could find "a clear line of demarcation" between Dewey and President Truman.

Green said the first duty of the Eighty-first Congress should be to repeal the law, which he said aroused "bitter resentment" among the Nation's working men and women. He said the Taft-Hartley Act has disrupted long-standing good relations between labor and management in many industries.

Representative Fred A. Hartley (R., N. J.) coauthor of the law, was scheduled to speak, but did not appear because of a sore throat.

Dixie Group in Spot To Thwart Truman

Open Field

Senate Leader Post Appears Set for Lucas

By the United Press

Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.), seemed last night to have a clear field to take over as majority leader of the Senate when Senator Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.) steps into the Vice Presidency.

In the three days since election returns showed that the Democrats had clinched control of the Senate, no other likely competitor has appeared.

Lucas himself has said nothing beyond the fact that he is available if his colleagues want him. He has been a member of the Senate for 10 years and Democratic whip and assistant leader for the past two years.

It was understood that Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.) had rejected suggestions from some of his Southern colleagues that he seek the floor leadership job.

Led Southern Fight

Although he is a fairly consistent Administration supporter, Russell supported the Taft-Hartley law last year and led the Southern fight against President Truman's civil rights' program. He was the choice of Southern delegates to the Democratic National Convention for the presidential nomination.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), who also was regarded as a possible candidate for the floor leader job, indicated that he was not interested. He told a reporter that chairmanships of the joint Congressional Economic Committee and the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs would keep him busy.

One Southern Democratic leader, who asked not to be identified by name, said he regarded Lucas as the logical candidate. He believed that Lucas' views qualified him to serve as President Truman's spokesman in the Senate and that the Illinoisian would work well with all factions of the party.

By the United Press

Southern Democrats, whose rebellion wasn't strong enough to defeat President Truman for the Presidency, still will hold sufficient congressional "balance of power" to whip him on important parts of his legislative program if they care to.

A combination of Dixie Democrats and Northern Republicans would be big enough to put the skids under any bill. The fate of some of the President's more controversial campaign promises, such as repeal of the Taft-Hartley law, hinges on the attitude of the Southern Democrats.

Depends on Price

The Dixie bloc, badly defeated at the polls in their "States' Rights" drive to oust the President, reportedly wants to return to the regular Democratic fold. Its members are believed willing to compromise — provided the price isn't too high.

But observers believe the Southerners will consider civil rights and outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley law without substitute labor controls as too high a price.

Mr. Truman asked the voters for a Democratic Congress. They gave it to him. But that is no guarantee he will have smooth sailing next year when he tries to make good on his campaign pledges.

May Oppose Price Controls

For example, farm belt Senator may oppose price controls, even on a standby basis, for fear they would lower farm prices. Senator Elmer Thomas, (D., Okla.), has said he would oppose any legislation which might hurt farm prices.

Mr. Truman already has taken steps toward repeal of the labor law. It was learned that he has instructed Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin to prepare a "Democratic" labor bill for the new Congress.

Exactly what Mr. Truman wants in the bill was not revealed. But Administration sources indicated it will retain some portions of the Taft-Hartley law. These probably will include the ban on secondary boycotts and jurisdictional disputes and "cooling off" periods if strikes threaten the Nation's welfare.

Republicans Didn't Vote, Dewey Says

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP). Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said today that between two million and three million Republicans failed to vote in the presidential election and this was a major factor in his defeat.

Looking rested and chipper, the twice-defeated White House aspirant appeared pleased that a vacation was at hand. At his press conference he talked sometimes solemnly, sometimes jokingly.

He and his family leave for a two-weeks stay in Arizona Sunday.

Dewey said he intended to continue actively shaping policy as titular head of the Republican Party and had "definite ideas" about what should be done.

"I've given a great deal of thought to the problems of the party over the next four years," he said.

His definite ideas, he added, will remain in abeyance until he has talked them over with other party leaders after his return from Arizona.

The 46-year-old Governor will leave La Guardia Field, New York City, by plane at 8 a. m. (EST) Sunday with Mrs. Dewey and their two sons. Also in the party will be Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Straus, Mr. and Mrs. Carl T. Hogan and their 12-year-old son, Jack. Both families are old friends of the Deweys. Their destination is Tucson.

Dewey reiterated emphatically his statement of Wednesday that he would not make another bid for the Presidency.

Without elaboration, he added: "That doesn't mean, however, that I don't intend to be useful to my country."

The Governor, who missed his second chance for the White House by about two million votes, said he was "particularly pleased" by the flood of telegrams he had received from high school and college students.

Most of these praised his campaign and urged him to "keep up the fight," Dewey said.

GOP May Get Stassen for Rebuilding Job

Harold E. Stassen may be assigned the job of rebuilding the GOP for the 1952 presidential campaign, it was learned yesterday.

Influential Republicans, smarting from the defeat the GOP suffered at the polls Tuesday, are urging the youthful former Minnesota governor to lead a movement to shape the party along more liberal lines. These party liberals may meet with Stassen in Philadelphia within the next 15 days for a "brass tacks" discussion of party reconstruction.

Refuses to Comment

Stassen, who lost the Republican presidential nomination to New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, refused to comment on these reports.

But it was known he has been swamped with letters, telegrams and telephone calls, many of them from GOP bigwigs willing to back him to the limit if he will undertake the reconstruction job.

Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania, told the United Press by telephone that he is "not ready to make any statement."

"I think the situation calls for some reflection," he said.

One prominent Republican Senator, who shares Stassen's liberal views, said he is working on concrete proposals for the future of the party. He added that he believes the 41-year-old Stassen is the man to lead the "reform."

Called Man for the Job

And a former Governor, high in party circles, agreed that Stassen is "the man to do the job." He said he intends to talk with Stassen about it.

One of Stassen's promises when he dropped out of the presidential nomination fight at Philadelphia was to work toward strengthening "the liberal viewpoint within the party."

He told the United Press he intends to continue working toward that end. But he wouldn't say how.

Tuck Proclaims Nov. 25 As Thanksgiving Day

Richmond, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Gov. William M. Tuck has proclaimed Thursday, November 25, as Thanksgiving Day in the State of Virginia.

The Governor said the day would be a legal holiday in the Commonwealth and called "upon the citizens in the Commonwealth of Virginia to render thanks unto Almighty God for all their blessings and to beseech Him for the strength and character to merit their continuance."

Newfoundland Flights Cut by Gas Shortage

Gander, Newfoundland, Nov. 5 (AP).—All eastbound flights out of this big northeastern Newfoundland airport have been canceled, it was reported tonight. Shortage of gas supplies brought on by the island's railway strike caused the cancellation.

ERP Backed in New Congress

By The Associated Press

Strong backing for the Marshall Plan, high support prices for farm products, and revision of the Taft-Hartley law are indicated in an Associated Press survey of members of the new Congress.

But sentiment runs against giving the President standby price control and rationing powers.

Almost half the men and women who will make up the Eighty-first Congress expressed their views on major questions.

Answers to all or some of the questions were given by 27 Senators and 235 Representatives who will serve in the new Congress. Not all would allow their names to be used, and many were undecided on some of the questions. Others qualified their answers, and many said they reserve the right to change their opinions

Boiled down, here are the results:

1. Do you favor farm support at present levels? One hundred thirty-five Democrats and 53 Republicans said they do, several of them advocating even higher supports than the present 90 per cent of parity. Six Democrats and 10 Republicans said they are opposed to price supports on basic farm commodities. Seventeen Democrats and 27 Republicans were undecided, although some of them said they favor letting support prices drop to 60 per cent of parity after 1949 as provided in an act passed by the Eightieth Congress.

2. Do you favor giving the President power to fix price controls and allocations? Ninety-three Democrats and four Republicans said they do. Twenty-seven Democrats and 76 Republicans said they do not. Thirty-seven Democrats and 14 Republicans weren't willing to comment.

3. Do you favor repeal of the Taft-Hartley law? Ninety-four Democrats and eight Republicans said they do. Twenty-two Democrats and 53 Republicans do not. Thirty-seven Democrats and 33 Republicans advocated revision of the law, but not outright repeal.

4. Do you favor continued foreign aid through ECA, and direct aid to Greece and Turkey? One hundred fifty Democrats and 69 Republicans said they do. Two Democrats, eight Republicans and one American-Laborite said they do not. Eighteen Democrats and 14 Republicans gave no opinion.

U.S. Unity Foreseen On Palestine Policy

By The Associated Press

Administration officials yesterday forecast an end to White House-State Department rowing over Palestine policy—now that the election is over.

As a result, they expect from here on a steadier course for American relations with the new Jewish state of Israel and with Arab lands—both in and out of the United Nations.

But even as the President puts his own postelection house in order, evidence appears that there may be more trouble ahead with the British on Holy Land issues. Britain, with vital Near East interests and with little or no internal Jewish political force, has always pursued a more pro-Arab line than the United States, particularly the White House, has been willing to follow.

It also seems that the apparent return of White House-State Department cooperation in this field of foreign policy—the only one that was very much involved in the presidential campaign—has not come soon enough to forestall much hard feeling between White House officials and Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett.

Some of the President's advisers have indicated that when Lovett submits his resignation along with all other top Administration officials, Mr. Truman will make no effort to persuade him to remain in office. Other informants say, however, that the whole affair has been exaggerated and that the President likes Lovett.

A new angle of the Palestine problem that is expected to get more and more attention is the relationship between what is going on in Palestine and the interests of the western nations in the cold war with Russia. Many months ago this took the form of worry that if the United States too strongly supported the Jewish homeland drive the Russians would gain friends in the Arab world. This did not happen, possibly owing in part to (1) the fact that the Arabs don't like communism and (2) Britain's pro-Arab policy.

Mr. Truman actually is understood to have made his first move to restore American Government unity in handling Palestine problems on a few days prior to the election. At that time he is supposed to have sent a directive to Secretary of State Marshall at Paris forbidding any new policy development on Palestine until it had been cleared with the White House.

At that time a resolution was pending, apparently with some American delegation support, to raise the threat of economic sanctions for violations of the United Nations truce in Palestine. In view of recent fighting in the Negev desert area, this would have been a blow most directly at Israel.

The first effect of the President's action was to bring a suspension of action on the resolution until after the American election was held. Once Mr. Truman was reelected the American United Nations delegation had the resolution amended in a manner that officials here considered more favorable to the Israeli Government.

Zionists Urge Truman To Stop 'Intrigue'

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP).—Two American Zionist leaders tonight urged President Truman to stop what they contended is a "State Department intrigue" against Israel.

Dr. Israel Goldstein, national chairman of the United Palestine Appeal, and Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, chairman of the American section of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, were the speakers. They addressed the annual National Conference of United Palestine Appeal.

U. S. representatives at the United Nations Assembly in Paris are "flouting the clear and intent purpose" of their instructions from President Truman, Dr. Silver charged. He said "under the guise of clever phrasing (they) are doing the very opposite of what the President has instructed them to do."

Dr. Goldstein called upon Mr. Truman to intervene in the situation.

'No Bomb Yet'

Reds Have 3 'Oak Ridges,' Russian Says

Hamilton, N. Y., Nov. 6 (UP).—Russia has established three "Oak Ridges" deep in the heart of near-inaccessible Asia in an effort to produce an atomic bomb, Dr. Albert Parry, a native Russian, said today.

Dr. Parry said the atomic plants are surrounded with atom-proof shelters capable of housing Premier Joseph Stalin's key ministries

"All three of the atom-cities are super-zealously guarded as hundreds of thousands of men and women, Russians and non-Russians, labor within their confines in the gigantic task of making a Soviet A-bomb," Parry said.

A native of Russia, Parry is now a citizen of the United States and a professor of Russian civilization and language at Colgate University.

Writing in the December issue of Science Digest, Parry said he learned the locations and progress of the "Soviet Atomgrads" from Russian officials who have elected not to return to their native land.

These "non-returners," Parry said, report that Atomgrad No. 1 is in the Juznetsk basin, in south central Siberia, and is regarded as the main Soviet bastion in the world's atomic tomorrow.

Atomgrad Two, he reported, is a few hundred miles east of Number 1.

"Located, Stalin thinks, out of range of our long-distance bombers,' Parry added.

This atomic plant is encircled by six belts of fortifications, according to the Russian professor.

The third plant, he said, is located in the Tuvinian region near Outer Mongolia, placed conveniently between, though somewhat south of, one and two.

Parry's sources tell him that while the Russians have the theory of the bomb, the secret industrial processes which go into its making are still secrets to the Soviets, he said.

first anniversary of the revolution that:

1. Stalin's Pravda interview, containing the "new war" charge, "should show the way for peace-loving peoples to crush the anti-Soviet intrigues which are going on."

2. Talk about defense blocs such as "Western Union," the proposed Atlantic union, and possible Mediterranean merger is "part and parcel of the war aggressors' plans."

3. The Berlin crisis remains unsolved because the United States and Britain think the way is clear "for their domination of the world."

4. Britain and the U. S. are restoring Nazis to power in western Germany, and otherwise suspending wartime agreements because they "seem to think that, now the danger of the late war is past, it is possible to ignore the Soviet Union."

5. The Western Allies have blocked Soviet efforts in the U. N. to order the destruction of all atomic bombs, despite the fact that the plan is favored by an "overwhelming majority" in most countries.

Commenting on the United States elections, Molotov said: "The failure of the Republican Party and Dewey, who came to the elections with an openly reactionary and most aggressive program, shows that the majority of the American people reject that program."

Tito-U. S. Military Pact Report Denied by State Department

Rome, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—The rightist, sometimes sensational weekly magazine, L'Europeo, said today Marshall Tito and the United States had reached a secret military agreement to join Yugoslavia's estimated 36 army divisions with the West in event of war with Russia.

The newspaper was said to have gotten its unconfirmed information from refugees who arrived from Istria 10 days ago. Informants said the refugees called on Premier Alcide de Gasperi and the Foreign Office.

(In Washington, a State Department spokesman described the report as "fantastic and irresponsible" and said there was "absolutely no pact of that kind or anythink like it.")

L'Europeo's unsigned article said the alleged agreement was reached late in September by United States and Yugoslav emissaries who met on Brioni Island, 6 miles west of Pola, at the head of the Adriatic Sea.

"It is not certain whether the American delegation came under State or War Department orders," the magazine said.

It said Tito agreed, in case of emergency, to permit United States Army control of all of Trieste and the western part of Istria to the "Wilson Line" while retaining Pisino under Yugoslav control, and to grant the American Army a corridor to Austria from Trieste. He also was to place at American disposition "a broad and sufficient bridgehead on the Adriatic coast." He was to renounce any claim on Carintia.

According to L'Europeo, the United States agreed to "guarantee to Yugoslavia the most absolute security of its eastern frontier," and to supply to Yugoslavia industrial and electrical products and machinery it got from Czechoslovakia before the Cominform dispute.

L'Europeo said it was planned originally to publish the alleged agreement but later, "undoubtedly at Belgrade's request," the decision was reversed.

"Tito now has less than one company of infantry" in the whole Yugoslav zone of Trieste free territory and more than 5000 troops have been withdrawn from Istria in recent weeks, the article alleged.

Four Arab Nations Told War Is Over and Jews Are Victors

them of some of the territory they have won by force of arms.

There are several sharp attitudes at this stage of the Palestine question, depending upon who holds the attitude:

First, the Jews in a sense they owe their existence to the U. N. but they had to take on the Arabs without U. N. help. They defeated the Arabs and now they want to keep what they won, or maybe even take some more land from the Arabs.

Second, Dr. Bunche and General Riley. They have observed the Palestine developments at first hand, have seen the elemental forces at work between Jews and Arabs and without having any special preference, recognize the march of the Jewish force when they see it. It is their natural tendency to adapt themselves to hard events and to propose a peace conference that would end the war.

Suffering from Loss of Face

Third, the Arabs. They did their best to stop the birth of the Jewish State and failed, despite overwhelming superiority in manpower. They are suffering badly from loss of face and general disappointment, and are grasping at straws within the U. N. in an effort to get help to recover what they can.

Fourth, the U. N. politicians. They have the least relationship, it seems, to the actual developments in Palestine. The strongest forces here are the United States and Great Britain, which apparently would like to curb the Jewish expansion and stabilize the situation and at the same time leave some Arab friendship for themselves. The Russians, probably hoping for a Near East foothold through the Jewish state, are consistently and strongly pro-Israel.

Next week there will be more Security Council meetings and more political committee meetings on Palestine, in which politicians will be advocating this or urging that, probably without reckoning enough on the hard and fast events that have occurred in Palestine. As result of these events, the Jews are in a position to talk business, even to the extent of defying the U. N. if they wish.

It was also disclosed today that the United States and Great Britain have given the U. N. information on an alleged arms flow of illegal weapons into Israel, with some of the arms coming from Russian-controlled eastern Europe.

No Specific Returns

Dr. Bunche said that any such information that was received had been passed on to Palestine truce observers for investigation. So far, he said, there were no specific returns from the inquiries.

In particular, some of the British and American information was said to bear on the existence of regularly scheduled airlift from Czechoslovakia to landing fields in Israel.

American and British sources said their information was given to the U. N. beginning in August at the request of the late Palestine mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, who asked for truce observance evidence from mnay countries.

The question of illegal Jewish arms supplies was raised here by publication in the United States by "The Christian Science Monitor" and "The Chicago Daily News foreign service," of articles describing in some detail the organization and operation of a Czechoslovakia-to-Israel supply route.

The inormation on which the articles was based was said to come, in part, from a mercenary adventurer, a flier who worked for the supply route for a time and then quit because he was not paid as promised.

The fact that Israel was getting arms from various sources, including some sources in Russian-dominated eastern Europe, was not a surprise to any one in U. N. circles. Jewish arms had to come from somewhere.

It was of interest, however, to speculate whether the Arab states would pick up the question of Russian aid to Israel and thus possibly interject into the Palestine problem the Russian-Western split that bedevils almost every other item on a U. N. agenda.

In Council Vote

DeGaulle Has New Test of Power Today

Paris, Nov. 6 (NYHT).—Charles de Gaulle's political strength will be given its first test Sunday since his 40 per cent victory in the multi-party municipal elections a year ago.

Whether the general remains in the wings of French politics or emerges center stage as the dominant personality, is to be decided in the elections for a new council of the republic, the advisory "senate" of the French legislative system.

Success Is Doubted

On election eve, it seemed the general would be kept in the wings. He wants absolute control of the upper house to use it as a springboard to power. But most forecasts said his Rally of the French People (RPF) would not win a majority.

Public opinion, however, still was concerned with the Gaullist "minority" strength, and the question was whether the Gaullists and Communists would constitute 51 per cent of the 320 council seats and be able to worry government in the Upper House.

Although they stand almost diametrically opposed, the Gaullists and the Communists both desire a collapse of the present middle-of-the-road government.

But most political observers were predicting that President Truman's victory in the United States elections would influence the Council of the Republic Electoral College to vote for government candidates, who want neither Gaulism nor Communism.

Further, Premier Henri Queuille's coalition cabinet appears to have gained political stature through troop intervention in the coal strike.

Greek Government To Resign Monday

Athens, Nov. 6 (AP).—Prime Minister Themistokles Sophoulis said tonight his coalition Greek government will resign Monday.

The cabinet crisis, he said, was provoked by Sophocles Venizelos, deputy leader of the Liberal Party. Sophoulis heads the party.

Venizelos had accused the cabinet of playing politics instead of concentrating on suppressing the Communist rebellion of guerilla leader Markos Vafiades. The Liberal Party spokesman says the present government "is not efficient . . . and ministers have been playing party politics."

Sophoulis said last weekend he would quit but postponed his action to await the return from Paris of Foreign Minister Constantin Tsaldaris. Now he has sent a message to Tsaldaris asking him to return to Athens, tomorrow if possible.

Tsaldaris is the leader of the Populist Party. The Liberal and Populist parties make up the current coalition government which has excluded opposition groups and ruled Greece since September 6, 1947.

Sources close to Sophoulis said they believed Sophoulis and Tsaldaris again would be entrusted with forming a new government. These sources also said they felt that opposition parties would be represented.

It was predicted that Venizelos would enter the new cabinet and thus avoid a permanent split in Liberal Party ranks.

Dulles Chided

Greeks Plan To Use Gas, Russia Says

Paris, Nov. 6 (AP).—Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky charged today that Greece, with the knowledge of the United States and Britain, is preparing to hurl poison gas at Greek guerillas.

This was part of a general blast at the United States in which the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister charged the Truman Administration is building a network of military bases directed against the Soviet Union and other countries. He did not amplify or support with evidence his charge concerning poison gas.

Vishinsky and another delegate, Dr. Juliusz Katz-Suchy of Poland, also delivered bitter personal attacks against John Foster Dulles, United States delegate and former foreign affairs advisor to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, and dragged in the United States presidential election.

No Vote on Greece

The speeches were made before the 58-member Political Committee of the General Assembly during debate on the Balkan problem. Dulles told the same committee yesterday that earlier Soviet charges that the United States sought world mastery were "vicious falsehoods."

The committee wrangled from 3:15 to 8:50 p. m. without reaching a conclusive vote on the Greek-Balkan case, and finally adjourned until Monday, when the delegates will tackle a mass of proposals.

Vishinsky said Greece was out to destroy the Greek partisans "by any means, including toxic gases with the knowledge of the United States and Britain."

The major portion of Vishinsky's attack was directed at Dulles and at U. S. foreign policy in general. Referring to a statement made by Dulles yesterday that the United States had stopped disarming because of the world's fear of Russia, Vishinsky said the Soviet Union is threatening no one, but the United States is the one who is threatening. He said the United States has 228 bases in the Atlantic area, alone.

"Where aren't there American bases?" he asked.

"If the United States doesn't dream of world domination," he asked, "why build all these bases all over the world?"

Two Chide Dulles

Both Vishinsky and Katz-Suchy chided Dulles on the Republican defeat in Tuesday's election, which dashed Dulles' hopes of being Secretary of State.

Vishinsky told Dulles, "I don't know whether you'll ever be Secretary of State, but I wish you luck."

Katz-Such told the committee Dulles was clipping share coupons in his New York office while Polish and French resistance fighters were in the field against the Nazis."

Dulles sat impassively through both assaults, but after Katz-Suchy spoke, he grabbed a microphone and made this short statement:

"It is not new for me to be subjected to personal attack, villification and innuendo. I have not replied before and I do not reply now because I believe that delegates here have an elemental duty to exercise self-control to prevent personal brawling which would injure the prestige and usefulness of the Assembly."

German Publishers Impressed by Election

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Seven German publishers and editors who had been visiting the United States for the last six weeks left for home today, impressed with what they had seen of the American presidential election.

The reactions were summed up by Felix Richter, publisher of the Pforzheimer Tageblatt.

"The election proved to me," Richter said, "that the people of America run their own country and are not influenced by editorial opinions of the press, but by the fact as they appear in the press."

Youth Arrested In Slaying

U. N. to Declare Millions Dead

Lake Success, Nov. 6 (NYHT.).—The United Nations has made public a projected world convention for declaring dead the millions of refugees, soldiers and other persons who disappeared between 1939 and 1945, under circumstances suggesting "death as a consequence of events of war, of racial, religious, political or national persecution."

Oscar Schachter, acting director of the Department of Legal Affairs, said it aimed to solve such problems as inheritances, adoption of children of long-lost parents, and remarriages.

Millions of dollars in property, including substantial European industries, are affected by the inability to obtain international recognition in cases of World War II's missing persons now, Schachter said. Many of the survivors have come to the United States, and the issue has presented a headache to Surrogates' Courts throughout the Nation.

The International Refugee Organization estimates 8 million to 12 million persons were missing as a result of war in Europe alone, excluding the Soviet Union, with several millions more.

Youth Pleads Innocent in Waldorf Slaying

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Ralph Edward Barrows, 19-year-old athlete, pleaded innocent today to charges that he slew a barroom acquaintance, a Canadian businessman, at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

The 6-foot football player, a resident of Grand Rapids, Mich., was composed as he was arraigned on a homicide charge.

Magistrate Arthur Markewich assigned him an attorney after the youth said he was without funds. He was held without bail for a hearing November 24.

Father Only Spectator

His father, Ralph Van Nostrand Barrows, was the only spectator during the arraignment. They had been living together here since the youth arrived from Michigan earlier this week.

Barrows was arrested last night in a midtown Manhattan tavern, about 10 hours after Colin Cameron MacKellar of Montreal, Quebec, 56-year-old textile company official, was found beaten to death in his nineteenth floor suite at the Waldorf.

A match book cover found near the body led to Barrow's arrest. It listed the name of a tavern, police said, where a waitress pointed out Barrows.

Assistant District Attorney Harold Birns quoted Barrows as saying that he met MacKellar at the Hotel Astor bar, and that later, the two went to the Canadian's Waldorf - Astoria apartment, where they got into a fight, and MacKellar was knocked to the floor.

MacKellar died of a fractured skull and ruptured intestines.

Barrows' attorney, Benjamin Schmier, told the court:

"While I am not permitted to disclose the more salient features of the case, when the true facts come to light, it will shed an entirely different picture."

Grand Rapids police said that Barrows served a term at the Chillicothe, Ohio, Federal reformatory, and was on three years probation at the time of MacKellar's slaying.

He pleaded guilty last May in Grand Rapids to an assault charge.

Barrows' mother, Mrs. Yvonne Burdick of Grand Rapids, said the youth "was never a normal boy" and said she took him to a psychiatrist once "in an effort to learn the cause of his often peculiar behavior."

Laboratory Set Up at Georgetown For 'Environment' Cancer Study

Two large classrooms at Georgetown University Medical School have been transformed into modern, air-conditioned laboratory units for a $60,000 research project to learn whether some of the new things science is making for comfort and pleasure may be causing cancer.

The work will begin when the units are completely equipped in two months, Dr. John R. Heller, jr., director of the National Cancer Institute, disclosed yesterday before the American Cancer Society in New York. Dr. Wilhelm Hueper, of the institute, will direct the project, "first laboratory study of its kind" of the role of environment in cancer.

Nearly all known causes of cancer, Dr. Heller pointed out, are external—things man comes in contact with in his work or normal living. Coal tars and some arsenic compounds, for example, are known causes of cancer. Arsenic in drinking water has caused cancer of the skin, he said, and other causes are soot, paraffin oil, creosote, nickel carbonyl, benzol and some dyes.

Poisons Also Added

"Industrial progress," Dr. Heller said, "has been marked by many new substances contributing to the comfort and pleasure of life. But these same substances have been adding a whole new spectrum of poisons to man's hazards. Some are carcinogenic agents that can cause cancer. The danger lies in the slow, almost unnoticeable harm that comes from contact with these agents."

Too much sunshine, for instance, can cause cancer for fair-skinned persons, he said.

Dr. Heuper, a research associate in pathology at Georgetown, said the project is in line with the feeling that it may be "cheaper to prevent cancer than to cure it."

Atomic energy, the cancer society was told in another address, has brought the world many gifts including (1) a large supply of radioactive isotopes — ray-emitting atoms produced as a by-products; (2) "absolutely unprecedented" acceleration of radiation research, and (3) substitutes for radium in treatment of cancer.

Dr. Shields Warren, director of the Atomic Energy Commission's biology and medicine division, added that the commission soon will be producing appreciable amounts of radioactive cobalt which may be used safely when radium is hazardous.

"The major promise that atomic energy has for the control of cancer," he said, "is the provision of an abundant quantity of an unprecedented research tool—radioactive isotopes—which permit effective study of a wide variety of processes which could not otherwise be understood. "The horizons opened by the radioactive isotopes are unlimited."

Warren said that the world up to 1941 had produced only "a little over two pounds of radium," whereas the "radiant energy released by an atomic bomb burst is equivalent to the radiation from hundreds of tons of radium."

Among the survivors of the atom bombing of Nagasaki, Warren disclosed, was a leukemia sufferer who had been taking X-ray treatment. Accidentally exposed to radiation from the bomb, this man Warren said, "received about the same benefit he would have received had he been given an equivalent dosage of conventional X-rays."

New Diagnois Disclosed

The development of a new chemical diagnosis for cancer of the breast which might some day lead to a cure for the disease was disclosed by Dr. Bertram V. A. Low-Beer of San Francisco.

Low-Beer told the American Cancer Society that radioactive phosphorous, known as P32, has proved effective in locating and diagnosing breast cancers near the surface of the skin in a high percentage of cases under study at the University of California's department of radiology.

Dr. Charles S. Cameron, New York, told the society that cancer is a disease of civilization. He said the cancer death rate increases in countries with high literacy rates, improved medical care and superior standards of living.

Cameron said he had found cancer more common in urban areas than in rural sections, and added that there may be aspects of urban life which favor the development of cancer, such as polluted air and smoke.

Tamm Action Due Early in Congress

President Truman must submit the nomination of Federal Judge Edward Allen Tamm to the new Congress within 40 days after it convenes, January 3, if the jurist, now holding a recess appointment, is to continue on the bench, observers pointed out yesterday. He is expected to do so.

In addition, Congress must approve the nomination before the end of the session.

Judge Tamm was nominated for the Federal judiciary earlier this year by the President, but the old Congress failed to act on the recommendation.

Then Mr. Truman gave him a recess appointment to the $15,000-a-year post. This appointment is good until 40 days after the Congress convenes.

Tamm's nomination drew the fire of the Bar Association of the District and a number of Congressmen on the ground that he had little legal experience and was not even a member of the District Bar, although he is a graduate of the Georgetown Law School.

Attorney General Tom Clark has contended that Tamm has shown legal ability in handling much work of that nature for the FBI when he was a principal aide to Director J. Edgar Hoover. Clark said it might be a good thing if the bench had a diversification of talent and that Tamm's talents were slightly different from those of the ordinary lawyer.

The Justice Department yesterday said it had not been asked by Mr. Truman to give a recommendation to anyone other than Tamm. This was seen to indicate that the President would submit Tamm's name to the new Congress.

German Airlift Crews Congratulate Truman

Berlin, Nov. 6 (AP).—A message of congratulation to President Truman on his reelection was dispatched today by German workers who unload the Allied airlift cargoes that sustain Soviet-blockaded western Berlin.

It assured the President that the overwhelming proportion of Berliners "will back you and the principles for which you stand." The message expressed the hope that "when Germany is once again on her feet, she may be permitted to collaborate with your country in a true spirit of democracy."

Crow Eater's Little Gem

CROW PICKER—The Washington Post yesterday received a large box full of the above—an especially designed toothpick, which came wrapped in tissue paper marked as follows: "For tough old crow meat in your teeth this handy gadget can't be beat." An accompanying note from Clark Stout of the Stone Straw Corporation, read in part, ". . . you won't be needing toothpicks for the 'Crow Banquet'. You may have some friends who will be eating a bit of crow in private, however, so we're sending you some toothpicks for their individual use"

Mrs. Roosevelt Hails 'Approval Of FDR' at Polls

Paris, Nov. 6. (U.P.).—Mrs Eleanor Roosevelt tonight hailed the results of the American elections as a strong indorsement of the New Deal program of her late husband.

She said President Truman, for whom she announced her support in October, stood for the "continuation" of New Deal policies

In a lecture to a French audience, Mrs. Roosevelt praised the President's firm campaign stands on housing, high prices and labor legislation. The poor showing of Progressive Party Candidate Henry Wallace demonstrated that the American people know the difference between "liberal democracy" and communism, Mrs. Roosevelt said.

After the meeting Dr. West, members of the Board of Education and school officers will be guests of the students at a tea.

James Denied New Trial in Brill Slaying

Baltimore, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Supreme Bench of Baltimore today refused to grant a new trial to Eugene H. James, 31, convicted of first-degree murder in the knife slaying of Martha Brill, 11.

He will be brought into Criminal Court next week and sentenced to death or life imprisonment.

Defense attorneys argued that James was so mentally deficient that the confession admitted at his trial could not be regarded as a voluntary act.

They contended the prosecution failed to show his killing of the Brill girl as she was bicycling with companions last July was a deliberate act, thought out in advance.

Under Marfyland law, premeditation must be proved before a defendant may be convicted of first-degree murder.

Declared "Responsible"

Prosecutors argued that psychiatrists had testified at his criminal court trial that James is a "responsible person," within the meaning of Maryland law relating to mental competency.

Prosecutors said the psychiatric reports tended to establish a motive that James killed the girl because of his "hatred for women."

Judge Herman M. Moser, who convicted the janitor and odd-jobs man last September after a three-day trial, followed the usual practice of not sitting with the other circuit judges as they reviewed the case.

Whether James is sentenced to be hanged or is given a life term is within Judge Moser's discretion.

After sentence, a further appeal is expected to be taken to the Maryland Court of Appeals in Annapolis.

James Not in Court

James was not in court during today's arguments.

Washington police questioned him after his arrest about the strangely parallel killing of Carol Bardwell, 11, in Rock Creek Park, Washington, less than two weeks before Marsha met her death.

The police announced they had obtained a confession from him that he killed Carol and a Washington grand jury returned a murder indictment against the man.

Montgomery Body To Act on Board

A resolution favoring proposed legislation for election of members to the Montgomery County Board of Education will be introduced at the Montgomery Civic Federation meeting, at 8 p. m. Monday in the Bethesda Elementary School.

Action will be taken by the delegates from more than 60 affiliated groups, following a recommendation by the school committee, headed by Russell I. Whyte. The committee met Friday night, when it agreed on the proposal.

School board members under the present system are appointed by the Governor.

Rumor Mills Say Ickes May Get Cabinet Bid

By The Associated Press

The name of Harold L. Ickes, the "Old Curmudgeon" of the New Deal, cropped up yesterday in widespread rumors of impending Cabinet appointments.

It is all strictly speculation, but some people in high places are whispering that they won't be surprised if President Truman invites back into his official family that master of invective who coined the phrase: "Thomas Elusive Dewey—the candidate in sneakers."

Inauguration Plans Ahead of Schedule

Unaffected by perils of political forecasting, arrangements for the inauguration of a President next January 20 are nearing completion on Capitol Hill.

The backdrop for Washington's first full-dress inauguration in eight years hasn't been affected by the unexpected election of Harry S. Truman.

David Lynn, Architect of the Capitol, said the preparations would have been the same, regardless of who was elected.

Now, well ahead of schedule, an ugly wooden platform is nearing completion in Capitol Plaza. It consists of a box-like structure in front of the Capitol's main steps, upon which will sit President Truman and his party, the Cabinet—probably with some new faces in it—members of Congress, and the Supreme Court.

Adjoining this is a large, flat wooden platform for members of the press and guests invited to the ceremonies. Jutting up from it are the girders around which will be built a stand for the newsreel, television and press camermen. A third stand will be built some distance away for the public.

President Truman, who campaigned on the issue of high prices, among other things, may be reminded of the inflationary situation when he sits atop this scaffolding. For it will cost in all nearly $80,000, which is almost four times the price of the inaugural stands built in 1929 for Herbert Hoover.

When the late President Roosevelt was sworn in for his third term in 1941, stands almost identical with those now being erected cost the taxpayers only $39,239.

U. S. Has Own Steel

The steel in the structure belongs to the Government, and has been in use since Benjamin Harrison's time. But the lumber, enough to make eight small houses, is the property of a local contracting firm, which will erect the stands, tear them down and sell the wood again.

The section nearest the Capitol, which includes a covered stand for the President and Vice-President, will cost about $27,000, according to Lynn, and will seat 828 persons. This means Uncle Sam will spend about $32 to seat each Cabinet officer, member of Congress and Supreme Court justice for something less than an hour.

Lynn reports that the construction job will be wound up about Dec. 15. He says the project was started very early because of fears that labor and materials would be difficult to obtain. These fears didn't materialize, hence the early completion date.

This will be the first big inaugural ceremony since 1941, and Washingtonians are expected to make the most of it. Several hundred thousand are expected to jam the outer Capitol grounds to hear Mr. Truman's inaugural address over loudspeakers and perhaps catch a glimpse of some of the notables.

Kennecott Mine Labor Conference Abandoned

Conferences at the Labor Department designed to settle a labor dispute at the Kennecott Copper mine near Salt Lake city were abandoned yesterday.

Conciliator Clyde Mills said union representatives accepted, but the company rejected, a proposal by Cyrus Ching, director of the Conciliation Service, and the Utah industrial commissioner to submit the issues to a fact-finding board.

THE MAN WITH THE RAKE—Tom Tausig (right), insurance executive, pays off an election bet to his next-door neighbor, Arne C. And since he did, Tausig had to rake all the leaves from Wiprud's one-acre yard

White House to Be Closed

ment's official guest house for visiting foreign dignitaries.

Mrs. Helm said she did not know if there would even be an inaugural ball.

During a formal reception last January in the Blue Room the President himself heard a tinkling sound and looked up to see the blazing crystal chandelier swaying and vibrating because of a weakness in the floor above.

In the East Room it was recently found that a portion of the heavy, ornamental ceiling had sagged about 6 inches and appeared to be on the verge of failing. As a temporary precaution a screened scaffolding was erected under the sagging plaster.

The announcement yesterday said the White House had been examined by engineers and architects in the past several months under authority of the last session of Congress.

"It is the considered opinion of these architects and engineers that extensive repairs must be made to assure the safety of the building," it was said.

"It is proposed that, with the consent of the Congress, these repairs shall be started at the earliest possible date."

The White House architect said yesterday he had no precise information as to the cost of the repairs, since plans and specifications have not been completed. A previous estimate has been that it would cost from $750,000 to $1,250,000 to renovate and fireproof the second floor, which was creaking and sagging and making the whole structure shaky.

Recently steel rods or hangers have been installed to keep the floor in place.

Hazards have been found in other parts of the building also. Among danger points are the brick tiers supportin the main staircase, erected in 1880. Assistant White House Press Secretary Eben Ayres said it had been found that the bricks had been stacked up without cement.

Holland May Get D. C. Post

sition, Senator Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.), a strong supporter of District home rule, would be slated for the District group leadership.

Senator Holland, contacted at his home, in Bartow, Fla., said he had not been offered the post and I "don't want to presume anything about it."

He was, however, "interested in it" and "would be inclined to accept it, if offered." So far as he was concerned, the decision will be with the Democratic steering committee, which has not yet been selected.

On District problems, the Senator's position is "strong" for home rule, but opposed to voting representation in Congress. He said he favored the Auchincloss plan of governmental reorganization, here, although "not in every detail."

"It is completely unsound for so many thousands of residents of the District to be without any say about such important matters as schools, firemen, policemen, sanitation and health. It just doesn't make any sense to me," he affirmed.

Sales Tax Stand

The question of levying a sales tax is related to action in nearby Maryland and Virginia, he declared. "The whole area should stand or fall together," he explained.

At present, Maryland has a sales tax and Virginians are debating action on one.

A pay boost for the District's 18,000 workers to bring them up to the Federal pay levels is supported by Senator Holland. "Of course, they should be included," he declared. "They live right here with the others and do the same kind of work."

He added a prevaution, however, which spelled the failure of the pay raise proposal in the last session. He said the "problem of raising funds hangs together with the pay raise."

Senator Holland came to the Senate in September, 1946 to fill out the term of the late Senator Charles O. Andrews. In November of that year, the former Florida governor, judge and athlete, was elected to a full term in the Senate.

Another Change Likely

Another change in the Senate District Committee was indicated yesterday when an aide of Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.), said the Senator would resign from the group. The Senator, rsting at the Bethesda Naval Hospital, said he had not yet decided.

Cain said that as a member of the minority party in the Senate he would have to relinquish three of his five present committee assignments. He said he was "reserving any final judgment until I have discussed the matter with the leadership to determine where I am most qualified to serve."

He emphasized that he had "enjoyed" his time on the District Committee and now considers "Washington one of my homes."

assumed to continue at about the July-August 1948 levels."

The President directed his administrators to cover all foreseeable needs, and make no assumptions that deficiency appropriations will be forthcoming to cover deficits.

"Expansion of existing activities or initiation of new ones should not be contemplated, unless required by law or to meet urgent needs," he admonished them.

He also said that Government power-producing and transmitting projects in shortage areas should be planned "at an economical rate which will meet the demand at the earliest possible date." New authorized projects, he said, should be started "only where the public need for them is so urgent that it is not in the national interest to postpone them."

Webb said that the policies followed yesterday will be adherred to in reaching estimates for the other divisions of Government.

In addition to conferring with his budget officer, Mr. Truman called in members of his Cabinet, one by one, for talks yesterday. He leaves for Key West, Fla., today to spend a two-week vacation.

Red Zone Economy Sagging, Clay Says

Price Protest Strike Voted In Bizonia

Frankfurt, Nov. 6 (AP).—A one-day general strike throughout the American and British zones was voted by German trade unions today in protest against rising prices.

This is the biggest demonstration called for in Germany since the end of the war. The date of the strike will be set after consultation with local unions, a spokesman said, but it was expected to be next week.

The trade union leaders, who took the strike decision at a conference here, claim to represent 4,500,000 workers in the two zones. Their action follows a series of disturbances in various parts of western Germany since the western Allies reformed the currency last June.

The United States miliary Government only today lifted a curfew imposed in Stuttgart last Saturday after Germans had clashed with American troops.

The trade union leaders demanded that the Bizonal Economic Council, western Germany's economic parliament, proclaim "an economic state of emergency."

They also requested drastic measures against hoarders, immediate reintroduction of rationing and price ceilings on all foodstuffs, and socialization of basic industries.

The President's Calling List

President Truman had the following White House appointments yesterday:

10:00 A. M.—John L. Sullivan, Secretary of the Navy.

10:15—James V. Forrestal, Secretary of Defense.

10:30—Charles Sawyer, Secretary of Commerce.

11:00—Richard Patterson, Ambassador to Guatemala.

1:30—John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury.

1:00 P. M.—Lunch.

3:30—James E. Webb, Director of the Budget.

Berlin, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American military governor, said today that the economy of the Soviet zone of Germany is at a complete "standstill," partly because of the western "counter-blockade" of Berlin.

In a review of almost every phase of the German problem, Clay told a press conference that the Soviet zone economy hit bottom during the summer and "has shown no improvement for months."

In contrast, he said, production in western Germany has been increased by 40 per cent in the past five months.

Steel and Coal Scarce

The Soviet zone is "suffering" from lack of steel, coal and spare parts, Clay reported.

"I do not know how much of the deterioration of the Soviet zone economy is due to the counter-blockade," he said. "But I do know their economy is at a standstill."

Shortly after the Russians clamped their land, sea and rail blockade on four-power Berlin, the Western powers imposed restrictions on the flow of goods from their zones into the Soviet occupation area.

Clay said the western air lift would have "no difficulty" in supplying Berlin through the winter. Tonnage totals in November, "in the worst possible flying weather convinced me, if I ever needed proof, that we will have no trouble meeting the minimum requirements we have set," he added.

Stability Near, He Says

According to Clay, the Russians laid siege to Berlin to "create fear throughout Europe and thus block economic and political stability." They have failed, however, he added, saying: "It has had just the opposite effect."

At the present rate of recovery, Clay said, western Europe will reach stability "in a comparatively short time."

Asked why the Western Allies were determined to stay in Berlin, an island outpost surrounded by the Soviet zone, the General replied:

"We have defined an area of freedom in the world and reduction of that area, no matter how small, will make people in other areas think there might be further reductions.

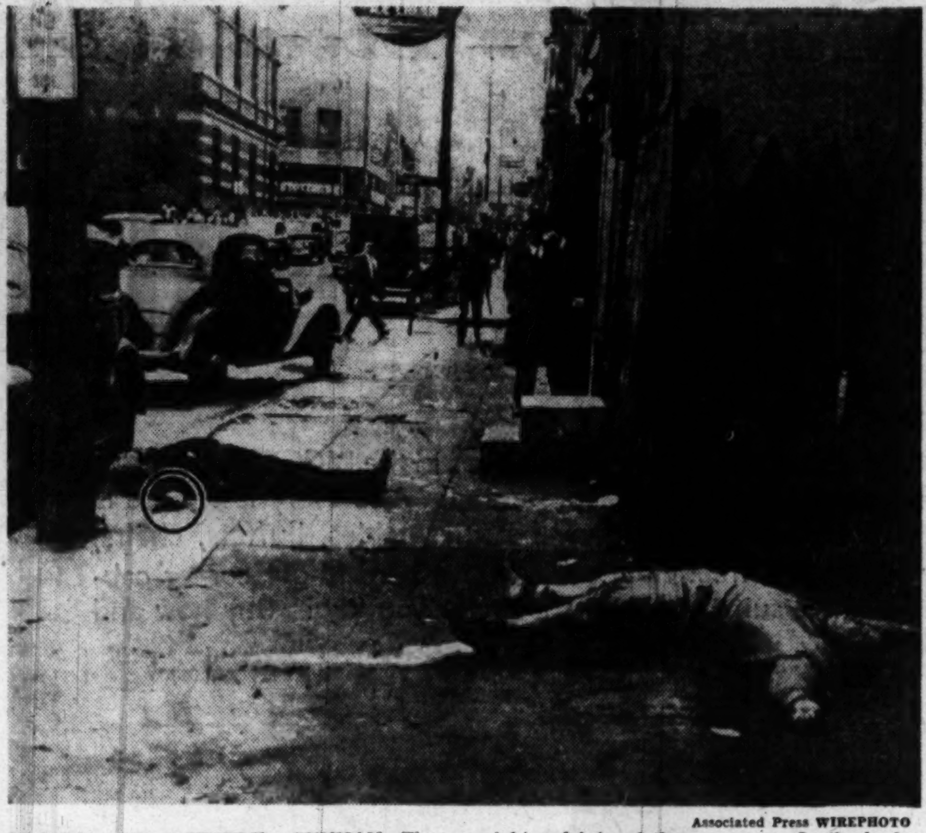
"That is what I meant by the statement that the blockade is designed to create fear in Europe."

Clay noted that the Russians had stepped up their "peace" propaganda here since the reelection of President Truman. He said he did not believe western Germans would fall for it because "fear over their future is too real and too great."

Russia has given up hope of winning Germans' friendship and is governing its occupation territory on a "take it or leave it" basis, he said. What Germans in the Soviet zone will have to take, he added, is a police state

Clay believes Soviet popularity has suffered immensely because of the Berlin blockade, and he voiced his own fear that the Russians would be afraid to settle the crisis by negotiating because they might lose face by lifting the blockade.

Gunman Slays 8 Persons, Self



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

VICTIMS OF BERSERK GUNMAN—The bodies of Detective Ellery Purnsley (left), still holding his gun (circle), and a passerby, Edward Boyer, lie on a sidewalk in Chester, Pa. A berserk gunman, firing a rifle from a second-story window of the building at right, killed eight and injured three persons. In the background is Chief of Police Andrew J. Desmond, jr., with a detective walking at his left and another detective at the building at right. Note the ironical "no parking" sign

Chester, Pa., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—A killer armed with a rifle firing dum-dum bullets, killed eight persons and wounded three today.

The crazed man terrorized a "tenderloin" neighborhood for more than an hour before he turned the rifle on himself as police stormed through a tear-gas fog to reach his barricaded room on the second floor of a tenement.

The gunman, Melvin Collins, 38, of Exmore, Va., was found dead on the floor with a bullet through his neck.

One of the dead was a motorist Collins killed while commandeering his automobile. All but Mrs. Louise Moore, 40, died almost instantly. She died in Chester Hospital from a bullet wound in the head, nine hours after the shooting.

A deaf-mute cut down by the demented killer's rifle, was shocked into speaking. As he staggered up to a police car, Samuel Lytel gasped, "I've been shot." Then he fell dead.

The dead also included a city detective, Ellery Purnsley, 56, who was shot through the chest when he ordered Collins to put down his rifle. Purnsley was on his way to work in a police station two blocks away.

Witnesses said Collins killed Purnsley before the detective had time to fire more than one shot.

Bus-Trolley Crash Kills 6 in Toronto

Toronto, Canada, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Six persons were killed and 50 were injured today when a bus carrying Canadian war veterans and their wives from a reunion party crashed into a streetcar jammed with night shift factory workers on the outskirts of Toronto.

Frank Rowe, 23, bus driver, Hamilton, Ont., swerved into the path of the streetcar to avoid running over a pedestrian, but the pedestrian was killed. Rowe was critically injured.

Three of the dead were from Hamilton, destination of the bus.

Workers in Panic

Alex Faseuk, streetcar passenger, said the workers were thrown into a panic. Many were lying on the floor, he said, and "seemed to have broken legs and arms."

The bus had gone only about half a mile from the Top Hat Club with the veterans of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders and their wives when it rammed the trolley, which was loaded with Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. workers.

Heroic Motorman

Motorman Tom Clark refused first aid when help arrived.

"Never mind about me," he said. "There are others a lot worse off than I am."

The injured were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in Toronto, where attendants were so busy giving emergency freatment that they did not have time to get names of the victims.

Lieut. Col. A. E. Bliss, commander of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, said a regimental dinner scheduled for today would be cancelled.

7573 War Dead Coming

Antwerp, Belgium, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—The thirteenth and largest shipload of U. S. World War II dead—the bodies of 7573 soldiers who fell in western Europe—started the voyage home today on the merchant ship Carroll Victory.

Marshall May Stay in Post

Secretary's Cabinet future.—Editor's note.)

Meantime, preparations for negotiations of the North Atlantic treaty were being stepped up.

Representatives of the five Western Union powers—Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg—will meet next Thursday in London to discuss the position they will take in later talks with the United States and Canada.

Their desire for a clause binding all members to pitch in if any member country is attacked must be reconciled with the clause in the United States Constitution which forbids the United States from committing itself in advance to participation in a war.

The result may be an American pledge to rearm Britain and the western European countries, but a notation that the United States cannot join in any fighting unless Congress approves.

American diplomats do not expect full-dress negotiations to begin until President Truman decides who shall be Secretary of State for the next six to eight months.

Italy, France End Visas

Rome, Nov. 6 (NYHT).—Italy and France abolished visa barriers for each other's nationals today in a small step toward the intra-European collaboration called for by the Marshall Plan.

Marshall Said To Favor Full Aid to China

Shanghai, Nov. 6 (UP).—An official source said today that Secretary of State George C. Marshall, reversing his former stand, has decided to support all-out and quick American aid to China to save it from advancing Communist armies.

Marshall was said to have made known his change of mind to Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Shih-chieh during recent conversations in Paris, where both are attending United Nations meetings.

Well-informed sources said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek may make an important policy announcement Monday. Encouraged by Marshall's reported support, Chiang was expected in informed circles to align China squarely with the western bloc.

Chiang, meantime, was presiding over secret military talks in Nanking with his north, northwest and central China commanders, seeking desperately to map a defense against Communist armies threatening his Nationalist capital from north and south.

The important government control Yuan (council) added to his troubles by demanding that he give up much of his dictatorial power.

[The Associated Press carried a report that Fu had rejected Chiang's offer and returned to his Peiping headquarters.]

Reports that Marshall has decided in favor of all-out American aid for nationalist China strengthened a growing movement in legislative circles for official condemnation of alleged Soviet violations of the 1945 Chinese-Soviet treaty of friendship and alliance.

Government Victory Claimed in Suchow Area

Nanking, Nov. 6 (AP).—The government claimed a modest victory in central China tonight, but rumors spread through Nanking that an effort to negotiate a peace with the Communists was in the wind.

A military communique said three Communist columns (nominally about 45,000 men) had been defeated in southern Shantung 60 miles northeast of Suchow, the government's main central China base.

No details were given, and the communique did not refer to the situation southeast of Suchow.

Unofficial reports said three Communist columns had bypassed Suchow on the southeast and were approaching Pengpu, only 108 miles by rail northwest of this capital.

The communique also acknowledged abandonment of Yingkow, the south Manchurian escape port which the Communists claimed to have seized three days previously.

Observance Today To Recall Armistice

Several religious and patriotic Armistice Day observances will be held today in the Washington area, while the traditional ceremonies at Arlington Cemetery will be conducted on Thursday by the American Legion.

The Thursday services in memory of the dead of two world wars will open at 11 a. m. with the sounding of taps at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the traditional minute of silence and the laying of the President's wreath Principal speaker will be Perry Brown, Legion national commander.

Some 1000 members of the Military Order of Cooties, the social branch of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in town for their fourteenth annual observance of Armistice Day, honored their national supreme commander, A. Thomas Wheaton of Dearborn, Mich., at a dinner last night in the Hamilton Hotel.

At 11 a. m. today, members of the group, who represent departments in 25 States, will lay more than 60 wreaths at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

A solemn high mass will be sung at 11 a. m. in the Ritchie Coliseum, University of Maryland, at College Park to commemorate those who died for their country.

The ceremony is the seventh annual service sponsored by the Prince Georges Council, Knights of Columbus.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, D. D., Archbishop of Washington, will preside.

Vincent P. duCellier is chairman of the K. of C. memorial mass committee and arrangements for a "brunch" after the mass are being made by A. F. Westerheid.

The annual memorial mass of the Catholic War Veterans here will be celebrated today in the Senator Theater, Minnesota ave. and Benning rd. ne., at 11 a. m. The celebrant of this low mass will be the Rev. James H. Brooks, D. C. department chaplain.

Col. Robert E. L. Eaton of Washington, acting director of legislation and liaison, Headquarters, U. S. Air Force, will be the speaker at an Armistice Day observance today sponsored by the Potomac Post No. 202, American Legion, at Williamsport, Md.

The annual Armistice Day ball of the VFW will be held Thursday from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Shoreham Hotel. President and Mrs. Truman are sponsors.

Armistice Day is a legal holiday in the District, and Government and District offices, as well as public schools here, will be closed. Banks and many business houses will also suspend on Thursday.

84 Civilians To Be Shown U. S. Defenses

Eighty-four prominent Americans from all walks of life will gather at the Pentagon Monday for a 10-day indoctrination into defense problems.

Defense Secretary James Forrestal yesterday described the meeting as "the first of a series of joint orientation conferences under the auspices of the National Military Establishment."

Monday through Friday they will hear off-the-record talks by Forrestal, the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and the Air Force and top generals and admirals. Following this, they will be flown to Pensacola, Fla., naval base, Fort Benning, Ga., and Elgin Air Force base, Fla., for field demonstrations.

Radio Forum Lists Election Post-Mortem

A post-mortem on the election will be held at 10 p. m. on Tuesday over WOL, when Representative Hugh D. Scott, jr. (R., Pa.), of the Republican National Committee, will discuss "What the Elections Mean" with Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.). They also are expected to give some indication of the probable course of their respective parties during the next two years.

The program, Theodore Granik's American Forum of the Air, will originate from the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. The public is invited and may participate in a question period.

'Alice' Goes Home

Old Carroll Manuscript Is U. S. Gift

"Alice" left for home last night.

More precisely, the original manuscript of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland" left Washington for London in the company of Dr. Luther Evans, Librarian of Congress.

Dr. Evans, en route to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization conference in Beirut, is stopping off in London to deliver the manuscript to the British Museum as a gift from the American people.

It will be accepted by Sir John Forsdyke, director of the British Museum, in a simple ceremony.

Originally, Lewis Carroll after telling the story to Alice Liddell and her sisters on a summer's day along the Thames River, wrote it out for Alice, calling it "Alice's Adventures Underground."

For 65 years Alice, later Mrs. Hargreaves, cherished it; then, impoverished, she sold it at auction in London, where an American book dealer purchased it for £15,400. Among the disappointed bidders at that time was the British Museum.

The manuscript passed into the hands of a private collector in the United States, and when his library was sold at auction in New York in 1946 it was purchased for Dr. Evans for approximately $50,000.

Arlington Woman Wins Auto in Jingle Contest

Miss Freeman

Less than a month ago Miss Beatrice Freeman, 29-year-old Army Security Agency employe, wrote down six well-chosen words on a certain piece of paper, mailed it to the proper place, and that was that.

A few days ago, Miss Freeman, who lives at 800 S. Arlington Mill dr., Arlington, had the matter recalled to her rather forcibly when she learned that her six words had won the Nation-wide Super Suds jingle contest. "I got the shock of my life," she declared.

And yesterday Miss Freeman got the payoff—a brand-new Ford, presented to her by Virginia State Senator Charles Fenwick of Falls Church. It was the first prize she had ever won. "I'm just thrilled to death," she said.

Hospital Cited In Refusal of Rezoning Plea

A 500-bed hospital in Bethesda to be operated by the National Institute of Health was cited yesterday by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission in recommending a rezoning petition be denied.

The action was one of eight rezoning petitions recommended for denial and five for approval by the MNCPPC. Others recommended for denial were:

Three lots from Residential A to Commercial D owned by D. S. Weaver, Earl H. and Rose E. Burdine and Elizabeth S. Dowel in the unit block of Sycamore ave.

One lot from Residential C to Commercial D owned by Sinclair Refining Co. at 731 Gist ave., Takoma Park. A 24,543 square foot parcel of land owned by Esterlene Bell at Blair rd. and Eastern ave., Silver Spring. Property from Residential A to Commercial D owned by William T. and Mary C. Bowman and Helen C. Majia, just north of Norbeck, Md.

Petitions recommended for approval were:

A 22,493-square-foot parcel from Residential A to Commercial D owned by Sinclair Refining Co. at 8719 Old Bladensburg rd. A lot from Residential C to Commercial D owned by Frances Peck at the corner of Pershing dr. and old Fenton st.

A tract of land from Residential A to Commercial D on the east side of Georgia ave. at Viers Mill rd. owned by Fred W. and Harriet R. Jones. A lot from Residential A to Commercial D at Viers Mill and Old Bladensburg rds. owned by Earl A. and Dallas K. Blundon. Acreage from Residential A to Commercial D on the Burtonsville-Laurel rd.

Montgomery Parties to Act On Slate for Charter Council

Both major parties in Montgomery County are to decide this week whether they will back candidates for the seven-member charter council scheduled to take office January 10.

Leading off will be the Republican State Central Committee for the county, which is scheduled to meet today at 2 p. m. in Silver Spring to consider steps.

Those at the meeting will discuss what action, if any, will be taken to indorse either individual candidates or a slate before the scheduled charter council election.

Chairman J. Bond Smith of the Democratic State Central Committee, has announced his committee will meet sometime this week to take similar action.

In addition to the seven-member county council, which will replace the present five-man board of county commisisoners, the charter voted in at the polls last Tuesday also provides for a county manager.

The county manager is given broad powers, including the authority to hire and fire department heads, but he may be dismissed by the elected county council after a public hearing.

Scheduled for Monday is a meeting of the county's seven-member State legislative delegation, six of whose members indorsed the charter before the Tuesday election.

The lawmakers are "pledged to aid the charter or help to clarify it and make it workable," Chairman Anders R. Lofstrand, jr., of the delegation said yesterday.

At least one member of the delegation, who indorsed the charter, is considering resigning to run for office on the charter council. A decision will be made on this at the Monday meeting, informants said.

As to who else would run for the first charter council, speculation centered on: Frederic P. Lee, an attorney; Stephen James, an official of the Automotive Safety Foundation, and Mrs. Alice Hostetler, county civic leader. All three were members of the 1942 elected charter board and are Democrats whose names were first proposed by Smith.

Others discussed were. Alfred D. Noyes, county Juvenile Court judge; Mrs. Stella Warner, former executive secretary of the charter committee, and Mrs. Ralph E. Himstead, a leader of the county league of women voters.

The only avowed candidate to date is County Commissioner Charles H. Jamison, who said last week he would run for the council if he receives the nod from county Democrats.

Wright Plane Returns Dec. 17

By The Associated Press

The Wright Brothers' "Flyer", first airplane to carry man, may make a triumphal tour from New York to Washington on its return from England next week.

The frail 600 pound assembly of wood, wire and cloth that launched the air age at Kitty Hawk, N. C., 45 years ago will be hung in the North Hall of the Smithsonian Institution's Arts and Industries Building. Formal acceptance of the plane will be made on the morning of December 17, anniversary of the first flight.

The "Kitty Hawk", as it is popularly known, has been in Science Museum, London, for 20 years. Orville Wright, first to fly, sent it there in a dispute with Smithsonian officials. The fact that he had asked for its return and placement in the Smithsonian was disclosed after his death last January.

Paul E. Garber, curator of the National Air Museum, an agency of the Smithsonian, is directing plans for placement of the "Flyer" after it reaches New York. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis," made famous by a New York-Paris non-stop flight in 1927, has been moved from the foremost spot in the exhibition hall to make room for the Wright plane.

The crated "Kitty Hawk" will be put aboard a Navy truck November 12 with the journey to Washington scheduled to start November 13. Police escorts will be provided in the larger cities and the truck will be marked to tell bystanders its cargo.

The Meadowbrook by Du Mont
A traditionally designed cabinet in mahogany finish and selected mahogany veneers. Unsurpassed television on a 72 square-inch screen. FM radio.
$525 plus installation

DUMONT Announces two new television consoles

Proud additions to the Du Mont line, these two new consoles offer superb reception at a modest price.

Their 12-inch picture tube gives you a 72 square-inch picture—half again larger than the usual 10 inch tube—a big, clear picture you can see all over the room, and in full daylight.

They give you not only television but static-free FM radio as well; and there is a place to plug in your record player to take advantage of their magnificent tone quality. They give you the brilliance and dependability of DuMont electronic engineering.

Tuning to all 12 television channels and the full FM range is simple and accurate.

Fine woods and cabinet work make these consoles as distinguished in appearance as they are in performance. See them at your nearest Du Mont dealer's.

This outline is as nearly the actual size of the 72 square-inch screen as the shrinkage in newspaper printing will permit.

Greatest Chest Lag In Business Unit

der Alfred A. McGarraghy, has filled 0.31 per cent of its $3148 quota. A single $10 contribution is recorded.

McGarraghy, owner of Sholl's Restaurant at 511 14th st. nw., said he accepted the chairmanship "in name only" when the Restaurant Association" asked me to let them use my name and said they'd go ahead and do the work."

McGarraghy said he pointed out to Robert J. Wilson, secretary of the Washington Restaurant Association, at the time, that he had assumed "a tremendous obligation" as new owner of the 14th st. cafeteria and would not be able to devote any time to the Chest drive.

Five Are Under 10%

Five divisions with under-10-per cent records are included in the Construction area, whose over all chairman, Louis Justement, stated that the units are largely contracting firms, in which workmen are scattered over many jobs throughout the city, and solicitation is difficult.

Another low-ranking segment, division 25, Laundries, under Wilmer H. Balderson, has filled 8.92 per cent of its quota. Balderson said he understood that all firms in the division had been solicited, but could not explain the Chest figures until he received full reports from section men Monday.

Meets Definite Resistance

Division 77, Medical and Dental, under Ralph Rothstein, has a record of 8.79 per cent. Rothstein said he had met "definite resistance" in three out of 18 medical and dental clinics he personally solicited. "No results" have come in from funeral parlors, also included in the division, he said.

Division 76, Consultant and Business Services, in the insurance and professions area, with Raymond A. DuFour as chairman, has a record of 3.27 per cent. No chairman is listed for the division.

Two groups in the schools and organizations area have low percentages: Division 82, Private Schools, under Alfred H. Lucas, with 7.12 per cent, and Division 87, Organizations, educational and other, under L. F. Schmeckebier, with 9.46 per cent.

barber and brother of the owner who was charged with accepting racing bets and released in $2500 bond.

John E. Willy, 44, of 7719 Eastern ave., Takoma Park, a barber, who was charged with accepting racing bets and freed in $1000 bond.

Police said Wyndol O. Colie had $852 in his possession when arrested. The three men will appear at a hearing in Silver Spring police court December 21.

Arrested at the Blue Moon Tavern were Donald E. Nicholson, 29, of Boyds., Md., the owner, and George W. Holland, 40, of Germantown, Md., an employe.

Nicholson was charged with setting up a gaming table and Holland with gaming. Bond was $500 each. Their hearing was set for November 24 in Rockville police court.

At the Grotto Grill, police arrested Ralph H. Jecklin, 47, of 207 Normandy dr., Silver Spring. He was charged with gaming and operating a gaming table and released in $500 bond. His hearing was set for Silver Spring police court December 14.

Arrested at the Blue and Gray Tavern were Irving G. Jackson, 33, of 9948 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, and his wife, Mrs. Ann B. Jackson, 40, owners of the tavern. Both were charged with gaming, operating a gaming table and operating a football lottery. Bond for each was $2500. Their hearing will be December 7 in Silver Spring police court.

Police also arrested at Silver Spring hack stands two cab drivers, William S. Morrow, 34, of 801 Pershing dr., and Fred D. Pence, 50, of 9702 Warren st., both of Silver Spring.

Morrow, whose bond was $2500, was charged with operating a lottery and accepting race bets. His hearing will be November 23 in Silver Spring police court.

Pence, charged with accepting race bets, was released in $500 bond for appearance November 30 in Silver Spring police court.

Last night, Robert D. Flanigan, 56, of 9115 Crosby rd., Silver Spring, owner of the Grotto Grill, surrendered to police and was charged with gaming and operating a gaming table. He was released in $1500 bond for appearance in Silver Spring Police Court November 14.

Police Chief Orme said most of those arrested had been under observation for about two months. He said evidence on which the raids were made was collected by Pvt. Robert Popck, a former captain in Army intelligence, who was sworn in secretly two months ago and assigned to make contact with suspected gamblers.

Juvenile Book Art Displayed at Library

The art of illustrated children's books is the subject of a display at the Central Public Library, K and 8th sts. nw. Original drawings by James Daugherty, and other drawings and books from the collection of Dr. Irvin Kerlan, Washington artist and collector, respectively, are featured. The display will continue until the end of Children's Book Week, November 20.

King George Voters Approve $150,000 School Bond Issue

King George, Va., Nov. 6 (Spl.). King George County, which is deep in controversy over equalizing facilities at white and Negro schools, today voted to finance a new Negro high school.

The referendum tally showed that 322 persons had voted for the $150,000 bond issue and 245 against it, a total of 567 votes. The county cast 719 votes in the election last Tuesday.

Voting officials said 49 Negroes cast votes, although about 200 of them were eligible to cast ballots.

The vote did not offer any immediate solution of the county's problem to comply with a Federal Court order to provide facilities in its school for Negroes equal to those provided in the white schools. The school board has dropped four courses in the white schools in an effort to meet the terms of the court directive.

County officials also emphasized that it will be some time before the new school for Negroes can be built as authorized in today's referendum vote. It has been estimated that the $150,000 project will add about 80 cents to the county's present tax rate of $1.60 a thousand dollars, claimed to be one of the lowest tax rates in Virginia.

While the voting was in progress, the school board gathered for a regular meeting and heard 21 white patrons urge that it restore certain classes eliminated in the white schools of the county Friday to equalize curricula in white and Negro schools.

The board declined to act on the requests today, but indicated some action would be taken early next week.

Commonwealth's Attorney Horace T. Morrison, who attended the meeting, said later that unless the board acts voluntarily it appears that patrons will ask him next week to file mandamus proceedings with the State Supreme Court of Appeals to require the restoration of dropped courses.

Morrison told the patrons at the meeting that Circuit Judge Leon M. Bazile's recommendations to the school board in special session had "practically forced" the board to order School Superintendent T. Benton Gayle to eliminate courses offered in the white high school that could not be taught in the Negro school.

A. W. Walker, school board member, said it was with great regret that the board took action to drop the classes.

"If any of you," he told the patrons, "had been there at the special session of the board, I am confident you would have decided as we did. I don't believe that Judge Bazile's advice and practically a command can be cast aside without consideration."

"Nearest Thing to Order"

Superintendent Gayle said Judge Bazile's recommendation "was the nearest thing to an order I ever saw."

However, Judge Bazile said he did not suggest lowering the standards of white schools to meet those of Negro schools, but merely had pointed out that means of complying with the technical terms of a Federal court order to equalize the schools.

The judge said he told the board "that an injunctive court order, issued by a competent court, is a serious order, and must be complied with."

If the school board were allowed to put itself in the position of being in contempt of the Federal court order, Judge Bazile said, it would be subject to heavy fines, imprisonment, or both.

Such punishment, he added, would have the effect of paralyzing the country's school system.

Judge Bazile said that after the school board had heard him, it decided to drop geometry, physics, biology and chemistry from the list of subjects taught in the white schools.

Dr. Fred M. Alexander, State director of secondary education, said that technical schools require several mathematic credits, including solid geometry. He said most liberal arts colleges require three units of mathematics and some science in answer to questions as to whether or not the King George school system would any longer be able to prepare its white students for further education.

G. Tyler Miller, State superintendent of public instruction, said the main problem at King George might well prove to be the difficulty for students to get as many as 16 credits, required by an accredited high school. The board's action in dropping subjects was also seen as possibly preventing the graduation of some seniors on schedule.

Previously, Judge Bazile had announced that if the $150,000 referendum did not pass, the county could expect a Federal court order to admit Negro children to white schools. If that happened, Judge Bazile said, he would close all schools until they were equalized.

Business Outlook

By J. A. Livingston

Economic Aspects of the Election

Now that we have stopped being a Nation of poll-parrots, we can take stock. What are the economic consequences of President Truman's victory?

Livingston

We can assume that this was a labor victory. And labor will ask for its quid pro quo. The drive for a fourth round of wage increases may not get direct Administration support, but obviously Truman can't sit down too hard on labor leaders who backed him. Thus, Truman faces this dilemma: How to reward labor, yet stop inflation? (See chart.)

As a result of the election, labor renewed its political strength. It does not have to establish a third party of its own. It is entrenched in the Democratic Party—John L. Lewis and Alvanley Johnston to the contrary. We can also assume, judging by results in the Midwest, that the farmers came through handsomely and unexpectedly. Agriculture, already nicely prosperous but fearful that the Republicans might drop price supports, was not willing to swap Harry for Tom. In a sense, the Democratic triumph is a farmer-labor lineup in favor of the welfare state. So the new Congress may well see things this way:

1. The Taft-Hartley law will be modified, if not repealed—especially the provision barring the closed shop.

2. The minimum wage, now 40 cents an hour, will be raised. Truman has asked for a 75-cent minimum. This would affect many workers in nondurable goods industries, particularly those in some of the textile plants.

3. Social Security will be widened. Not only will coverage be extended, perhaps to farmers and household help, but also medical provisions may be adopted. And Federal aid to education is likewise on the prospect list.

4. Federal financing of low-cost housing also is probable. And Truman may exert pressure to insure permanent farm price supports.

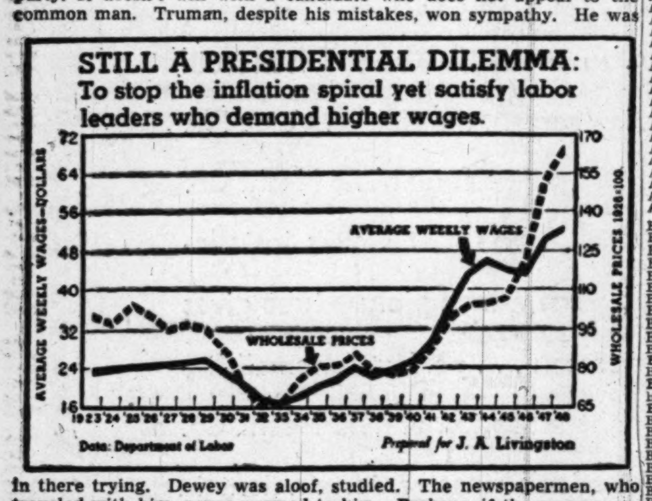
5. Taxes won't be cut, and even may be raised to balance the budget. Here, the emphasis will be on higher corporation taxes. With profits now running at twice the 1929 level, they're an obvious target. Federal expenses, now running at 40 billion dollars, may climb to 45 billion because of rearmament both here and abroad.

6. Economic controls, especially allocation of scarce materials, will be up for early discussion. Price control, now that it's no longer a vote-getting necessity, may be dropped.

Lesson to Business

The meaning to businessmen is clear. They no longer command the loyalty and confidence of the common man. Workers do not accept the oft-uttered phrase of employers that capital and labor are one, that the interests of management and workers are identical. So, the businessmen who supply the chips for the Republican Party and its candidates may reconsider their investment prospects. They may decide that politics is like business. If an item doesn't sell, you change it or drop it.

Obviously, the Republican Party doesn't win as a conservative party. It doesn't win with a candidate who does not appeal to the common man. Truman, despite his mistakes, won sympathy. He was in there trying. Dewey was aloof, studied. The newspapermen, who traveled with him, never warmed to him. Perhaps, if the newspapermen had examined their mutual reactions instead of parroting the polls, they might not have been so far off in their election expectations. (This includes me.)



Data: Department of Labor

Prepared for J. A. Livingston

A political-economic moral for the Republicans: Never try to drive a wedge between union leaders and union members. In his Pittsburgh speech, Dewey attacked the Administration for its opposition to the Taft-Hartley Act—for vetoing it. In so doing, he attacked indirectly all labor leaders, who also opposed the Taft-Hartley law. He was saying, in effect, to the union rank-and-file: "Your leaders were wrong." A prime management principle in industrial relations is never try to appeal over the head of union leaders to the workers. Inevitably, it boomerangs. That applies in politics, too.

Overall, It's Inflationary

From an economic standpoint, the chief question is: What effect will the election have on Truman? That's hard to reduce to carloadings or steel production. It's an important intangible. Now Truman has been elected in his own right. He doesn't have to try to act as Roosevelt might have acted. He can be himself. And he will command the respect of businessmen, of labor leaders, of politicians, not because he is the titular President of the United States but because he has been chosen by the people. So, he is in a position now to lead.

This new stature may permit Truman to see the Nation's economic problems on a broad canvas. He doesn't have to worry about being reelected. He won't be divided between what's good for the country and what's necessary to get votes. Thus, in dealing with labor, he may be able to suggest—and more emphatically than he has in the past—that wage boosts inevitably lead to price boosts. He may try to trade off a big fourth-round wage boost for indirect social gains.

Overall, the election is inflationary. Which hardly explains the stock-market. It was unhappy on Wednesday, recovered a bit on Thursday, then dropped again on Friday. True, with dividends and profits high, many investors and speculators feel that stocks have discounted a lot—especially since a Democratic Administration is less likely to cut expenses as swiftly as a Republican Administration. But the pressure on profits from a farm-labor (little man) Government is a trend which now has to be revalued. That's what Wall Street's in the process of doing.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP).—Grains had to take a good deal of weekend profit-taking today following the firm recent markets. They did it without showing any pronounced weakness, although closing prices were not uniformly higher.

Wheat added small fractions to its upturn, making the fourth straight day of advancing prices for this grain following the election upset. July and September set new seasonal highs. But corn was mostly lower, only the lightly traded September delivery gaining.

Wheat closed ¼-⅝ higher, corn was ⅝ lower to ¾ higher, oats were ⅛ lower to ¼ higher, rye was 1¼ to 2 cents lower, soybeans were ¾ lower to 1 cent higher, and lard was 27 to 47 cents a hundred pounds lower.

Both wheat and soybeans got help from export business. Italy took 1,008,000 bushels of the bread cereal, leaving 336,000 bushels to go on fourth-quarter allocations. The trade estimated France bought anywhere from 400,000 to 600,000 bushels of soybeans this week.

Private cables included a report by Bromhall, English grain authority, stating, "There has been no apparent change in the Argentine system of high grain prices and few contracts have been negotiated recently."

Stocks Rally, Close Below Day's Peaks

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—The stock market yesterday finished its most disastrous week in more than 8 years.

Not since the German army overran the Lowlands have stock prices taken such a pounding.

A slght rally Saturday, and another more substantial one on Thursday, did little to wipe out the effects of the disappointment caused by the spectacular Democratic victory.

Buying interest perked up a bit today at the start and leading issues got ahead by as much as a point or more. Demand didn't amount to much, though, and the day's best gains were lowered by the close.

WHAT STOCKS DID	Sat.	Fri.

Total issues	914	1174

What was the net result of post-election trading?

Prices, on the average, broke to the lowest level since April, as measured by the Associated Press composite of 60 stocks.

The market value of all stocks on the exchange declined by about $4,500,000,000.

In four days of business more than 8 million shares of stock changed hands in the exchange.

Little investors from all parts of the country sold out their 3 or 5 or 10 shares, some for no better reason than that they had heard a Democratic Administration would be bad for business.

Professional traders, many of whom had bought substantial amounts of stocks in anticipation of a changed administration, pulled out of the market in a hurry and nervously tried to guess when the bottom would be reached.

Corporate Income Rises, U. S. Says

During the second quarter of 1948, the net income after taxes of all United States manufacturing corporations was estimated at $2.8 billion, according to the quarterly report made public yesterday by the Federal Trade Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission. This amount was at approximately the same level as in the preceding quarter but about $350 million above the corresponding quarter of 1947.

According to the report, total sales of all manufacturing corporations for the three months, April through June, are estimated at $40.8 billion, an increase of $800 million over the preceding quarter, while costs and expenses amounted to $36.3 billion, an increase of $900 million.

Note to correspondents: Printed copies of the report will be available to the press Thursday, November 4, in Room 162, Federal Trade Commission Building.

Insull-Sponsored Opera House Sold

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP).—The 42-story Civic Opera Building, built in 1931 under sponsorship of Samuel Insull for 23 million dollars, has been sold for $10,735,000.

The Wacker Corp., owner of the big block-long structure at Madison st. and Wacker dr., yesterday announced the sale to the Lumberman's Mutual Casuality Co. of Chicago.

Equitable Life Insurance Elects Dodge Trustee

Des Moines, Nov. 6 (AP).—Election of Joseph M. Dodge, Detroit, Mich., as a trustee of the Equitable Life Insurance Company of Iowa was announced today. Dodge is president of the Detroit Bank and was wartime chairman of the War Department Price Adjustment Board.

HOW TO GET AHEAD DURING THE NEXT 4 YEARS
A Word from
THE WALL STREET JOURNAL
The men who get ahead between now and 1952 will be those who know how to adapt themselves to changing conditions.
Some of the changes during the next four years will come from Washington, some from industry, and some from changing conditions abroad. It will be necessary for you to keep in close touch with these changes and, if possible, to have advance warnings of important new developments.
New Ways to Make Money
For example, new inventions, new industries, and new ways of doing business will create new opportunities for men who want to increase their incomes. One way to find out about these things is to read Business Bulletin, which appears every Thursday in The Wall Street Journal.
You should also keep informed on international conditions and on trends in the British Empire (which often foreshadow trends in the United States). A good way to do this is to read London Cable, which appears every Monday in The Wall Street Journal.
News from Washington
The news coming from Washington will have an important bearing on your future. If you want to know what is going on behind the scenes in Government, you should read Washington Wire, which appears every Friday in The Wall Street Journal.
Another important factor in your business future will be the price trends of raw materials and merchandise. You can get this information in Commodity Letter, which is published every Tuesday in The Wall Street Journal.
Your income tax situation may change next year. If you want a summary and forecast of Federal and State Tax developments, read Tax Report, which is printed every Wednesday in The Wall Street Journal.
$20 Spent May Save You $2000
Every day The Wall Street Journal informs you promptly and reliably on every major new development relating to: Prices, Taxes, Inventories, Industries, Production Trends, Commodities, Securities, Marketing, Consumer Buying, World Trade and New Legislation.
Because the reports in The Wall Street Journal come to you DAILY, you get the fastest possible warning of any new trend that may affect your business and personal income.
The Wall Street Journal is the complete business DAILY. Has largest staff of writers on business and finance. The only business paper served by all four big press associations. It costs $20 a year, but you can get a Trial Subscription for 3 months for $6 (in U. S. and Possessions). Just tear out this ad and attach check for $6 and mail. Or tell us to bill you. WP 11-7

Peoples Drug Sales Up 9% For October

Sales of Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., which have been holding at a steady pace most of this year, advanced sharply in October.

Last month's sales totaled $4,267,576 for a gain of 9.2 per cent over the $3,909,084 for the same month last year. For the first 10 months this year, the drug chain's volume aggregated $37,810,754, an increase of 1.8 per cent over the $37,141,568 in the corresponding 1947 period.

Treasurer W. H. Churchill noted that the company operated 140 stores last month, compared with 136 in the 1947 period.

NEW MANAGER—G. H. Parrish, president and general manager of Hotel Enterprises in Washington, D. C., announced yesterday that Hugh F. Neason has been appointed manager of the Lafayette Hotel.

Neason

Neason, who until recently was manager of the Pierrepont Hotel in Brooklyn, N. Y., is well known in Washington hotel circles. He has been manager of several Washington hotels, including the Hamilton, Annapolis and Burlington, and was also associated with the Mayflower at one time.

OFF TO CONVENTION: The vanguard of Washington's delegation to the fifty-sixth annual convention of the United States Savings and Loan League in New York is leaving the city today, headed by Delegates F. Willson Camp and Thornton W. Owen.

Among local leaders in the industry who will attend the sessions beginning tomorrow are Edward C. Baltz, Samuel Scrivener, William L. King, W. H. Rippard, W. Harold Dyer, Samuel Scrivener, jr.; R. L. Houston Jones, Robert E. Buckley, Edward L. McAleer, Howard S. Gott, Rudolph W. Santelmann, Wilfred H. Blanz, Carl C. Smuck, Clarence E. Kefauver and Edward K. Jones.

The convention will run through Friday. An attendance of 2000 from all parts of the country is expected.

AUTOMATIC CAR WASHER FRANCHISE AVAILABLE

Minit-Man Automatic Car Washers in daily operation in many cities throughout the U. S. have proved profitable beyond original expectation. A franchise to own and operate a Minit-Man station in this city is now available.

The novel, efficient, time saving and automatic operation of the washer has captured the imagination of the motorist everywhere. Stations in various cities now wash upwards of 300 cars per day. Some report business averaging 500 cars per day, while one has recorded an 800 car day!. With no station charging less than $1.00 per car, (special polishing and other work extra) and with only a nominal amount of labor needed, the entire cost of the machine is soon written off.

Special experience in this field is not required; present successful owners include, among others, an accountant, restaurant owner, teacher, chemist, as well as a number of operators of automobile service establishments.

If you now have or are able to secure or erect a building with a minimum floor space of 20 x 100 feet on (or adjacent to) a well-traveled location and can arrange for the purchase of the machine on which financing is available the Minit-Man can prove very valuable to you. Cadillac Convertible in 1949 Reincarnation

POWER STEPPED UP—The Series 62 convertible Cadillac is shown above. For 1949 Cadillac claims horsepower is stepped up 11 per cent, while economy of fuel has been increased 15 per cent. Interior decor of all models is new and the engine has been freshly designed with a view to compactness, rigidity and more smoothness. One experimental engine was run for more than 100 hours at 4250 r.p.m. with wide-open throttle—the equivalent of 108 miles per hour. At the conclusion of the test there was no appreciable wear to engine parts and no mechanical breakdown

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Cotton futures moved lower in slow dealings today. Light liquidation and hedging met only scale-down trade support and scattered covering, with final prices unchanged to 50 cents a bale lower. Traders were hesitant, pending the November 1 Government crop forecast which will be released Monday.

The average guess of the New York Cotton Exchange members placed the figure at 15,006,000 bales. The Department of Agriculture, on October 8, forecast the crop at 15,079,000, compared with the actual 1947 production of 11,857,000.

Traders watched Washington developments for a clew on legislation affecting farm prices and the textile situation.

The range follows:

Iowan Comes to Washington, Builds 9-Million Corporation

By S. Oliver Goodman

An Iowan, who wasn't afraid of hard work and long hours, is behind the latest Washington success story.

Weir

It's a familiar formula, but it has worked again in the career of Davis Weir, president of the 9-million-dollar State Loan & Finance Corp.

In 1930, the 26-year-old Weir came here from Iowa with $7000, a wife, an idea and lots of ambition. Formerly in the wholesale flour and feed business with his father, young Weir had become interested in the small loan field. After a thorough study, he decided that the Washington area was a fertile spot for that type of company.

From a modest office in Mount Rainier, Md., State Loan & Finance Corp. has expanded steadily under Weir's direction to an organization with 24 offices throughout the country and headquarters in the Ring Building here. Assets totaled $9,370,903 as of September 30, 1948.

Weir emphasized that a large part of the firm's growth is attributable "to the confidence of investors in placing additional capital at our disposal when needed."

Files Stock Offering

The story of Weir and his company was uncovered last week with the filing of a registration with the Securities and Exchange Commission for a proposed issue of 60,000 shares of $25-par convertible preferred stock. A $1,500,000 local offering of securities doesn't pass unnoticed in Washington's little Wall Street.

The financial spotlight turned on State Loan & Finance Corp. and revealed these figures. The company and its subsidiaries have 225 employes in 24 offices in eight States. Eight of these offices are in nearby Maryland and Virginia communities.

Financial statements for the past three years and nine months show sharp expansion in earnings. Operating income in 1947 totaled $1,595,858, compared with $1,113,593 in 1946 and $894,920 in 1945. For the first nine months this year, operating income was reported as $1,489,864.

Net Income at New Top

Net income likewise has shown substantial gains. After provision for Federal and State taxes and all other charges, net totaled $308,096 in 1947 compared with $207,886 in 1946 and $172,179 in 1945. For the first nine months this year, net reached a record level of $331,316.

The proposed new security issue, Weir explained yesterday, is for future expansion and additional working capital. Principal underwriter is the local investment house of Johnston, Lemon & Co.

Weir, just turned 45, has come a long way in the past 18 years. But he still remembers those days back in 1930 when he and his wife were the only employes in a small Mount Rainier store.

Longshoremen Reject Offer; Strike Looms

New York, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—The threat of a shipping strike on the East and Gulf coasts Tuesday was raised today when New York area members of the International Longshoremen's Association (AFL) overwhelmingly rejected a "final" contract offer by ship operators.

Joseph Ryan, union president, said Communist members of the union are planning to strike, regardless of what the other members decide to do.

The National Labor Relations Board said balloting in New York City, half of New Jersey and Staten Island showed the longshoremen had rejected the operators' offer by a vote of 10,623 to 698. Clerks, checkers and cargo repairmen turned it down by a similar majority, the board said.

A total of 65,000 ILA members on the East and Gulf coasts voted on the offer in a two-day election. An antistrike injunction issued under the Taft-Hartley law expires at midnight Tuesday, and a strike would be legal then.

Ryan predicted a majority of the total membership would reject the offer of a 10-cent hourly wage increase. The union wants 15 cents.

"We don't want a strike," Ryan said, however. "We'll do everything we can to avoid one."

CIO Miner Heads Hold Wallaceite Vigilance Needed

Salt Lake City, Nov. 6 (AP).—Executive officers of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (CIO), said today continued activity of the Progressive Party "is necessary to assure that the new Congress will fulfill the promises made by the Democratic Party"

"The Wallace-Taylor campaing forced Truman to discuss the real issues of the day. Truman convinced a majority of the American people that he would carry on in the Roosevelt tradition. His promises on these basic issues of peace, civil liberties, Taft-Hartley, inflation and housing swung millions of undecided voters to his support and assured his election . . .

The union indorsed the Progressive Party candidates during the recent presidential campaign.

Warns of Delay

McCloy Asks Foreign Aid Generosity

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 6 (AP).—John J. McCloy, president of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, said today a "penny pinching" policy in the Marshall Plan would cost the United States more, and would delay European recovery.

McCloy said he did not approve using the European recovery program as a means of dumping American surplus goods in countries benefiting from the plan.

He told the Savings Banks Association of the State of New York at the concluding session of its 55th annual meeting that the degree of European recovery already realized under ERP is "quite remarkable."

McCloy opposed what he described as "negative incentive" in ERP by basing the amount of aid to each country solely on actual needs.

Such action, he told the bankers, would be an incentive for countries to demonstrate how great is their need, instead of taking difficult and sometimes harsh measures internally to reduce the need for outside help.

Harding Going on Air

Radio Station WWDC's Ed Hart will interview Capt. Victor Hunt Harding, executive secretary of the Democratic Congressional Committee, on "How Was It Done?" at 6:45 p. m. Sunday.

What To Do For That Sluggish, Down-and-Out Feeling

Remember the time when you could eat like a horse, bubbled-over with energy, felt happy as a lark? Was it not because you liked to eat—didn't know what indigestion was, felt strong as an ox? As age advances the "old stomach and the ever-changing blood" need help. Now you may again release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

West Holds D. C. in Full Control of Playgrounds

Counsel Prepares 2-Point Brief for Commissioners in Jurisdiction Row

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, the District government's legal adviser, is preparing an opinion declaring the District has full and unqualified control over 62 playgrounds over which the National Park Service has claimed jurisdiction.

West, it was learned last night, is working on a brief for submission to the District Commissioners this week. In his opinion the District's claim to the lands rests on two main points:

1. The areas were assigned permanently and irrevocably to the District government by the National Capital Park Commission, predecessor of the present National Capital Park and Planning Commission, under the terms of a 1924 act by which the Federal agency was created.

2. The tracts were bought and paid for with District funds.

Segregation Is Issue

One of the principal points at stake in the controversy is whether a present policy of segregation will be continued. The Commissioners have placed the tracts in the hands of the Recreation Board, which has enforced a segregation policy, while the National Park Service is for ending such mandatory separation.

The matter is now before Attorney General Tom C. Clark for a final ruling on who has control of the playground tracts and therefore can set the racial policy. The Commissioners asked West for his opinion on the matter after the Recreation Board urged the city fathers to back it in the fight for control.

In West's opinion, the act creating the National Capital Park Commission did not "ipso facto" give the Board of Commissioners control of the lands, but this was done by subsequent agreements with the Commissioners transferring control to them.

These agreements were made under the section of the act declaring that "areas suitable for playground purposes may, in the discretion of the said Commission, be assigned to the control of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia for playground purposes.

West contends that this act has never been repealed. Interior Department Solicitor Mastin G. White has declared, in his opinion declaring control lies with the Federal agency, that the 1942 Act creating the District Recreation Board, in effect, annuals the earlier legislation, West explained.

Holds Both Are Consistent

The District official, however, after a study of the laws and the Interior Department opinion, is preparing to declare that "both acts are consistent" in that the 1942 act reads that the Commissioners, having control of playground facilities, may make them available to the Recreation Board.

The lands were purchased by Planning Commission and its the National Capital Park and predecessor unit with Federal money, since repaid by the District government, West declared.

He declared also that a statement quoted from an earlier opinion of his on whether the District had "jurisdiction or control" of two swimming pools included in the 62 areas was "taken out of context." In this quotation, he was reported to have declared that the Banneker and Takoma Park, D. C., pools were not under controls of the District.

West said last night, however, that a subsequent passage in the opinion said such powers had been transferred by the Commissioners to the Recreation Board.

Adm. Denfeld to Talk On Navy, Transport

Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations, will discuss "Sea Power and Transportation" at a dinner meeting of the Washington chapter of the Army Transportation Association to be held at 6:15 p. m. Monday at the Annapolis Hotel.

Two movies of naval action in the Pacific during the war, "The Fleet That Came to Stay," and "Brought to Action," also will be shown.

Hospital Charity Pay to Be Studied

District Commissioner Guy Mason will meet with officials of the District's budget, health and corporation counsel's offices Monday morning for a final meeting on the preparation of contracts with nine local private hospitals for care of indigents.

The commissioner said he hoped to complete the contracts in time for the full Board of Commissioners to consider them at Tuesday morning's meeting.

Mirror Reflects A Pretty 'Queen'

MARGARET BOYER, 19-year-old junior at Mount Vernon College, will reign as queen of the Columbia Opera and Ballet Association's annual opera ball Tuesday night at the Shoreham Hotel. The daughter of Col. and Mrs. James W. Boyer, jr., of 1613 Harvard st. nw., Miss Boyer's image here is reflected in a mirror. Proceeds from the dance will help finance the association's ballet and opera program

Jealousy Seen As Motive in Shotgun Death

Jealousy was blamed by her former husband yesterday for the shotgun slaying of Mrs. Mary Jane Frei, 48, a Civil Service Commission adjudicator, of 4609 Polk st. ne.

Police said Orval Norton Jackson, who had lived at Mrs. Frei's home since last December and admitted killing her Friday night after days of arguments, was still in a stupor and told conflicting accounts, sometimes saying he shot in self-defense, at others declaring it was an accident.

Police Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty, head of the homicide squad, took signed statements yesterday from Mrs. Frei's divorced husband, Joseph Frei, 49, of 1326 A st. se., a sign painter for the General Outdoor Advertising Co., and their son, Harold J. Frei, 27, a General Accounting Office employe, of 380 37th pl. se.

Flaherty said he was convinced Jackson blasted Mrs. Frei in the neck with a 16-gauge, double-barrel shotgun in the bathroom of the Polk st. house, after drinking heavily, because Mrs. Frei had arranged to sell the house and packed her furniture ready to move the following day, leaving Jackson without a place to live.

Jackson said he was born in Casper, Wyoming, in 1907, but looks many years older. He gave his occupation as a retired rancher. Mrs. Frei was born in Breckinridge, Colo. She was a niece of Jackson's by marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Frei came to Washington 28 years ago.

Mrs. Frei's son, Harold, was downstairs in his mother's home when he heard the shot that killed her. He grappled with Jackson for the gun. Jackson staggered out and walked six blocks to the Pond dr. ne.,

Woman, 50, Beaten in Hotel Hall

Prowler Attacks Meridian Hill Resident; Caught Few Blocks Off

Miss Bertha E. Fletchall, 50, was beaten by a prowler in the hall outside her room in the Meridian Hill Hotel for women, 2601 16th st. nw., about 5:30 a. m. yesterday.

Her assailant, Percy S. Lassiter, 22, of 1748 Swann st. nw., was arrested a short time later a few blocks away. Police said he admitted he struck Miss Fletchall when she discovered him in the hotel after he had entered a window of a beauty parlor on the first floor with intent to rob it.

Miss Fletchall, a State consultant in the United States Public Health Service and a sister-in-law of Circuit Court Judge Charles W Woodward of Rockville, Md., suffered bruises, a face cut and shock. She is under her physician's care.

She told police she saw a man lurking in the shadows as she walked down the hall. She screamed, he struck her repeatedly on the face and body, then fled. Seconds later, apparently unable to find an exit, he ran back, struck Miss Fletchall again and disappeared as other women residents of the hotel came to her aid and called police.

A short time later, Tenth Police Precinct Pvt. Charles L. Hardman became suspicious of Lassiter's actions and his disarranged clothing near Columbia rd. and Champlain st. nw., quizzed him, then started with him toward a police call box to call a patrol. A scout car with Pvts. Charles W. Yeatman and J. M. Jackson happened along, and they recognized Lassiter as fitting a description, just broadcast over police radios, of Miss Fletchall's assailant.

The policemen said Lassiter then admitted he was the man. He faces trial in Municipal Court Monday on charges of assault and housebreaking.

Police Can't Support Woman's Attack Story

Police said yesterday they found nothing to substantiate the report of a 20-year-old Southwest wife that she was threatened with death and attacked by a man as she sat on the steps of her parents' home awaiting her husband.

The young woman, whose husband went bowling after a family quarrel, said her assailant forced her to partially undress after pressing into her side an object he told her was a revolver, about 12:30 a. m. yesterday.

Extension Is Granted On Dormitories Here

The District Commissioners have granted Georgetown, George Washington, American and Howard Universities a two-year extension on razing of temporary frame dormitories bought from the armed services.

These structures, which do not conform to the District Building Code, were scheduled to be torn down after the emergency need for veterans' housing was over. The Commissioners, in extending the deadline, directed the universities to take fire-prevention measures such as enclosing stairs in the two-story building.

Two Concerns, Home Entered By Burglars

Three burglaries and an attempted safe-cracking were reported to police yesterday, including theft of $2500 worth of clothing and jewelry from the home of Joseph H. and Gertrude Sheppard, Justice Department attorneys, 4709 Colorado ave. nw.

Sheppard, chief trial attorney in the tax division, said he returned home at 6:30 p. m. Friday with his wife, of the department's criminal division, to find the upstairs ransacked by an apparently discriminating thief who passed up less valuable articles to take a mink coat, silver fox cape, a diamond ring, a man's and a lady's wrist watch and a .32-caliber Colt automatic pistol.

Tools Recovered

Police Pvt. H. L. Faircloth said he recovered $200 worth of tools stolen from the Marine Supply Co., 1226 11th st. se., about 1 a. m. yesterday when he captured Leon J. Cefaratti, 24, of 1813 A st. se., among several persons he saw running out the rear of the place. The man was charged with housebreaking.

A hiding place under a counter of Isadore Kline's liquor store at 201 H st. nw., yielded $150 to a thief, who also took two boxes of cigars, $22 worth of liquor and tried unsuccessfully to open a safe, Kline reported. A window was broken.

The rear door of Dismer's Hardware Store. 3117 14th st. nw., was pried open and the safe badly damaged in a vain attempt to open it, Clarence Knight, manager, reported.

McLean Rent Hike Tabled For Review

A rent increase at McLean Gardens, one of the District's largest housing developments, scheduled to go into effect last Friday, has been tabled as the result of requests by landlord and tenants for review of the decision.

The Fairmac Corp. has asked Rent Control Administrator Robrt Cogswell to review the section of the decision pertaining to dormitory rentals. Rent Examiner Denis K. Lane recommended no change in the present rents on the 1300 dormitory rooms.

About 750 tenants, through the law firm of Arnold, Fortas & Porter, have requetsed a rehearing on the recommendation for a 6.9 per cent boost on the rent of 720 apartments.

During a two-day hearing in June, the Fairmac Corp., which bought the property from the Defense Homes Corporation, contended that a rise in real estate taxes and water rents justified a $5 a month hike in the dormitory room rents. Lane ruled that these increases represented "a very small percentage of the gross operating costs—too small to consider."

The tenants, opposing the firm's request for a 10 per cent rent rise on apartments, contended that the landlord had made an "extravagant" net profit of $328,292 on the project in one year and that "reduction in services more than cancels the increase in operating expenses."

Cogswell started reading the lengthy transcript of the case yesterday and is expected to give an opinion on the dormitory rates this week.

County Probe Of Gas Rates Is Delayed

A proposed Arlington County investigation of rates charged by the Rosslyn Gas Co. was delayed yesterday, when the county board decided to seek further information about a recommendation that a professional rate analyst be employed to conduct the survey.

The board agreed to defer action after receiving a recommendation from the county's Public Utilities Commission that the board employ J. Paul Blundon of Keyser, W. Va., to conduct the investigation.

Board members suggested that the PUC be asked to provide further information on its reasons for recommending Blundon along with an estimate of the cost of the proposed survey.

The Utilities Commission suggested two other public utilities experts as alternate choices. They were Dr. John Mauer, of the American Public Utilities Bureau, New York City, and Martin T. Bennett, 917 15th st., nw.

The board also appropriated $600 to finance a survey on the "advisability and feasibility" of installing a civil service system for county employes. The survey will be conducted by the Republic Administration Service of Chicago, recently engaged to analyze salary scales of county employes.

Findings will outline legal procedure to be followed in setting up the new system, and a draft of a proposed ordinance which would set up a merit system for advancement of employes.

Following yesterday's meeting, the board formally recessed until 9 p. m. Wednesday, when it will consider advertising an ordinance imposing a local automobile license tax and a business and professional levy.

Traffic Claims Lives of Three In District Area

One Woman Killed On U. S. 1, Another By D. C. Streetcar; Man Dies of Injury

D. C. traffic deaths this year . . . 58
Deaths this date last year 62
Total deaths in D. C. last year . . 72

An 82-year-old retired Government worker saw a streetcar hit and kill a woman here yesterday without knowing it was his wife.

It was one of three traffic deaths recorded yesterday in the District area.

The streetcar victim was Mrs. Caroline McCauley, 67, of 1954 Columbia rd. nw. She was killed instantly at about 11 a. m. when she stepped from a loading platform, at Columbia rd. and Mintwood pl. nw., into the path of a streetcar operated by William F. Watson, 51, of 1019 B st. ne.

Her husband, Joseph D. McCauley, a retired employe of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, witnessed the accident while taking his morning walk. When he returned to their apartment he told several neighbors in the lobby about the accident. Then he went up to the apartment where he and his wife had lived for 15 years to await her return from shopping.

Mrs. McCauley was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. Carl Dicksa of Emergency Hospital and her body taken to the Morgue.

Police hesitated to break the news of her death to McCauley who suffers from a heart ailment. Friends were finally found and they gave him the news several hours after the accident.

Police said the loading platform from which Mrs. McCauley stepped to her death was crowded. Police quoted witnesses as saying the streetcar, bound for Lincoln Park, was full and the motorman instead of stopping to pick up passengers passed by the platform slowly with bell clanging.

Watson was released in the custody of Capital Transit officials. No inquest has been set.

Mrs. Amanda Gaskins, 55, of Fairfax, Va., died last night at 8:20 in Fort Belvoir Hospital, about three hours after she was hit by an automobile while walking across U. S. Highway No. 1 at Gum Springs, four miles south of Alexandria, Va.

State Trooper K A. Carper, at Alexandria, said the driver, Sergt. James R. Athey, of Fort Belvoir, was released after the accident but would be summoned for an inquest by Fairfax County Coroner Podolnick.

Mrs. Gaskins, who has a daughter, Aritha Gaskins, at 1321 Queen st., Alexandria, was believed visiting Gum Springs friends before she was struck. Carper said the auto carried her 20 yards on its hood. The Penn Daw volunteer rescue squad, which was passing, took her to the hospital

Franklin Siegler, 86, of 1315 Juniper st. nw., died in Emergency Hospital at 5:45 a. m. of traffic injuries.

Siegler was found lying in the street last Wednesday night in the 7700 block of Georgia ave. nw., apparently the victim of a hit-and-run driver. He had a fractured skull and injuries to his body, face and legs.

Lieut. William Liverman, head of the Police Accident Investigation Uunit, said the type of injuries made it apparent Siegler was struck by a moving vehicle. He said police was trying to locate witnesses to the accident.

Male Pervert Arrests Rise In District

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

United States Attorney George Morris Fay declared yesterday that the sexually aberrated male has become a problem in Washington.

An average of two men daily are now being charged in Municipal Court with indecent acts, according to Judge Thomas D. Quinn.

At least six policemen are assigned to uncover and arrest the male sex offender. One of them, Pvt. Frank N. Manthos, has made 30 arrests in the last month where the defendant allegedly was engaged in an immoral act.

According to Lieut. Roy Blick of the Vice Squad, perhaps 70 per cent of the accused sex perverts are unmarried and a quarter of them when arrested had alcohol on their breath. Almost all appear to be of above-average intelligence. Most have college educations, according to court statements. Perhaps only 5 per cent are of the common-labor class.

Of five men charged yesterday, one is a Government clerk, one a salesman, two are college students and the other an Air Force corporal.

Suspects Listed

Roland A. Roberts, 59, Commerce Department clerk, who said he resides in Falls Church, Va., pleaded guilty to indecently touching Police Pvt. Frank J. A. Wentz in Franklin Park. Judge Quinn postponed sentence pending a probation office investigation.

William A. Castile, 23, a Maryland University student, of 4506 Amherst rd., College Park, Md., was charged with touching Private Manthos in the lavatory of a downtown theater. The case was continued for jury trial on December 7.

Corpl. Armond DeSio, 27, of Bolling Field, charged with the same offense, had his case continued in Municipal Court until Tuesday.

The others, both to appear Tuesday, are Walter D. Greenman, 26, a salesman, of 3100 Connecticut ave. nw., charged with an indecent act, and William P. Halbe, 22, a Catholic University student, of 4202 32nd st., Mt. Rainier, Md., charged with soliciting prostitution.

Court informations show that the sex offenders are found mainly in parks and theaters.

Authorities here are newly armed with the Miller Act, a sex law providing heavier penalties, commitment for psychiatric treatment and covering a wide latitude of sex crimes.

Horace Mann Defeats Lafayette in First 'Quizdown' of Season

3 Boys Out of 12 Contestants Have Perfect Scores

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Amid sighs and cheers, Horace Mann School's sextet swept over the six from Lafayette School yesterday to win the season's first "Quizdown" show.

Eyes sparkled and wits were sharp as the 12 contestants from the fourth, fifth and sixth grades of the two schools matched information on the first of the weekly half-hour quiz shows sponsored by The Washington Post and broadcast over Station WTOP from 10 to 10:30 a. m. Other schools will participate at the same time each Saturday for the next 29 weeks.

Full of spirits, youthful members of the audience in the Wilson Teachers College auditorium cheered as their champs came through with the right answers and groaned when they missed.

Scores at the half stood 450 points for Lafayette and 541 points for Horace Mann. The second half was a tie with 300 points for each team, but Horace Mann's initial lead put it over the top for victory.

Horace Mann's victory brought it a 19-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and team members ball-point pens. Lafayette received a Rand McNally International Edition World Atlas and its team members automatic pencils. Both schools also received Emerson table model radios.

The only three contestants to get perfect scores were boys.

They were: Andrew Waldrop, 9, of 4900 Loughboro rd. nw., 4B grade at Horace Mann; Nicholas Hopkins, 9, of 3280 Chestnut st. nw., 5A grade at Lafayette, and David Wilkinson, 11, of 5508 30th st. nw., 6B at Lafayette.

When Quizmaster Vern Hansen, wearing his mortar-board, asked "What was the most famous discovery of Balboa?" Hopkins answered without batting an eyelash, "The Pacific."

He knew, too, when asked "Where is the permanent building for the United Nations going to be erected?" (If there is any adult who doesn't know the answer to that one, it is New York City.)

Waldrop almost came a cropper on his first question, "What act of courtesy brought fame and riches to a young Englishman?" He couldn't think of Sir Walter Raleigh's name, offhand, but he remembered Raleigh's spreading his cloak in the mud for Queen Elizabeth, and since "the act" was the question the judges allowed Waldrop and Horace Mann the maximum 100 points for a question.

When asked "What is the worst enemy of the oyster?" Waldrop came up immediately with "starfish," and not "mankind" as Quizmaster Hansen suggested.

"Wilkie" Wilkinson, who collects coins and carries a Washington Post route, delivered 200 points of Lafayette's total by correctly replying that plants breathe in carbon dioxide and breathe out oxygen, and naming "railroads, airplanes and ships" as three means of transportation vital to the world.

Wilkinson was the last man on his team, and his opposite number on Horace Mann's was Robert Futrelle, 11, of 4828 Woodway Lane nw., a 6A grader. "Futy," who wants to be a mechanical or electrical engineer some day, was also a high scorer with 175 points.

Two Susans led off for the teams. Susan Hopkinson, 9, of 6241 30th st. nw., in 4A at Lafayette, and (Mary) Susan Spurlock, of 4204 45th st. nw., also 9 years old and in 4A at Horace Mann.

Both Susans knew the answers to their questions in the first round, but missed the basket the second time.

Susan Hopkins, with blond pigtails and wearing a plaid skirt, couldn't remember in time that Virginia Dare was the first white child born in America, and Susan Spurlock, also blond and admitting to the nickniame of "Lulu" which is a fine one for a girl who would like to be a pianist, likewise hesitated too long in remembering that Thomas Jefferson is credited with writing the Declaration of Independence.

Also in Horace Mann's lineup were Sally Smethurst, 10, of 5042 Lowell st. nw.; Ronald Hurston, 10, of The Westchester; and William Granik, 11, of 4000 Cathedral ave., who collects maps and match covers.

Strengthening Lafayette's team were Janet Nalls, 11, of 6150 30th st. nw., who has a dog and a turtle for pets; Patricia Hubbard, 9, of 6318 32d st. nw., who "shares" a scottie with her brother Robert, and David Grether, 10, of 3319 Legation st. nw., who admitted teasing his sisters.

Judges for yesterday's Quizdown were three teachers, Miss Frances Probey of John Eaton School, Miss Elizabeth Hodgson, Henry D. Cooke School, and Mrs. Edna Dodge, Phoebe Hearst School.

BILL GRANIK
ROBERT FUTRELLE

THEY ARE THE VICTORS—Horace Mann's six-person team triumphs over Lafayette School, 841 to 750 points, on 'Quizdown.' Members are (from left), Ronald Hurston, 10, 5-B grade; Mary Susan Spurlock, 9, 4-A; William Robert Granik, 11, 6-A; Sally Smethurst, 10, 5-B; Robert Futrelle, 11, 6-A, and Andrew Waldrop, 9, 4-B. As a prize, the school received the 19-volume World Book Encyclopedia (foreground. Team members got ball-point pens

WTOP
Susan Hopkinson

The Washington Post

SHE ANSWERS CORRECTLY—Susan Hopkins, 9, of the 4-A grade at Lafayette School, tells Quizmaster Vern Hanson that the river which runs down the center of the United States is the Mississippi. It was "Quizdown," weekly radio program sponsored by The Washington Post and broadcast 10 to 10:30 a. m., Saturdays over Station WTOP. Yesterday's program emanated from Wilson Teacher's College. Lafayette's team, valiant loser, is in background

Area News in Brief

Post-Crash Assault Charged to Driver

A 32-year-old mechanic was placed under $5000 bond yesterday on a charge of feloniously assaulting an elderly man who suffered serious injuries during a fight following a minor traffic accident in Arlington Friday.

Charged with felonious assault was Benjamin Lee Griffin, 2120 S. 2d st., Arlington, who police said assaulted Audie S. Carroll, 65, of 829 S. Glebe rd., Arlington, during the argument.

Carroll was on the danger list at Arlington Hospital last night, where he was said to have suffered a fractured skull and possible brain injury from a fall. An operation performed Friday for removal of a blood clot was said to have improved his condition "slightly."

The collision between the two automobiles occurred at the intersection of Wilson blvd. and N. Fillmore st., Arlington, police said.

Griffin left the scene of the accident, police said, after he was given permission to move his car from the intersection to eliminate the traffic hazard. He was arrested by Fairfax County police after a lookout was broadcast by Arlington authorities.

Arlington police said Griffin after being returned to their custoday, admitted striking Carroll, but insisted Carroll "took a swing" at him first.

Hospital False Alarm

A short circuit in the fire alarm system at Emergency Hospital, 1711 New York ave. nw., set off fire alarms in the nurses home, and first floor and basement of the hospital yesterday afternoon. According to William Hanna, admission officer, however, few of the patients probably even knew of the excitement.

5 Tons of Food Ruined

More than five tons of foodstuffs, including large amounts of cucumbers and honeydew melons, were ordered destroyed last week by District Health Department inspectors in checks on 1079 establishments. Three cases were settled in Municipal Court with fines and forfeitures amounting to $50.

Loses to Wife, Court

Ernest Young, 38, of 1108 6th st. nw., yesterday was fined $50 because he was ashamed to admit he had been battered in a fight with his wife.

Det. Sergt. Nunzio Bonaccorsy testified before Judge John P. McMahon of Municipal Court that at Sibley Hospital, Young, who was being treated for a head injury, clamied that he was beaten by robbers. Subsequent investigation disclosed that in reality Young began fighting with his estranged wife, Winifred, 40, and got the worst of it, the detective related.

ABC Resets Top Case

The District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board will continue a hearing on 57 complaints against Henry G. David, operator of Mitchell's Grill, 235 G st. nw., Tuesday at 10 a.m. The charges comprised the largest number ever filed against a local establishment.

At 10 a.m. Monday the three-man board will hear a charge against Simon Gross, 50 Senton pl. nw., in abandonment of a Class C license without notifying the board.

Home Accident Survey Shows 109 Hurt Here

1948 Injuries to date	5151
1947 Injuries same period	4484
1948 Deaths to date	223
1947 Deaths same period	185

Youngsters who swallowed a bobby pin, an earring, solder paste and two puppy worming pills were among 109 persons treated at local hospitals last week for home accident injuries.

Six persons died last week because of falls at home, the Red Cross Home Accident Survey also reported. Other falls injured 51 persons.

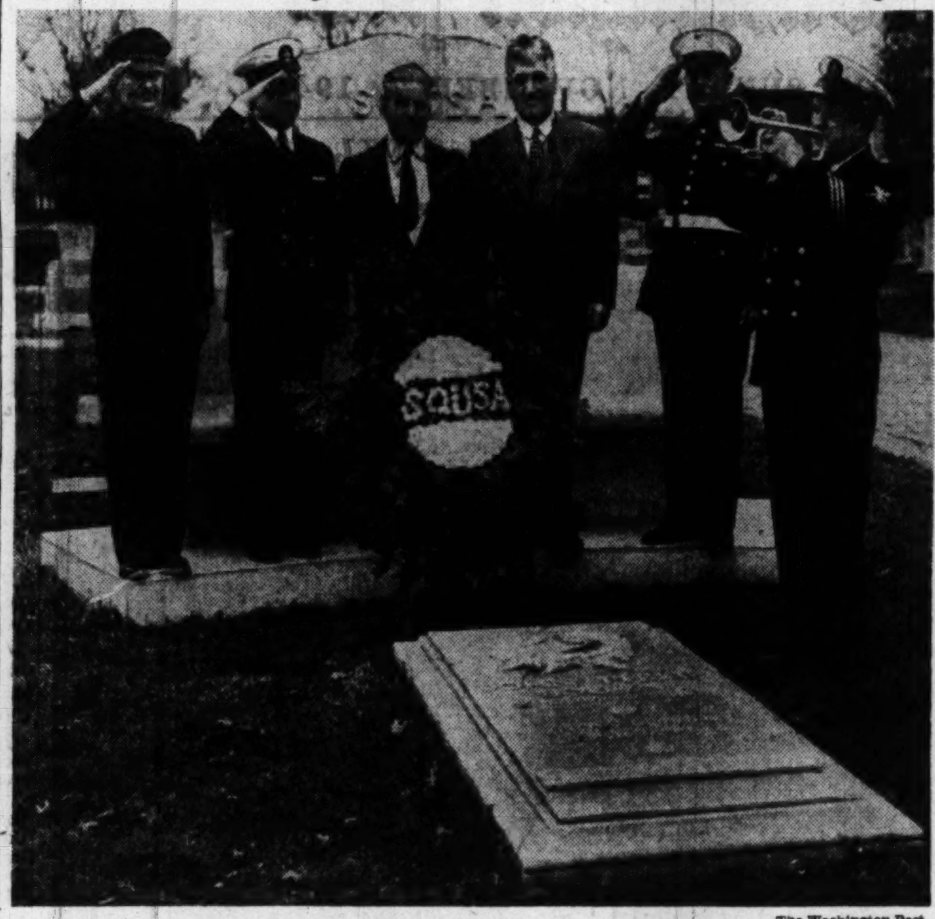
A 14-month-old baby who put a live electric wire in his mouth and an adult who singed his ear and scalp while lighting a stove were among nine persons burned at home last week.

Other accidents last week included an 11-month-old girl who suffered a stab wound of the palate when she fell with a knife in her mouth, and a girl who bit her tongue so seriously when she fell while playing that it required surgery.

A 3-year-old girl pushed a pea into her ear, a child had a piece of steak removed from his esophagus, and two children were injured by playmates wielding a mop and a tin can. Other youngsters swallowed a jack, a metal screw top, and too much camphorated oil.

Two women cut their hands on drinking glasses which they broke while washing dishes.

Sousa's Memory Honored on 94th Birthday



The Washington Post

TAPS—Over the grave of Sousa, Chief Musician Oscar Short, United States Navy Band, sounds taps in a ceremony yesterday marking the ninety-fourth anniversary of the late "March King's" birth. Short and the others are all former members of the Sousa Band. They are (from left) Dana Garrett of the Columbia School of Music, wearing a uniform of the old band; Herbert E. C. Weber, of the Navy School of Music, Chief Musician George Jenkins of the Navy Band, Chief Musician John Liegl of the Navy School of Music and Clyde L. Hall of the Marine Band.

A small group of solemn men went to John Philip Sousa's ninety-fourth birthday party yesterday, just as they have done on November 6 so many times in the past.

Standing at attention over his grave in Congressional Cemetery, they paid simple tribute to the man who has been at rest there since 1932, but whose memory grows stronger to them with the years.

At 1:30 p. m., speaking quietly beneath a laden sky, Navy Chief Musician Herbert E. C. Weber began his words to the man who wrote "The Stars and Stripes Forever":

"We are gathered here this afternoon to pay respect to a perfect gentleman and one of the greatest bandmasters the world has ever known . . ."

When he concluded, perhaps two minutes later, Dana Garrett, former Chief Musician, USN, and Clyde L. Hall, of the Marine Corps Band, placed a wreath at the grave. Then Oscar Short, Chief Musician, USN, sent "Taps" rolling softly across the old cemetery.

After that, Garrett stepped to the graveside, attired in an old Sousa band uniform, and spoke directly to John Philip Sousa. He said:

"To us, this is not a duty or a ritual. We feel that each time we are invited to your birthday party that we once more see you leading 'The Stars and Stripes' . . ."

"Mr. Sousa, once more we thank you for inviting us to your birthday party."

Then Navy Chaplain Chauncey W. Ellison, of Anacostia Receiving Station, offered the benediction and the ceremony was over. It was 1:45 p. m.

Thus did the Washington chapter, Sousa Band Fraternal Society, make its yearly pilgrimage to the side of its beloved leader. Other society members present included Navy Chief Musicians George Jenkins and John Liegl.

Unable to attend were the famed bandmaster's daughters, Miss Jane Priscilla Sousa and Mrs. Helen Sousa Abert of Port Washington, N. Y. They sent a telegram expressing their regrets.

The sixth annual John Philip Sousa Memorial Concert will be given at 8 p. m. Wednesday at Kramer Junior High School by the Junior Optimist Band.

Short Describes How Subversives Get New 'Members'

Dr. Oliver C. Short, director of personnel for the Department of Commerce and president of the Federal Club, yesterday discussed the devious ways by which innocent persons are induced to become "members" of subversive organizations.

Addressing the National Association of Retired Civil Employes, at the National Museum, Dr. Short said one of these methods is to advertise books at a discount, then require innocent buyers to sign a card—which makes them "members" of some group.

Another trick is to solicit contributions for a worthy cause at a public lecture and ask contributors to sign their names as a record of their donation, Dr. Short said. The signatures are then used as evidence for "membership" lists, he explained.

Mrs. Agatha C. Nolan

Mrs. Agatha Caroline Nolan died Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Beatrice N. Quisenberry, of Clinton, Miss., following several years' failing health.

A native of Caldwell, N. J., Mrs. Nolan was a descendant of the early New England settlers. She made her home in Baltimore, Md., for 50 years, and prior to coming to Clinton six years ago made her home with another daughter, Mrs. Asa N. Chandler, in Cambridge, Md. She was a member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors include four daughters: Mrs. Beatrice N. Quisenberry of Clinton, Mrs. Asa N. Chandler of Cambridge, Md.; Miss Ethelyn Nolan of Baltimore, and Mrs. Joy N. Cooper of Catonsville, Md.; two brothers, William Anderson of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Harry Anderson of Bradshaw, Md. Nine grandchildren also survive.

The remains were sent to Baltimore, where services will be held Monday, with interment following in Loudoun Park Cemetery.

Mrs. Elizabeth R. Luce

Haverford, Pa., Nov. 6 (U.P.)—Mrs. Elizabeth Root Luce, 77, mother of Henry R. Luce, editor-in-chief of Time, Life and Fortune magazines, died today. Mrs. Luce was the widow of Dr. Henry Winters Luce, a missionary-educator in China, who died in 1943.

James R. Cooley

Hollywood, Nov. 6 (AP).—James R. Cooley, 68, who began acting 25 years ago, died yesterday. He played for many years on the New York stage before entering the movies, where he appeared in numerous pictures with Mary Pickford.

Textile Workers To Ask General 10-Cent Pay Hike

Boston, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, will demand a general wage increase of 10 cents an hour for its 90,000 members in the woolen and worsted industry, union President Emil Rieve announced today.

The increase would mean a minimum wage of $1.15 an hour and bring straight time average hourly etrnings in union mills to $1.41, Rieve said.

Delegates from cotton and rayon textile locals will meet here tomorrow to determine whether to reopen their contracts for wage increases. Rieve said representatives will attend from New England and tabe Middle Atlantic States.

Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr., To Talk at Jefferson

Ferdinand Kuhn, jr., State Department reporter of The Washington Post, will discuss "Can the United States Save the Peace?" at 8 p. m. today at the Thomas Jefferson Junior High School, S. Fillmore st. near Columbia pike, Arlington, Va.

Kuhn, who was a London correspondent for the New York Times and an OWI official before he joined The Post, will be the first speaker in a series of public forums to be sponsored by the Unitarian Church of Arlington. The public is invited, free of charge.

'Humanity's Report'

Melvin A. Glasser, assistant administrator in foreign operations of the American Red Cross, will speak at 11:15 a. m. today at the Washington Ethical Society, Friendship House, 619 D st. se. His topic is "Humanity's Report."

Gen. H. T. Dowling

Atlanta, Nov. 6 (AP).—General Henry Taylor Dowling, 99, former commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, died of pneumonia today. He was elected commander on his ninety-seventh birthday, replacing General William Houston of Texas, who died.

Dowling enlisted in the Confederate Army when he was 16 years old, serving in the First Florida Regiment under General Joseph E. Johnston.

Mrs. Evlyn B. Cock

Hampton, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Mrs. Evlyn Balmer Cock, 73, wife of Capt. Frederick Daniel Cock, oldest active member of the Virginia Pilots' Association, died at 1:15 a. m. today at her home, on Sunset Creek in Hampton.

27 Transfusions Provided By Bank for One Patient

Mrs. Florence Estella Shreve, 3968 Nichols ave. sw., who has received 27 blood transfusions since she was injured in a traffic accident in January, 1947, knows the value of the Red Cross blood bank.

Until the Blood Center at 1730 E st. nw. opened early in 1948, necessary transfusions for 24 operations which Mrs. Shreve has undergone to regain the use of her legs, had to be obtained by her husband from his coworkers at the Naval Research Laboratory. He is Richard Shreve, chairman of the blood recruitment unit for the NRL.

A total of 630 pints of blood were distributed during the past week by the District blood center, with 374 pints going to District hospitals and 256 to institutions in Maryland and Virginia.

The blood was distributed as follows:

District of Columbia—Casualty, 10; Children's 29; Columbia, 28; Doctors, 3; Emergency, 59; Episcopal, 2; Freedmen's 30; Gallinger, 14; Garfield, 10; Georgetown, 44; George Washington, 70; Homeopathic, 4; Mount Alto Veterans, 12; Providence, 15; Sibley, 26, and St. Elizabeths, 17.

T. A. Hostetler Is Dead at 84; Patent Lawyer

Theodore Allen Hostetler, 84, of 1711 Surrey lane, Foxhall Village, first solicitor of the United States Patent Office, died Friday night in a Washington nursing home after an illness of three years.

Mr. Hostetler

Coming to Washington in 1901, Mr. Hostetler joined the tax office as a fourth assistant examiner and worked up through all of the grades to principal examiner in 1915. He later became law examiner, a post he held from 1917 to 1922, when the office of solicitor was created.

In 1935 he retired to enter private practice as a patent attorney with an office in the National Press Building.

During the war he was recalled to the Alien Property Office, where he worked from 1942 until 1945.

He taught law at National University in 1927 and 1928. Active in church work, he was the president of the District of Columbia Sunday School Association and was a former Sunday School superintendent of the Ninth Street Christian Church.

In 1916 he was selected by the late Henry Ford to go to Europe on the Peace Ship. He was a member of the Federal Bar Association and the Patent Bar Association and the Modern Woodmen of America.

Born near Minier, Ill., he attended Valparaiso University in Indiana and the Chicago Law School.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Hostetler; a daughter, Mrs. John W. Thompson, 4919 Sedgwick st. nw.; a son, George Minier Hostetler of The Glen, Md., and a sister, Miss Kate Hostetler, Bloomington, Ill.

Services will be held Monday at 11 a. m. at Gawler's funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Burial will be in Potomac, Md.

Harry L. Morris

Hampton, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Harry L. Morris, 75, of Norfolk, died at 11:10 last night in Kecoughtan Veterans' Hospital. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American War.

Schools Hold Open House This Week

American Education week beginning today will be marked in local schools with open house programs sponsored by the District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Corresponding with the twenty-eighth annual national observance the week has as its theme "Strengthening the Foundations of Our Freedoms."

Each day of the week has been singled out for special emphasis. Today it is "Learning to Live Together"; Monday, "Improving the Educational Program"; Tuesday, "Securing Qualified Teachers"; Wednesday, "Providing Adequate Finance"; Thursday, "Safeguarding Our America"; Friday, "Promoting Health and Safety," and Saturday, "Developing Worthy Family Life."

Has Four Sponsors

Nationally the sponsors are the National Education Association; the American Legion, the United States Office of Education, and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Proclamations for the week have been issued by President Truman, the District Commissioners and Governor William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland.

President Truman declared: "This is a time which challenges our coming citizens to grow in stature and wisdom. It is they who for the future must strengthen the foundations of freedom at home and stand shoulder to shoulder with other freedom-loving peoples throughout the world.

"Let us pledge ourselves anew during this week to assure them the education and the opportunity which they need in this great endeavor."

Urged to Visit Schools

The Commissioners called on local residents "to visit their schools, to learn the progress and problems of modern education and to support the work of their teachers."

Governor Lane, declaring that residents of local communities are the owners of the public schools, urged them to study the schools by visiting classrooms during education week.

Open house will be held at Gordon Junior High School, 35th st. and Wisconsin ave. nw., Tuesday; Eckington Elementary School, Quincy pl. and 1st st. ne., Tuesday at 9 a. m.; Stuart Junior High School, 4th and E sts. ne., Wednesday; Macfarland Junior High School, Iowa ave. and Varnum st. nw., Wednesday; Woodridge Elementary School, Carlton and Central aves. ne. Wednesday, at 1 p. m.; W. B. Powell Elementary School, 13th and Upshur sts. nw., Langley Junior High School, 1st. and T sts. ne., Tuesday at 2:30 p. m.

Hospital Unit Will Meet Tomorrow

The eighth annual conference of the Maryland-District of Columbia Hospital Association will be held here Monday and Tuesday, with approximately 500 hospital administrators and others in attendance.

Joseph G. Norby, of Milwaukee, president of the American Hospital Association, is scheduled to address the delegates at luncheon, Monday, at Hotel Statler, conference headquarters. The Rev. Edmond A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, will be principal speaker at a dinner Monday night.

Section meetings will be held Monday morning for hospital purchasing agents, dieticians, medical technologists and medical social workers. On Tuesday afternoon there will be section meetings for hospital accountants, executive housekeepers, pharmacists and medical record librarians. Luncheon speaker Tuesday will be William G. Torpey, Ph. D., personnel consultant with the Navy Department here.

J. G. Capossela, administrator at Emergency Hospital, is association president. He will be succeeded by Benjamin W. Wright, superintendent of Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, Md., who will be installed at Monday's dinner.

Milton S. Hodges

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 6.—Services will be held in Franklin, Pendleton County, Sunday for Milton Stanley Hodges, 72, former clerk of the West Virginia State Senate and a prominent political figure. He died in a hospital in Franklin Thursday after a long illness.

He was clerk of the State Senate in 1929, 1930 and 1931, and was clerk of the House of Delegates during the sessions of 1921, 1925 and 1927. He was regarded as one of the State's outstanding authorities on parliamentary procedure.

A Washington Landmark
Rock Creek Cemetery
NON-SECTARIAN NON-SPECULATIVE

A family cemetery plot is a matter which too often is put off until a future time, but which must, inevitably, be considered. Consideration of Rock Creek Cemetery will be to your advantage since Rock Creek is not a commercial cemetery—but rather a beautifully maintained church yard.

Founded many years ago, it has increasingly become a refuge for the bereaved; however, many beautiful sites and lots are still available in the newly developed area pictured here.

You are a most welcome visitor to its lovely grounds. No doubt you will will be impressed by the beautiful memorials, park-like atmosphere, breath-taking landscaping, and will carry away with you an enduring memory of tranquillity, inspirational devotion to loved ones, and ageless beauty.

Members of our staff will gladly conduct you on a tour of the grounds and the many renowned memorials.

2000 Open County Entrance to D. C.

Despite rain that cut ceremonies short, approximately 2000 citizens of Prince Georges County last night formally opened their first "beautified" entrance to the District at Queens Chapel rd. and Eastern ave.

Postponed two weeks ago because of rain, last night's celebration got under way at 6:30 o'clock with a concert by the Washington Gas Light Co. Band. Speeches started at 7:30, and most of the program had been concluded when hard rain struck shortly after 8 o'clock, canceling the address of Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer.

Then, with rain falling steadily, the skies were lit up for miles around with a brilliant, 15-minute fireworks display while most of the crowd darted for cover in automobiles and nearby buildings. A few hardy souls watched from under umbrellas as flags and gay bunting decorating the brightly lighted shopping center drooped in the wet.

Edgar A. Merkle, chairman of the county commissioners' advisory board, described the road building project and pointed out that $74,000 was spent on the La Salle rd. connection with Chillum rd.

State Senator L. Harold Sothoron said eight similar projects at county entrances to the District are planned as part of a 10-year improvement program begun in 1946.

De La Salle College was awarded a certificate of appreciation by the county commissioners for giving the land that made the beautification project possible. A similar award went to the Citizens Bank of Riverdale for constructing its new Avondale branch in support of the area improvement.

Rumors Spiked

No Shakeup In Cabinet Imminent

President Truman will make no changes in his Cabinet at least until after his Florida vacation, despite the current rash of speculation that such changes are imminent, it was learned last night.

The President received three members of his Cabinet at his White House desk yesterday, and all ran the gauntlet of reporters' questions as to whether they planned to resign. One, James Forrestal, Secretary of Defense, jokingly hinted to cameramen that he might not remain in the Cabinet after January. The White House had no official comment on reports of impending changes.

While undoubtedly there will be some changes ultimately in the Cabinet, the President harbors no vindictiveness toward those of his Cabinet Secretaries who failed to campaign heartily for him, and has no plans for ousting any of them, according to one of the President's most trusted advisers. It is "much too early" for speculation on changes, this source said, adding that the President might let matters run their course for weeks until such of his Secretaries as had personal reasons for wanting to leave took such action voluntarily.

Charles G. Ross, White House press secretary, had no comment on the latest published rumor—that Fred M. Vinson, Chief Justice of the United States, might become Secretary of State. He said he would not comment on this or any other report of allegedly impending changes.

Forrestal said the President had had his resignation ever since he took his present post, and that he has "no intention of reiterating it." Earlier, Forrestal, asked to pose for cameramen, remarked that they must have enough shots of him, whereupon a photographer said:

"Yes, but we're starting another four years, you know."

"Yes, but not for me," remarked the Defense Secretary. He said he had discussed world affairs and the military situation with Mr. Truman.

Charles Sawyer, Secretary of Commerce, said "not a word" was said between him and the President about resignation. John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, the third Cabinet officer at the White House yesterday, is a close personal friend of the President and can remain in his post as long as he likes, according to the best available information.

Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, also saw the President for a "general discussion" yesterday, but declined comment on the possibility of Cabinet changes. Asked about new appointments in general, he said Mr. Truman has had no opportunity to think about them.

Another White House caller today, Richard P. Patterson, Ambassador to Guatemala, said of Mr. Truman:

"After his one-man successful political battle, he still has the vitality of an Olympic athlete and looks like one."

The President leaves by air at 9 today for his vacation at Key West, Fla., stopping off en route at New Bern, N. C., this morning to atttend church services. Although the Key West trip is billed as a vacation for Mr. Truman after his strenuous campaigning—and undoubtedly will be—the President will keep in close daily touch with Washington, as is his habit.

Reshuffle to Include Wallgren Discussed

A cabinet switch to make room for President Truman's close personal friend, Mon C. Wallgren of Washington has been discussed, it was learned last night.

An official confirmed that Wallgren, defeated for reelection last Tuesday, has been invited to join the President in Key West.

The reported shuffe would involve resignation of Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, his replacement by Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug, and appointment of Wallgren as Secretary of Interior.

Baptist Missions Director To Take Maryland Pulpit

The Rev. Frank K. Brasington has resigned as director of the D. C. Baptist Convention Missions Department.

Brasington

Mr. Brasington will become pastor of Silver Spring Baptist Church after his resignation becomes effective December 12. He will succeed the Rev. J. Wesley Loftis, who resigned to become minister of Palma Ceia Baptist Church, Tampa, Fla.

Before joining the missions department here in 1947, Mr. Brasington was an Army chaplain and served in the Philippines and New Guinea. He is a graduate of Maryland State Techers' College, Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, and formerly held pulpits in Catonsville and Princess Anne, Md.

White House Aide Denies Pessimism On Vote Outcome

Charles G. Ross, White House press secretary, says it is "absolutely false" to say that he never believed President Truman had a chance of being elected.

Ross yesterday made public this telegram to Roy Alexander, executive editor, Time magazine, New York City:

"Time in its current issue says says that 'Ross . . . never really believed that his boss had a chance of election.' This statement is absolutely false, as reporters who cover the White House can testify.

"Time also persists in calling me 'Old Charlie Ross." It happens that I will be 63 years old in a few days. So what? Anyway, I am not 'tired.' Come down to Washington and learn the facts of life."

Reds Attack American Divorce Laws in U. N.

Paris, Nov. 6 (AP).—Russia demanded today that the United Nations formally recognize divorce.

Black-bearded Alexei Pavlov, Soviet delegate to the Assembly's Social Committee, attacked what he called "unequal and improper marriage and divorce laws in the United States." He sought to amend Article 14 of a draft declaration of human rights to read:

"Men and women shall enjoy equal rights both during marriage and when divorced."

Latin-American and other delegates of predominantly Catholic countries opposed any mention of divorce in the 28-article declaration. The committee's article-by-article debate precedes Assembly approval of the declaration, the first "bill of human rights" in world history.

The committee adjourned debate on marriage and divorce until Monday without action.

The Soviet delegate loudly attacked what he called "terrible inequality in the United States."

"In the State of Georgia," he exclaimed, "a wife is not even recognized as a legal person—she is only part of the male—part of the husband's personality.

"The marriage of white persons and Negroes is prevented by law in America. In fact, there are prison sentences of from one to 10 years for such marriages."

Russia, he said, had "always fought for equality of men and women in marriage."

U. N. Child Aid Fund Drive Fails

Lake Success, Nov. 6 (NYHT.).—The lavishly ballyhooed drive for funds by the American Overseas Aid-United Nations Appeal for Children obtained only $1,235,391 for U N. children's work, while 25 ostensibly cooperating private agencies gleaned $16,524,724 in 1948 campaigning for gifts from Americans, it was disclosed today.

In a report to AOA directors, Lee Marshall, national chairman, blamed both the agencies and the State Department for failure to reach a 60 million-dollar goal to aid 230 million hungry children around the world. Of that goal, 20 million dollars was to have gone to the U. N.'s International Children's Emergency Fund, now carrying on feeding and medical activities in Europe and Asia.

Of the $18,848,260 listed by Marshall as collected by the American campaign and its associated agencies, expenses took $1,088,145. The agencies collected $11,490,000 for projects in foreign countries in individual drives outside the joint effort; they collected $3,034,566 more for projects approved by the AOA allocation committee as aid to children, and the rest they kept as their share of the joint campaign.

Board chairman of the Continental Baking Co. and former deputy war food administrator, Marshall said he took the AOA post in September 1947 on invitation of committees representing the agencies and the State Department.

Important disappointments, Marshall said, included "(a) the lack of any real federation among the voluntary agencies; (b) a lack of application of the spirit of unity between UNAC and the voluntary agencies; (c) an absence of sustained assistance on the part of the Government, of which we had been assured, and (d) a lack of realization of promises we had from several national and international organizations."

Priest Braves Sea For Aid to Isle Cut Off by Strike

Dublin, Eire, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Father Thomas Varley, parish priest of stricken Aran Island, braved 12 miles of raging seas in a fishing smack last night and today received a promise of aid for his people.

The food supplies of 1000 inhabitants of the island are desperately low because of a strike by the crew of the ship that normally supplies them, the steamer Dun Aengus. A Galaway fisherman volunteered to take 200 tons of foodstuffs to the three islands of Aran Sunday.

The 10 striking sailors of the Dun Aengus, after first agreeing on a single mercy run, decided late tonight to reject the priest's appeal and stand fast on their demand for higher wages.

Henry Ford's Grandson Is Father of Daughter

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 6 (AP).—A daughter was born today to Mr. and Mrs. William C. Ford.

The father is a grandson of the late Henry Ford. The mother is the former Martha Firestone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Firestone, jr., of Akron, Ohio. Ford is a senior student at Yale University.

Piccard Docks at Dakar, Abandons Sea Dives

Dakar, French West Africa, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Prof. August Piccard returned here today after giving up his efforts to explore the ocean depths off Africa and to set a new deep-sea diving record this year.

His expedition ship Scaldis put into port and a spokesman said that the bathyscape would be stored ashore next week, pending Piccard's decision on its future.

the new RCA Victor Berkshire
Radio-Television-Phonograph

The Breakfront, illustrated above, is one of five striking models in RCA Victor's new Berkshire series so glowingly praised by Dr. Koussevitzky. There's engineering wizardry in the 30-tube AM-FM-Shortwave radio, the automatic phonograph and in the large-screen (15x20 in.) television. The Breakfront is an authentic reproduction of an 18th century piece, styled by William Millington, eminent designer of the Baker Furniture Company . . . in solid mahogany, $4100.

CONVENIENT TERMS

The RCA Victor Berkshire series includes such other fine models as the Contemporary, the Modern, the Secretary, the Regency and the Clubman television (for special custom installation). Illustrated literature on the series is available on request.

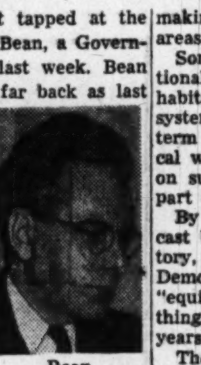
Fame Really Grins at Bean, Who Put His Forecast in Book

By Frederick Gutheim



Bean

Fame of a sort tapped at the door of Louis H. Bean, a Government economist, last week. Bean had predicted as far back as last April that the Democrats not only would retain the Presidency in 1948 but would recapture control of Congress as well.

Bean was not the only economist or forecaster in the Nation to predict accurately. However, his was apparently the only such forecast that was published nationally—and in a book that he dared to entitle "How to Predict Elections" (Knopf, New York). And now the attention that might be expected—particularly in view of the dismal showing of the big polls—is beginning to come his way.

Contrived 'Bean Poll'

Bean has been an economist in the Department of Agriculture since the days of Calvin Coolidge. He makes his living forecasting the price of potatoes and other mundane events in an uncertain economy. To relax after a hard day with the corn-hog cycle, he contrived what he calls "the Bean poll."

Inner circles at the Capital began listening carefully to the potato crop forecaster about September 1936, when he made the outlandish prediction that President Roosevelt would carry every State except Maine, Vermont and Pennsylvania and went so far as to predict a Democratic popular vote of 60 per cent (the Gallup Poll said 52.7 per cent).

Roosevelt did carry every State except Maine and Vermont, making Bean wrong on Pennsylvania only, and his popular vote was 60.2 per cent. Later Bean spotted the Democratic decline in the House in 1938 and forecast the 1940 and 1944 popular votes within 1 per cent.

Though he calls himself—or his system—the "Bean poll," Bean does not conduct a poll. His forecasts are not based on a sampling of voters to find out what they say or think they will do when they enter the election booth. Instead, his is a complex system of statistical correlations, based on long-term trends and on what he is convinced are inherent factors making for stability over large areas of the electorate.

Some of these factors are national origin, religion, past voting habits and sectional attitudes. His system takes into account long-term voting trends, or "the political wave." In fact, statistical data on such factors comprise a large part of his book.

By such means he not only forecast Wednesday's Democratic victory, but also predicted that the Democrats—or what he calls their "equivalents"—will be running things in Washington for a dozen years or more.

The 54-year-old economist, who was born in Russia and came here at the age of 10, has a quick, quiet voice and a dry wit in the professional manner. In fact, the "Bean Poll, Inc.," was organized to entertain a meeting of the American Statistical Association. It was based whimsically on the votes in the home counties of six former presidential and vice presidential candidates — Roosevelt, Willkie, Wallace, McNary, Hoover and Garner. Bean showed this poll had as small a margin of error (2.5 per cent) as that of the most elaborate opinion polls.

While he pokes fun at the pollsters, Bean takes them seriously, and his own election forecasting method uses their findings. The spectacular upset of political predictions won't invalidate the polls, he says, adding that polls have been taken in the United States since 1866, and they get more accurate all the time.

"Elections are the severest test of polls," Bean said. "There you want them to catch a single vote, if necessary. We should not forget the generally quite accurate record of polls in recent years. In Europe polls have been accurate despite the difficulties imposed by a multitude of parties. The recent Swedish elections were accurately predicted. There may be good reasons why the polls were so far off this year, but it will take some time and more information than we now have to determine what they are."

Young Slayer Is Committed To Hospital

Herbert D. Alexander, young Navy veteran who admittedly strangled his wife and 18-month-old daughter October 22 in their Alexandria apartment, was committed yesterday to a Virginia State mental institution for "observation and treatment."

The commitment was ordered by Alexandria Police Court Judge James R. Duncan after he received an opinion from three doctors that young Alexander was "insane at the present time and apparently at the time of the alleged offense." Alexander, 23, will be sent to the Southwest State Hospital for the criminally insane at Marion, Va.

Since the medical report pronounced Alexander insane at the time of the twin killings, he will not stand trial for the murders even though he eventually may be released from the mental hospital, court attaches said. He will be eligible for release "if and when he is adjudged of sound mind." The Alexanders lived at 3908 Elbert ave., Alexandria.

No Trace Found of Bomber

Westover Air Force Base, Mass., Nov. 6 (AP).—An air search by Navy, Coast Guard and Air Force planes today failed to spot any trace of a two-engine B-25 bomber from Bolling Air Force Base, Washington, D. C., feared lost with its crew of six men near Argentia, Newfoundland.

Rescue planes which took off at dawn radioed "no success" as they covered an area bordering the Argentia landing field where the bomber vanished in heavy weather Friday.

Names Are Disclosed By the Air Force

Names of five Greater Washington men, missing since Friday afternoon aboard a Bolling Air Force Base bomber over southern Newfoundland, was disclosed yesterday by the Air Force.

Capt. William J. Lookadoo, public information officer at Bolling Air Force Base, disclosed names of those aboard the twin-engine bomber following notification of next of kin. They are:

Capt. Raymond F. Meyer, jr., 26, of 605 Washington blvd., District Heights, Md. Captain Meyer, pilot of the ship, is assistant operations officer at Bolling. He is married and the father of a year-old son.

Capt. Matthew B. Liles, jr., 27, 4302 3d st. se., a member of the Airways and Air Communications branch of the Military Air Transport Service. Captain Liles is married and has an infant daughter.

First Lieut. Peter R. LaForce, 28, 4693 Homer ave., Suitland, Md. A bridegroom of two months, Lieutenant LaForce is also attached to the Airways and Air Communications Service.

Army Lieut. Col. Eugene S. Hicker, 47, 936 N. Kenmore st., Arlington. Colonel Hicker, married and father of a 16-year-old son, is connected with the National Board for Promotion of Rifle Practice.

T/Sergt. Paul E. Mauzy, 27, an aerial engineer stationed at Bolling Air Force Base. Sergeant Mauzy's wife and child live in Calhoun, Ky.

VD Campaign Is Paying Off, Information Check Shows

The District Health Department took time out yesterday from its campaign against venereal diseases to take stock of the effectiveness of its educational program.

It concluded that about four of every five adults in the Washington area had been reached by the 1948 campaign to inform the public about syphillis and gonorrhea.

In addition to such estimates indicating that the Washington public has become conscious of the drive, the Health Department also cited other substantiating figures:

A 44 per cent increase in applications for venereal disease examinations at Health Department clinics during the first three months of the drive, over the number recorded in three months before the drive.

Phone Calls Up 200 Per Cent

An increase of about 200 per cent in telephone calls for information to MEtropolitan 4600, the special VD information number, now permanently established.

Some 1083 patients treated for syphilis and gonorrhea by private physicians in three months, as compared with 396 for the entire year of 1947.

In order to determine how well the VD drive was going over, a personal contact survey was conducted by Washington Surveys, a public opinion sampling group, as a public service.

Of 595 persons asked whether they remembered any type of disease campaigns during the past few months, some 50 per cent mentioned the venereal disease campaign, while almost as many recalled the earlier TB chest X-ray drive.

Of those who had read or heard of the campaign and were asked what it was about, most replied it concerned how VD can be cured—what the treatment consists of, what it costs and where to get treatment.

Remember Need, Place

The second largest group said the need for a check-up and where to get one were the points they remembered.

The Health Department's venereal disease bureau also cited favorable comments by private physicians, quoting one as saying that the publicity program is a "big help" to him in his practice.

"No longer does anybody object to being examined for venereal disease and many have come in just to make sure," said this doctor. "I can now examine my patients for gonorrhea and syphilis without the necessity of being a superdiplomat as was formerly the case."

This week's radio drama on VD, to be presented on several Washington stations, beginning today and ending Saturday, will be "The Telephone Call," with Roger Pryor, stage, screen and radio actor, in the leading role.

Government Analyst, Guard To Enter Retirement Soon

A reporter and a friend of reporters are among persons whose retirement after a total of 58 years' service to the Federal Government was announced yesterday.

They are Harry W. Porter, agricultural analyst in the Division of Field Studies and Training, Extension Service, Department of Agriculture, and Walter G. St. Clair, a Commerce Department guard.

Porter was honored yesterday at a USDA Extension Service luncheon in honor of 43 years' service with the department.

He has worked in the Forest Service, Dairy Division and Bureau of Animal Husbandry. He began working with statistical reports with the Extension Service in 1922.

He was commended yesterday by Meredith C. Wilson, chief of the Division of Field Studies and Training, for his work in assembling reports on a comparative basis for distribution to many extension agencies.

To Leave District

Porter lives at 830 Madison st. nw., but plans to join his sister in Waukesha, Wis., early next year.

St. Clair, who will finish his job December 31 having reached the mandatory retirement age of 79, is widely known among the Washington Newspaper Fraternity.

As Commerce Department Building guard, he is in charge of parking at least 25 reporters' automobiles daily—in a space reserved for only 12.

By keeping tab on vacancies along 15th st. and by moving their cars at regular intervals, he has ingratiated many a forgetful newspaperman during his 15 years' service.

He lives at 4905 7th st. nw., and has two sons, Walter, jr., and Elmore F. St. Clair, both employed by the Department of Agriculture.

Cana Conference Listed Today at Gonzaga School

Czech Reds Move To Tighten Party

I (U.P.).—The Czech Communist Party acted today to transform itself into a tightly knit "elite" organization, amid growing indications of a serious split in the party's high command.

Foreign observers here believed that there would be a drastic shake-up within 10 days of the party's top leaders, possibly including Premier Antonin Zapotocky.

A lengthy communique published today by the Communist newspaper Rude Pravo announced that in the future, new members would be taken into the party only after a long waiting period, while many present members would be moved back to "candidate" status.

The waiting period for new members was set at one year for factory and farm workers, and two years for all others.

The communique said that each of the thousands of members who have joined the party since the February coup d'etat would be strictly reexamined—an apparent indication of dissatisfaction with the members added in the high-pressure recruiting campaign ordered in February.

Former Social Democrats in the party would be regarded as "pre-February members"—indicating that few, if any, would be demoted.

Announcement of the new membership policy sharpened interest in next week's meeting of the party's central committee, which was expected to decree sweeping policy changes and probably to name a new Cabinet to carry them out.

The battle for party leadership also was expected to break into the open at the committee session.

of a century, charged George L. Gregg, a candidate for first vice president, with having accused him of "juggling committee assignments to favor Baxter Smith, my son-in-law."

Babp, who declared that never in his 25 years service had he taken part in an election campaign other than for his own secretaryship, asserted that he "seriously objected to being charged with forgery of public records." He then demanded and received the vote of confidence. It was unanimous.

Harry N. Stull, delegate from the Stanton Park Association and former Federation president, interjected that he "had his ear to the ground" throughout the campaign and had heard no charges against either Smith or Babp. He then asked that the meeting proceed with the election.

In the balloting for first vice president, Smith was elected over Gregg by 67 votes to 60.

Dr M. Virginia O'Neil of the Mount Pleasant Association polled 71 votes aganst 57 for Mrs. Franklin G. Sartwell of the Metropolis View association who is pub ic relations counsel fol the association.

Smith

Babp

Babp, who was unopposed for his twenty-sixth term as secretary, received an unanimous vote by acclamation.

Absher, who was nominated from the floor as a write-in candidate, was elected treasurer over Mrs. Edward B. Morris of the Fort Davis group in the night's closest contest by a 65 to 60 edge.

Elected to the executive board were Donnelly, Mrs. Morris, Stull, J. B. Dickman of North Cleveland Park, J. S. Gorrell of Burleith, Thomas E. Lodge of American University Park, Benjamin Striner of Pharmaceutical, John L. C. Sullivan of Mid-City, Harry S. Wender of Southwest and Clifford H. Newell of Arkansas Avenue, former Federation president.

The Federation voted for the appointment of a committee to study the conflict between the District Recreation Board and the National Park Service for control of 62 recreation areas now under District control. The committee, whose members were not named last night, will submit a brief to the Attorney General on the federation's stand supporting the recreation board, as previously announced

Dr. O'Neil

The action was taken after Harry S. Wender, delegate from the Southwest Association and recreation board chairman, told the meeting that if a recent decision of the Interior Department solicitor is upheld by the Attorney General, control of these areas will pass to the National Park Service. He pointed out that these areas were purchased and developed with District funds.

CRUSADE IN EUROPE

Gen. Eisenhower's Own Story: Installment One—Pearl Harbor

Eisenhower and his then chief, General Marshall, in a jocular moment during the war

A consultation with Mark Clark in Italy, on his way to England

Ike watches armored force maneuvers in England in the early spring of 1944

By Dwight D. Eisenhower

(This is a condensed serialization of Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe." It contains highlights of the book to be published November 22, 1948, by Doubleday & Co. Copyrighted by Doubleday & Co., Inc.)

IN THE Allied headquarters at Reims, Field Marshal Jodl signed the instrument of German surrender on May 7, 1945. At midnight of the next day there ended, in Europe, a conflict that had been raging since September 1, 1939.

Between these two dates millions of Europeans had been killed. All Europe west of the Rhine had, with minor exceptions, lived for more than four years under the domination of an occupying army. Free institutions and free speech had disappeared. Economies were broken and industry prostrated.

In Germany itself, after years of seeming invincibility, a carpet of destruction and desolation had spread over the land. Her bridges were down, her cities in ruins and her great industrial capacity practically paralyzed. Great Britain had exhausted herself economically and financially to carry on her part of the war; the nation was almost entirely mobilized, with everybody of useful age, men and women alike, either in the armed forces or engaged in some type of production for war. Russian industry west of the Volga had been almost obliterated.

America had not been spared: by VJ-Day in the Pacific, 322,188 of her youth had been lost in battle or had died in the service and approximately 700,000 more had been wounded. The nation had poured forth resources in unstinted measure not only to support her own armies and navies and air forces but also to give her allies equipment and weapons with which to operate effectively against the common enemy.

Each of the Allies had, according to its means, contributed to the common cause but America had stood preeminent as the arsenal of democracy. We were the nation which, from the war's beginning to its end, had achieved the greatest transformation from almost complete military weakness to astounding strength and effectiveness.

A Start From Zero

EUROPE had been at war for a full year before America became alarmed over its pitifully inadequate defenses. When the Nation began, in 1939, first steps toward strengthening its military establishment, it started from a position as close to zero as a great nation could conceivably have allowed itself to sink.

Thereafter, in the space of three and one-half years, the United States produced the fighting machine that played an indispensable role in beating Germany to its knees, even while our country, almost single-handed, was conducting a decisive war against the Japanese Empire.

The revolutionary transformation of America was not achieved overnight; the fact that it was ever achieved at all was due to the existence of staunch allies and our own distance from the scene of combat. At the outset none of us could foresee the end of the struggle; few of us saw eye to eye on what was demanded of us as individuals and as a nation; but each began, step by step, to learn and to perform his allotted task.

America's transformation, in three years, from a situation of appalling danger to unparalleled might in battle was one of the two miracles that brought Jodl to our headquarters to surrender on May 7, 1945. The other was the development, over the same period, of near perfection in allied conduct of war operations.

History testifies to the ineptitude of coalitions in waging war. Allied failures have been so numerous and their inexcusable blunders so common that professional soldiers had long discounted the possibility of effective allied action unless available resources were so great as to assure victory by inundation. Even Napoleon's reputation as a brilliant military leader suffered when students in staff colleges came to realize that he always fought against coalitions—and therefore against divided counsels and diverse political, economic, and military interests.

There was no precedent to follow, no chart by which to steer. Where nations previously had been successful in concert against a common foe, one member of the coalition had usually been so strong as to be the dominating partner. Now it was necessary to produce effective unity out of concessions voluntarily made.

The true history of the war, and more especially the history of the Operations Torch and Overlord, in the Mediterranean and northwest Europe, is the story of a unity produced on the basis of this voluntary cooperation. Differences there were, differences among strong men representing strong and proud peoples, but these paled into insignificance alongside the miracle of achievement represented in the shoulder-to-shoulder march of the Allies to complete victory in the West.

> General Eisenhower was so little known as late as the fall of 1941, he relates in this first installment, that a newspaper photographer identified him in a picture caption as "Lieut. Col. D. D. Ersenbeing."
> Who's Who in America did not mention him until the 1942-43 edition. And the Pentagon's official library has only six pictures of him made prior to 1941.

On the day the war began, in 1939, I was in the Philippines, nearing completion of four years' duty as senior military assistant to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who had been charged with building and training an independent Filipino military establishment.

When my wife, my son John, and I left Manila in December, General MacArthur saw us off at the pier. It was the last time I was to see him until my postwar visit, as Chief of Staff, to his Tokyo headquarters. We talked of the gloominess of world prospects, but our foreboding turned toward Europe—not Asia.

Assigned to Third Army

IN JUNE, 1941, I was assigned to Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger's Third Army as his chief of staff at San Antonio headquarters. His Third Army was directed to concentrate in Louisiana for a great maneuver, with Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear's Second Army as its opponent. Not one of our officers on the active list had commanded a unit as large as a division in the First World War. Like a vast laboratory experiment, the maneuvers would prove the worth of ideas, men, weapons, and equipment. More than 270,000 men—the largest army ever gathered in the United States for a single tactical operation—were assembled by General Krueger that September. Moving out of Second Army camps at the same time were another 130,000.

During this time I had my first important introduction to the press camera, which, since the days of Brady, has been a prominent feature of the American military scene. In the fall of 1941, however, flash bulbs were a fairly novel element in my daily life and I was only an unknown face to the men who used them. During the critique at Camp Polk a group shot was made of General Krueger, Maj. E. M. Bolden, a British military observer, and me; in the caption my two companions were correctly identified, but I appeared as "Lieut. Col. D. D. Ersenbeing"—at least the initials were right.

At the end of the maneuvers I was promoted to the temporary grade of brigadier general.

Although the Washington negotiations with the Japanese ambassadors were nearing their dramatic climax at the beginning of December, a relaxation of tenseness among the civilian population was reflected within the Army. It seemed that the Japanese bluff had been called and war, at least temporarily, averted in the Pacific.

On the Russian front the Germans had been stopped before Leningrad, Moscow, and Sevastopol. My daily paper, on December 4, editorialized that it was now evident the Japanese had no desire for war with the United States. A columnist a few days later reported that in Washington there was a strong feeling that the crisis in the Pacific had been postponed, although a week earlier betting odds in Washington circles had been 10 to 1 on immediate war.

On the afternoon of December 7 at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., tired out from the long and exhausting staff work of the maneuvers and their aftermath, I went to bed with orders that under no circumstances was I to be disturbed. My dreams were of a two weeks' leave I was going to take, during which my wife and I were going to West Point to spend Christmas with our plebe son, John. But even dreams like this—and my strict orders—could be shattered with impunity by the aide who brought the news that we were at war.

Within an hour of the Pearl Harbor attack orders began pouring into Third Army Headquarters from the War Department. There were orders for the immediate transfer of antiaircraft units to the West Coast, where the terrified citizens hourly detected phantom bombers in the sky; orders for the establishment of antisabotage measures; orders for careful guarding of industrial plants; orders for reconnaissance along our Southern border to prevent the entrance of spies; and orders to insure the safety of ports along the Gulf of Mexico.

There were orders for rushing heavy bodies of troops to the West in anticipation of any attacks the Japanese might contemplate. In turn General Krueger's headquarters had to send out instructions to a hundred stations as rapidly as they could be prepared and checked. It was a period of intense activity.

Red Tape Ignored

IMMEDIACY of movement was the keynote. The normal channels of administration were abandoned; the chain of command was compressed at meetings where all echelons got their instructions in a single briefing; the slow and methodical process of drawing up detailed movement orders that specified to the last jot of equipment what should be taken with the troops, how it should be crated and marked, was ignored. A single telephone call would start an infantry unit across the continent; troops and equipment entrained with nothing in writing to show by what authority they moved. Guns were loaded on flatcars, if flatcars were available; on gondolas if they could be had; in freight cars if nothing else was at hand. The men traveled in de luxe Pullmans, in troop sleepers, in modern coaches, and in day cars that had been obsolete and sidetracked in the yards for a generation and were now drafted for emergency troop movements.

Ordered to Washington

I HAD five days of this. Early in the morning of December 12 the telephone connecting us directly to the War Department in Washington began to jangle. I answered and someone inquired, "Is that you, Ike?"

"Yes."

"The Chief says for you to hop a plane and get up here right away. Tell your boss that formal orders will come through later." The "Chief" was General Marshall, and the man at the other end of the line was Col. Walter Bedell Smith, who was later to become my close friend and chief of staff throughout the European operations.

This message was a hard blow. During the First World War every one of my frantic efforts to get to the scene of action had been defeated — for reasons which had no validity to me except that they all boiled down to "War Department orders." I hoped in any new war to stay with troops. Being ordered to a city where I had already served a total of eight years would mean, I thought, a virtual repetition of my experience in World War I. Heavy-hearted, I telephoned my wife to pack a bag, and within the hour I was headed for the War Department.

Almost at the day of Pearl Harbor, General Eisenhower was plunged into the confusion of war-time Washington and the reorganization of the War Department. This was global war, and the United States had little to fight it with except deficits in men, machines and munitions.

The war in the Pacific took first priority at that time. General Eisenhower's first assignment from the Chief of Staff was to work out a plan to salvage as much as he could in the western Pacific. This is described in the next installment of "Crusade in Europe," which will be published in this newspaper tomorrow.

Hungary's Reds 'Stuck' With Own Land Reforms

By Theodore H. White

BUDAPEST, Nov. 6.—Sar-Folok could be the name of any Hungarian village that you find behind a bend in the road after you leave the new paved highway.

From a distance, all the villages are alike, with dust rising from the wheels of the horse-drawn carts, the poplars and chestnuts lining the street, the church spires pointing to the sky.

You enter Sar-Folok and there is the manor house of the landlord, still graceful and pleasant, its lawn screened from the tenant blocks by shade trees. But the landlord has fled and the manor house is the cooperative's headquarters now.

There are the tenant blocks; rows of houses facing a square courtyard where white geese cackle and pigs wallow. Each bedroom shelters a family, and three or four families use the same kitchen, and the odors work into everything.

Down the street are the houses of the comfortable peasants just as they were before the war—three or four room houses roofed with tile, a stable in the rear and five or six animals munching in their stalls.

It is in Sar-Folok that all the problems of Hungary are drawn to fine focus; and it is the peasants of Sar-Folok who this fall are causing the brows of Communist leaders to furrow in perplexity.

Harvest Was Kind

IT IS not that things are going badly in Sar-Folok. Things are going better than at any time since 1944. Sar-Folok had rain last summer, the crops grew well, the animals that were eaten by foraging troops three years ago have been replaced.

Corn is stacked in almost every bin, long strings of shining red peppers are hanging out to dry, the potatoes are piled in heaps, and even after the government took its heavy quota, there was more flour left than there has been for quite a time.

Some people are doing worse in Sar-Folok than before the war, and some are doing a lot better. The landlord has gone and cannot speak his bitterness. The well-to-do farmer, whom the government calls a "kulak," is eating better than he ate last year but not quite as well as he did before the war. The poor peasants, however, the men who divided the landlord's acres—most of them are doing much better than ever before in their lives.

Six hundred thousand peasant families, a third of the nation, got land in the spring of 1945 when the Russians put the heat on the local Communist Party to cut up the big estates. In Sar-Folok the Communist organizers called the peasants together in the manor park and told them to make a chart of the landlord's acres. They told them to list the names of those among them who had no land or not enough, and then to elect a committee to divide the land according to the mouths in each family.

At first they did not believe the organizers, but they were told over and over again that the land was really theirs. They divided it that very week. For three years they have worked it; they think now it is theirs to do with as they wish forever.

Salesmanship in Reverse

IT IS this simple peasant belief that any man can do as he wants with the land he tills and the crops he raises that vexes the Communists now. They sold the peasant the idea three years ago, and this fall they must begin to unsell it.

Up to now, the Communist Party has fought first to get itself accepted by the peasantry, and second to make the peasants raise enough to keep the country from starving. These two goals have been achieved and the party leadership wants to move on.

It has directed that, beginning this fall, the peasant must learn to think of the comfortable "kulak" not as a model but as an enemy to be destroyed. He must be made to realize that the five to ten acres he received in the land reform are not his to use as he wishes; that he must fit into a socialist society first through "producers' cooperatives" and eventually through "collectives."

The campaign to change the peasants' mind is recognized by party members as the toughest domestic problem in the years ahead. "The thing we do not want to do is to use force on them," one member told me. "If it comes to force, then we have failed."

The land reform of 1945 is the one Communist reform which even many enemies of the state will put on the credit side of its ledger. Prewar Hungary was a country where the pressure of population on the land was almost Asiatic.

Of some 4,500,000 peasants, only 1,500,000 could live on what their own land yielded. The rest hired out as part-time workers for the landlords, lived as share croppers or drifted about as seasonal agricultural hands. The landed aristocracy in some cases held baronial estates that swept over tens of thousands of acres.

The peasants would gladly call quits to the process of land reform right now. They like it the way it is. But the Communist Party feels that the division was only the beginning of an experiment. It feels that now is the time to push ahead in its campaign for cooperatives, because the peasant has a good year under his belt and is strong enough to stand a bit of shoving.

The Almighty Graph

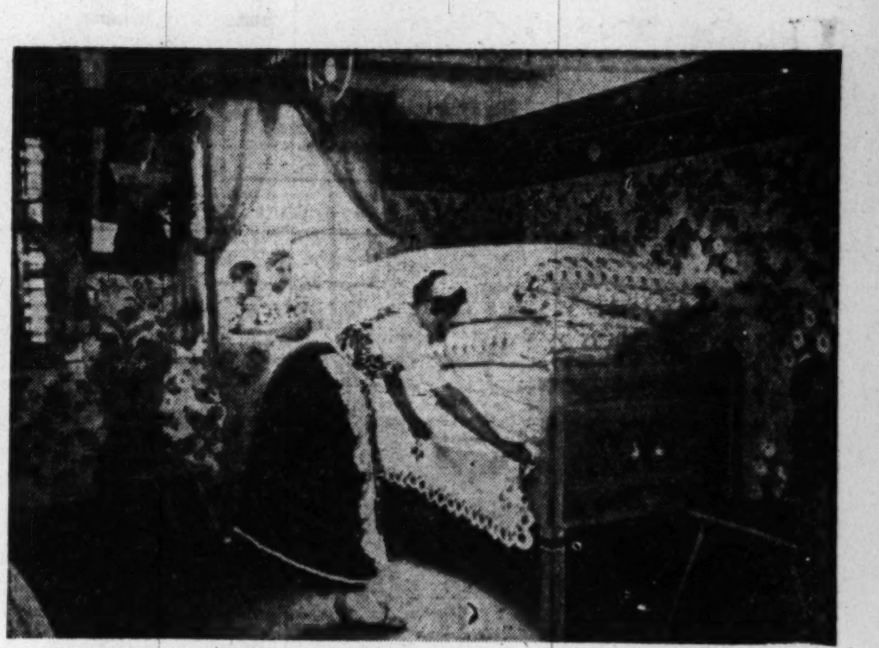
THREE sets of reasons underlie the Communist drive. The first set is an ideological compulsion. There is no room in a Communist economy for a little peasant who produces his own food and sells his surplus where and how he wants.

A Communist economy must control every process of production from source to consumer, and the little peasant cannot be allowed free decisions that might upset graphs in planning bureaus.

The second set of reasons is technical. The peasant holding only five or ten acres cannot use machinery, say the Communists, and cannot use his free time—each winter he has 100 idle days. The "producers' cooperatives" are supposed to bring together enough land to make possible the use of machinery, and to collect enough hands so that rural industry can begin to process rural products for market.

Here the Hungarians have learned much from Russian mistakes. They are not pressing the drive to completion in one season. Tractor and machine stations are being installed at the rate of five a week, and their use at present is optional. The cooperatives are still voluntary and, theoretically, the peasant may withdraw.

Full collectivization is estimated to be from five to ten years away. The Hungarian Communists also hope to have enough consumer goods pouring out of industry by that time to sweeten the process.



Interior of a prosperous peasant's home in Hungary. Some of the hand-painted, hand-carved furniture is generations old. The government is much concerned about these so-called "kulaks," who owe the Communists no debt of gratitude for land

'Dangerous' Individualists

THE last and most pressing reason is the Communist conviction that so long as islets of private property are left in the countryside, their regime is menaced. They are worried not so much by the new owners as by the "kulak," who still works anywhere from 30 to 200 acres he owned before the war and hires an extra hand to help him.

The kulak lived well before the Communists ruled Hungary, and thinks that perhaps he can live just as well without them in the future. He is the man who is shrewd enough to find other outlets for his fruits and vegetables than government processing plants. He is the man in each village whose superior education makes him most resistant to Communist ideologies.

The kulak worries the party not only because he is a source of contagion for the new little owners; he is also dangerous because he owes no debt of gratitude to the new state. His loyalty, unlike that of the peasants who received land. is acutely questionable. And the Hungarian government thinks it would be a good idea if the potentially disloyal were crushed before it is too late.

Reich Finally Is Delivering 'Hitler Auto'

By George Boultwood
Associated Press Staff Writer

HAMBURG, Germany, Nov. 6.—Hitler promised the Germans a cheap "people's car" to run on the grandiose new motor highways built across Germany by his Labor Front.

Ten years ago 280,000 would-be car owners subscribed 1000 marks (then about $450) each. But it was just another of Hitler's many broken promises. They still haven't received their cars.

The factory was built before the war. Test models were made. But the plant produced only a kind of jeep for the German armed forces.

Now a civilian model is being produced at the rate of more than 2000 a month—but mainly for export. Germans can buy them only if they get official sanction for "essential purposes," if they wait 6 to 8 months—and if they are prepared to pay 5300 D-marks ($1590).

That 280 million marks subscribed before the war was "frozen" by the occupying powers. Then it was wiped out by last June's currency reform.

The Volkswagen (people's car) now is earning export dollars for the British-American bizone. They are being imported by Sweden, Denmark, The Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Switzerland. Belgium contracted to buy 35 million dollars' worth.

40 Miles to Gallon

THEY SELL for $800 each in bulk. Individual sales may make the price as high as $1500. The German manufacturers say their foreign sales are restricted only by lack of dollars in neighboring countries.

The car's low gasoline consumption (40 miles to the gallon) makes it a popular buy in western Europe, where gasoline is either strictly rationed or very expensive—or both.

The new "Volkswagen," now being produced at the rate of 2000 a month. This shows the front of the car, which contains the luggage compartment

The Volkswagen's air-cooled engine (about 11 horsepower British rating) is in the rear. Its streamlined body, like the chassis, is in one piece. It weighs only 1600 pounds.

The present model is the prewar design of Dr. Otto Porsch with a few improvements learned about the military model in Russia. Rommel's Afrika Corps used it.

The makers claim it is almost entirely a German product. The only imports are rubber and raw materials for paint, which come from the United States and Britain.

For a time, Britons in Germany could buy the Volkswagen for 175 pounds ($600). But the British treasury soon stopped that because expenditure of sterling for foreign cars was not approved under currency restrictions.

One third of the factory near Hannover was knocked out by Allied bombing. The British started production soon after the occupation began and almost 30,000 have come off the assembly line.

Outnumbered Jeeps

AT FIRST, most of them went to the occupation forces. They soon outnumbered the jeep in the British zone. British forces have used nearly 11,000 and the American Army received more than 3000.

So far, 5424 have been exported. Another 2525 were sold to Allied nationals in Germany for dollars or sterling. The Germans have had 8738 for "essential purposes."

There is a drive on to increase production. The German prewar plan was to make 30,000 a month. A design for a luxury type has reached the drawing board.

No other passenger car is being made in the British zone. But Ford's at Cologne will produce a sedan in a few weeks.

Facts Malleable in Fight Over Steel

By Robert Hewett
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The bitterest British political battle in years is brewing over nationalization of the steel industry—key to the Labor government's "peaceful socialist revolution."

"Steel is the heart of capitalism." That's the battlecry.

The issue of state control versus private ownership of steel probably won't be settled until the 1950 general elections. The bill probably will be passed a few months before the elections, but informed Labor sources say the taking over of the industry may be deferred until after the balloting.

The voters' verdict will determine whether Britons are firmly committed to the socialist principle that the government should control the nation's economy. For permanent government control of steel means permanent, if indirect, control of all manufacturing, from baby buggies to ocean liners.

Managements Stay

THE steel nationalization bill was introduced at the opening of the new Parliament last week to bring the industry under public ownership by May, 1950, with existing managements remaining in charge under a government holding corporation.

Firms will be free to compete with each other, but the corporation will control prices and organize development and research. It will hold the capital stock of 107 major firms capitalized at the equivalent of 780 million dollars and employing some 300,000 persons of the 500,000 in the industry. Most smaller firms will operate under government license.

In terms of capacity, the government will control 97.5 per cent of ore producers, 97.6 per cent of smelters, 99.3 per cent of ingot plants and 93.6 per cent of rolling mills.

For three years the Labor government deferred what Socialist writers call "an attack on the citadel of capitalism." During that period it nationalized coal, electricity, railroads, long distance trucking, gas, airlines and the Bank of England.

In those fields, one of the main arguments of government supporters was that nationalization would increase efficiency.

In steel it's a different story, to some extent. Since the war, Britain's steel industry has been producing more than ever before in its history. Month by month, it has been exceeding government production targets. It is well along on 200-million-pound (800 million dollars) plant expansion and modernization program.

Political Argument

SOCIALIST-MINDED government followers dispute the private steelmakers' claims of efficiency, but their main argument for public ownership is summed up by Labor M. P. Ian Mikardo in these words:

"The industry represents a growing concentration of power in the hands of a small number of individuals, to an extent which might seriously endanger political democracy."

Private steelmakers, on the other hand, say the postwar Iron and Steel Board, which advises the government, already adequately safeguards the public interest.

Public ownership and operation, they argue, would bring only confusion and inexperienced management to a highly complex industry with a resulting loss in production—at a time when Britain is straining all her resources for recovery and rearmament.

Never in the last three years of debate over nationalization of industry has any issue been so clouded with propaganda from both sides and with such contradictory interpretation of known facts and figures. Here are a few basic background facts in the industry.

Eclipsed by U. S.

ORGANIZATION—Most of the companies are linked in an association called the British Iron and Steel Federation, established in 1935 to speak for the industry.

PRODUCTION—Output this year has been at the annual rate of 14,652,000 ingot tons, compared to 12,724,000 tons in 1938 and 5,261,000 tons in the depression year of 1932. Incidentally, all of Britain's steel industry combined produces less in one year than the United States Steel Corp. does in nine months.

GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION—There has been an increasing degree of government supervision and control since 1935. From 1946 to this September, a seven-member Iron and Steel Board advised the Minister of Supply on price fixing, supervised development programs and allocated raw materials and exports. Because of impending nationalization, the board's functions were taken over in September by the Ministry of Supply.

DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM—Work has begun on slightly more than half of a £200,000,000 government-requested expansion program drafted by the B.I.S.F. to raise plant capacity from 14,000,000 tons annually to 16,000,000. The plan calls for scrapping about 30 per cent of old, inefficient plant.

LABOR RELATIONS AND WAGES—Both sides agree labor relations in the industry are about the best in Britain. Except for the general strike of 1926, there has been no major labor dispute in 40 years. Average wage for a 48-hour week in 1947 was equivalent to $26.98, compared to $14.24 in 1938 and $10.85 in 1932. Steel workers' unions have advocated nationalization since 1932.

Workers Credited

PRIVATE steelmakers point to their all-time high production as one argument that plants should not be nationalized. Government supporters retort that the increase is due mainly to greater efforts by the workers, keeping the furnaces operating 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"The workers in the industry are producing steel in the hope of socialism, and the employers because of fear of socialism," is the comment of Health Minister Aneurin Bevan, staunchest cabinet advocate of steel nationalization.

Labor leaders find little fault with the industry's development program—but they insist it should have been done before the war.

The crucial argument, of course, is over who shall control the industry. The private owners concede there should be public supervision in some degree, and even ardent supporters of nationalization concede that present controls go a long way to meet the need to serve the public interest—under present conditions. But they say a mere supervising board wouldn't carry enough authority in the future when full employment and all-out production might end.

There is no guarantee against private steel companies, interested primarily in profits, curtailing their production and capital investments in time of business slumps, they say. Their answer is that only complete public ownership and operation will do.

Premier Thinks Siam Is Next on Red List

By Harris Jackson
Associated Press Staff Correspondent

BANGKOK, Nov. 6.—Officials of Siam, the only southeast Asia country which hasn't had an armed Communist revolt, think the nation may be next on the Red timetable.

Prime Minister Phibun Songgram says he is taking steps to forestall it. He is tightening up on immigrants and tossing Communists out of government. He is also setting up a special military police corps to ferret out Reds and suppress them.

Phibun's opponents, of course, see his new stiff measures as a move to wipe out all potential resistance to his regime. The Prime Minister seized the government by force just a year ago. He was Prime Minister before—during the Japanese occupation. It was Phibun who declared war on the Allies in 1942.

There are few Siamese who are Communists, the Prime Minister says; the ones in the country are found primarily among the two million Chinese. He feels that the chief Red threat to Siam is from outside—China, Indo-China, Malaya and Burma, where Communists are hard at work.

Labor Shows Strength

FOREIGN observers in Siam agree that the Communist threat is found chiefly among the Chinese. They also eye with considerable suspicion the major Siamese labor organization, the Bangkok Federation of Trades Unions.

As long ago as May Day, 1947, the federation showed its strength with a demonstration of 40,000 persons in well-organized groups. Most of the membership was Chinese, the bulk of Bangkok's labor force in the mills and on the docks. Because they handle Siam's chief product and the continent's most needed food—rice—a strike among them would be serious.

A couple of months ago Phibun's agents raided the federation office and seized its documents as part of a nation-wide roundup of "secret societies." Since then the federation has gone underground.

Actually, Siam, with its 15 million population, is not fertile Communist ground. There are neither food nor land problems. Seventy-five per cent of the farm land is owned by the peasants who till it. Rice is easy to grow and the peasantry pays little attention to what goes on in its big city, Bangkok.

But Phibun's forces have been quick to tag their chief opponent, Nai Pridi Phanomyong, with a Red label. Pridi was the leader of the wartime pro-Allied underground and was Premier for a while after the war. He fled the country when Phibun seized power.

Although Pridi admittedly is a Leftist, his supporters and many foreigners who knew him say he is no Communist and is no great friend of Russia. His sympathies, they insist, are toward the United States and Britain.

Coup After Coup

SIAM'S politics are unstable. Armed force is the accepted weapon for changing the government. The country was an absolute monarchy until 1932, when a coup d'etat made it a sort of constitutional monarchy.

Young King Ananda Mahidol was assassinated in June, 1946, and his brother, 20-year-old Phumiphon Aduldet, has not returned from Switzerland—where he is completing his education—to claim his crown.

Philbun seized the government in November, 1947. Last September a plot was uncovered to throw him out. Already there's speculation of another coup in the making.

One foreign diplomat who knows Siam well thinks Communism's only chance would come during prolonged violence between government and anti-government — not necessarily Communist—forces. Then Communists might try to step into the breach and take over.

U. S. Discovers the Truman Who Wowed Rio

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

> "If you can keep your head when all about you
> Are losing theirs and blaming it on you;
> If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,

NOW THAT President Harry S. Truman has jolted the doubters, he is being subjected to a reappraisal. What kind of a man is this who is widely regarded as a political has-been on Tuesday and a miracle-worker on Wednesday?

Among those who are taking a fresh look at Mr. Truman, no doubt, is Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, his Republican opponent for the Presidency. The New Yorker would not be human if he were not asking himself: What's he got that I haven't got?

It is no secret that Dewey was among those who thought that Mr. Truman was "not big enough" for the Presidency.

To Mr. Truman's credit, that is the one thing on which he would agree with his erstwhile rival. He very definitely does not think he's big enough; but, then, he doesn't think that any man is.

Allowing for changes that 3½ years in the White House bring in a man, Mr. Truman is pretty much the same as he was on that April day in 1945 when—as he put it—"the whole weight of the moon and the stars and all the planets" fell on him.

An Ability to Grow

IN JUNE of '45, The Washington Post sent this reporter to Independence, Mo., to cover the homecoming of the new Chief Executive. Some of the things that his neighbors told me on that occasion now seem to have taken on a fresh pertinence, in view of what happened on Tuesday.

Their estimate of "Harry" went something like this: He was friendly and possessed of true humility, but he was also a courageous fighter, self-confident and forthright—a man who said just what he meant and meant what he said.

They didn't think he was a big man, but they noted this—that he had grown in every job that he had ever filled.

Sometimes you can tell something about a man by knowing about his heroes.

Harry Truman's first hero was Andrew Jackson. He and other youngsters in Independence were surrounded by reminders of "Old Hickory." They learned in school that their particular Missouri county, Jackson, was named in honor of the Hero of New Orleans, two years before he was elected President. They learned further that their home town was named Independence in recognition of one of Jackson's outstanding traits.

At the age of about 15, Harry Truman embraced a new hero, Gen. Robert E. Lee. He read everything he could get his hands on about Lee. The Virginian became his beau ideal, not only because of his skill as a soldier but because of his nobility of soul and the greatness of his character.

A Battery D Boy

LOOKING back on that 1945 homecoming, a thing happened that was a tip-off to something in his own character. This was his strong sense of loyalty.

Mr. Truman ran out of white shirts. The first man he thought of was Eddie Jacobson, who had served with him in Battery D in France and who later had been his partner in a haberdashery that failed.

By this time, Eddie had a new haberdashery shop in Kansas City. And it was to this shop that Mr. Truman went to replenish his wardrobe. In the years that have intervened, Eddie has always been a welcome visitor at the White House.

The early summer of 1945 was, of course, the period of Mr. Truman's political honeymoon. This ended in September of that year. It ended when the President sent a message to Congress asking it to enact a 21-point New Deal economic bill of rights. The Congress, dominated by a coalition of Southern Democrats and Northern Republicans, balked—and the break between the White House and the Capitol was under way.

From here on out, Mr. Truman's fortunes seesawed in almost violent fashion. He would be down one month, and then would come something—his battle with John L. Lewis, for example—and his stock would go up again.

In the off-year political campaign of 1946, the Democratic strategists were afraid to let the President go out on the stump. They thought he would do more harm than good where candidates for Congress were concerned. Their No. 1 orator was supposed to be Henry Wallace. They had more than 15 speeches lined up for Wallace, but Henry talked out of turn and got fired from the Cabinet.

In the spring of 1947, Mr. Truman gave the world a demonstration of his boldness. He went before Congress and enunciated what was to become known as the Truman Doctrine, aimed at halting the Communist tide in Europe. Along with the Marshall Plan, which Mr. Truman approved later, it was to constitute the toughest, most audacious foreign policy in America's peacetime history.

Meantime, Mr. Truman was pretty much a stranger to the American people. Few of them had ever had a closeup of him, one reason being that he did most of his traveling by plane.

It was a fact that foreigners saw more of him than his own people. He made trips to Mexico City, Ottawa and Rio de Janeiro. In all these cities, the people took him to their hearts; in all of them, the kids along the way called him by his first name—"Harry," or something that sounded like "Arrito."

Why was it, reporters asked themselves, that Harry could wow them in Mexico, Canada and Brazil and not at home?

The answer, if they only had known it, was simple: The people at home had never really got to know him.

A Promise in May

ON THE NIGHT of May 14, 1948, President Truman stood up before some 500 Young Democrats in the Mayflower Hotel and said:

"I want to say to you at this time that during the next four years there will be a Democrat in the White House—and you are looking at him."

The Democratic Party was in terrible shape at this time. Wallace had broken off its left fringe; the Dixiecrats were getting ready to break off the right wing. There was another movement under way—a "dump-Truman" movement. Behind it, among others, were the Roosevelt boys, Franklin D. and Elliott.

In June Mr. Truman started out on his first cross-country tour by train. He wanted to see the people and he wanted them to see him. His boldness and candor astonished some of the Washington correspondents aboard the train.

Intentional Shockers

MR. TRUMAN always told the crowds that he would be coming back. He did go back, too, after he had won the nomination at Philadelphia and made the best speech of his life in accepting it.

He started out on his second cross-country swing early in September, promising to "give 'em hell" and "mow 'em down." This rude language, and a lot more that Mr. Truman was to spill all over the landscape shocked a good many people, especially newspaper editors.

Mr. Truman meant it to be shocking.

He was out to knock the defeatism out of his fellow Democrats and put some hope and fight in them. He succeeded, and he won.

Labor did a big job to help. So did the farmers and a lot of other people. But the victory impulse began with the man who campaigned as no other President ever had campaigned, and who was frank enough to tell the people why he wanted them to get out and go to the polls on November 2.

"If you will do that," he would say, "I won't have any real estate problem—I can stay in the White House for another four years."

High-Level Strategy

THE DEWEY strategists thought that Mr. Truman had made a serious mistake. He would have been better off, they argued, if he had stayed in the White House during the campaign and talked about "unity" as their own man was doing.

They were 1000 per cent wrong, as were the poll-takers, the odds-makers and political reporters of this and other newspapers.

Mr. Truman heads into a full, four-year term beholden only to the American people. No man ever had more respect for the office of President. In his three and a half years in the White House he has read a lot about his predecessors—the great, the near-great and the good.

He would like, at least, to be a good President.

Democrats Have Shed Extremists for Good

By J. R. Wiggins
Post Reporter

THE FOURTH Incarnation of the Democratic Party emerged plainly in Tuesday's election returns.

President Truman's great personal victory shines so brightly that it tends to obscure the outlines of the new Democratic Party of which he is certainly the principal (but not the sole) architect.

Events of the campaign period produced the election triumph, beyond a doubt. The kind of a party that was to win the campaign was determined a great deal earlier. In the weeks before the Democratic convention, this party began to emerge between the anvil of circumstance and the hammer of design. It was partly the product of conditions. It was partly the result of calculation.

Many party leaders opposed this purpose. They wished to try to achieve one more success with the old Roosevelt coalition—a party that stretched from far right to far left. This struggle colored the whole Democratic convention fight.

The centrists were not altogether successful. They were pulled a little here and pushed a little there. They didn't get for a Vice President a Douglas who would have infuriated the South. They did not have their way against some of the platform makers who pulled the statement of party principles a little off center on some issues. In large outline they did have their way.

Too High a Price

THERE WAS no call to Henry Wallace to come back home. There was no pleading with the Southern States' Righters to keep them from bolting. The left-wing, trimmed down to the Communists and fellow travelers, was clipped off. The Southern rebels were allowed, and even encouraged, to walk out.

A party that had cringed for a generation under the awful threat of the Solid South's veto of its political programs, to its own amazement told the "white supremacy" leaders of the South to pack up their klan robes and get out. It was the more amazing to have this act of defiance accomplished in a year of party crisis. It was a piece of courage that was beyond the daring of Franklin D. Roosevelt, in his most powerful years.

It looked a little like suicide at the time. Yet the party probably had no other choice. The Wallaceites were gone beyond recapture. The Southern dissenters could not have been regained without compromise that would have so humiliated the President as to have been unthinkable.

Some of the men who shaped these decisions thought they might lose the election of 1948. They were more hopeful of the long future. They reasoned that any American political party that would stand for the things that the Southern anti-Truman forces stood for could not now or in the foreseeable future carry a State outside the South. They thought the old coalition machine, in another generation, might not even carry the South.

They did not look upon the weird caucuses of the Southern die-hards with the alarm that other conventions have viewed these witch dances. They put down the mouthings of the cracker caucuses as the last gasps of reaction.

Retreat Unthinkable

IN SPITE of fears, they took the bold course. Some of their arguments sounded incredibly optimistic at the time. They pointed out that Roosevelt never had required Southern electoral votes to get into office; and they reasoned that the compromises made to keep these unneeded votes cost the party strength in the North.

A Democratic Party that has won an election on such bold strategy will never be quite the same as the party that convened at Philadelphia on that July 12. It will not again pale before the threats of a motley collection of Southern conservatives disguised as States' Righters. It will not, in any early campaign, cozen up to the Communists who thundered off to the left.

The new party is by no means complete. The Old Democracy, bolstered by seniority principles, is entrenched in congressional committees. It will not be dislodged from the legislative branch very speedily. How far the remnants of the old regime will choose to compromise, the next Congress will disclose. If the lessons of the campaign are taken to heart, the basic decisions of Philadelphia may be a little smudged in the months ahead.

American political parties, traditionally, have been, for the most part, distinguished for their ability to take on remnants, fragments and factions, rather than marked by their capacity for getting rid of them. Even so, the Philadelphia convention and the campaign have laid down a new party line. The 1948 rebels who decide to return to the party are going to have to do so on the terms of the new party managers.

THE Democratic Party has been through these reincarnation periods before. Jackson took the party through its first trial of this kind, and managed a victory at the same time. Under Buchanan, the party was split by events and not by decisions of leadership, and it took it a generation to recover. Under Cleveland, Democracy split wide open again. The schism this time was well nigh fatal, and not until Woodrow Wilson came along could the dissident factions again be gathered up for a victory by coalition—and then only in the face of a GOP split.

The Truman party is more on Jacksonian lines. It is a bold party stroke such as Jackson's was. It is not a party change induced by uncontrolled conflict such as Buchanan permitted to rise inside the party in 1860. It is not a party rebellion such as took place in 1896 when the foes of Grover Cleveland took over the party machine and declined even to mention the President's name in their convention.

The Truman forces did not wait to be overwhelmed by either right or left, nor did they wait for the party to split up and disintegrate. They made a combination of hard necessity and deliberate choice and laid out a new party structure solidly in the Democratic center (a little to the left of center, in terms of the whole political spectrum).

The National Democratic Chairman, Senator Howard McGrath, was among the leading designers of this strategy and policy. It is in the order of the day to say that President Truman did

Commitments

THE NEW Democratic Party that emerges from the smoke of the Philadelphia convention and the fire of the campaign is a party committed to:

Taft-Hartley Act Revision for Labor.

Price Supports for Agriculture.

Advancement of Civil Rights.

Public Housing.

Public Power.

Broader Social Security.

Higher Minimum Wages.

Reciprocal Trade Agreements.

An International Foreign Policy.

Control of Inflation.

It is based on the doctrine of the "welfare state" and is dedicated to the affirmative use of governmental power in the general good.

81st Is Unlikely to Ditch 'Re-Deal'

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

A RE-DEAL of the New Deal is in store for the next Congress.

The legislatively abandoned Roosevelt policies, with Truman variations that rate a new label, are on their way back.

With the unexpected blessing of the voters, President Truman will reoffer them all in his January message to Congress.

And if Tuesday's vote means anything, they will get very careful consideration—more, in fact, than they have had since Franklin Roosevelt asked "Dr. New Deal" to step aside for the war.

Harry Truman put it up to the voters at every crossroads and whistle stop. His chief quarrel with Thomas E. Dewey was that the New York Governor was out to "destroy" the New Deal. He said the Republican "second worst" Congress had done all in its power to wreck it.

What the Democratic Eighty-first Congress will do about it is something else again. But at this distance, making due allowances for urgent foreign aid legislation crowding domestic matters into the background, there is reason to expect it will do a lot.

Reinforcements

THAT formidable coalition of Southern Democrats and Republicans, that went to work on the battered New Deal before the Eightieth Congress had a crack at it, will be back.

But several members of that nearly extinct cult, "the New Dealers," will be back, too, with new shock troops. Recruits like Illinois' Paul Douglas, Tennessee's Estes Kefauver, Wyoming's Lester Hunt, New Mexico's Clinton P. Anderson, West Virginia's Matthew M. Neely and Minnesota's Hubert Humphrey are pledged to help Truman repair the damage.

In more than one instance they may have to be satisfied with something less than full redemption of platform pledges or President Truman's promises to the country.

For example, both the President and the Democratic platform have pledged full repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and complete return to the New Deal's Wagner Act principles. Unless most advance surveys are wrong, a GOP-Democratic coalition will have the votes to block full repeal.

But at least the "Taft-Hartley" title, and a few of the more onerous provisions, may be rubbed off the books. Labor Secretary Maurice J. Tobin already has disclosed the strategy. A new labor law "fair to both workers and management" will be proposed by the President.

Filibuster Survives

THE civil rights plank, which caused the Thurmond split in the party, will be another hard one to deliver. But this time at least, Mr. Truman will be under no Dixie inhibitions. On Tuesday he showed he could win without "States' rights" support. It will take more to win a civil rights victory in Congress, however. The Southerners still hold, unimpaired, their last-resort weapon—Senate filibuster.

But on many a Re-Deal measure, ranging from Social Security extension to an increase in the 40-cent minimum wage, Mr. Truman and his face-lifted Democratic Congress, for the first time in two years, are in a position to make good.

Mr. Truman made it possible by the very fury of his attack on the Eightieth Congress' record. The attack succeeded beyond his fondest hopes—even purged some of the Key Republican legislators running interference against his program.

Thus, after 32 years, the legislative career of Minnesota's Harold Knutson, chairman of the GOP-controlled House Ways and Means Committee, came suddenly to an end.

Knutson was the chief author of the three-tries-and-over Republican tax reduction that Mr. Truman called a "rich man's bill." In Knutson's committee, the Social Security program is still sleeping.

New Undercurrent

THE MAN who will succeed Knutson as chairman—raw-boned old Robert L. Doughton of North Carolina—is far from a New Dealers. He even supported a modified version of the first Knutson bill.

But new blood will flow into the committee in the House reorganization. With a floor majority to back him up, President Truman may have picked up just enough support to increase personal exemptions, up corporate tax rates. And the Social Security structure may get its first hair-do in years.

Another Truman "purge" removed the man who tried to stop in its tracks the New Deal's broad tariff reform—Cordell Hull's Reciprocal Trade Act.

The man who drew the bill limiting the Reciprocal Trade Act to one year and put many limitations on it was Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart (R., Calif.). The President went into Gearhart's district, told his constituents Gearhart was a "terrible" Congressman. Some of Mr. Truman's advisers thought it was a blunder. But Gearhart was defeated. Few now doubt the President will get the three-year Reciprocal Trade Act extension he asked in the first place.

The President even carried out a little-advertised legislative purge in his own State. Representative Walter C. Ploeser (R) of Missouri's Twelfth District was chairman of a House Appropriations subcommittee that clamped a straitjacket on TVA. It listened to the power lobby, refused to vote funds for a steam generating plant TVA said it had to have to supply individual and industrial consumers.

Ploeser won't be a member of the new Congress, and a steam-generating plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn., will be among the President's first recommendations.

Town and Country

IT'S A SAFE bet as well that Mr. Truman's next budget will contain plenty of funds for reclamation and public power projects dear to the West, soil conservation and rural electrification that the farm voter swears by, and the school lunch program, a big-city must. The Eightieth Congress cut all of these, tried to repair the vote damage too late. There will be votes to spare for all three in the new Congress.

Perhaps the hottest two single issues in the campaign were housing and prices. Mr. Dewey made the mistake of not discussing either in detail. And the Eightieth Congress struck out on both.

The Eighty-first Congress, if it has any ear for what the voters were saying, won't make a similar mistake.

Rent controls are as good as extended already, or will be when Congress resumes. The President may have more trouble getting standby rationing and price-wage control authority. But if there isn't any price-leveling in the interim he may have the votes for something very much like it.

Around another of his anti-inflation proposals, revival of the corporate excess profits tax, may rage one of the sharpest fights of the session.

Mr. Truman's long-range housing program and its public housing features have already passed the Senate twice, and should have no trouble at all on the third trip. The House hurdle, which the bill twice failed to clear, may not be there when the House really gets down to business.

The House Banking Committee, which simply refused to send it to the floor, will have a new chairman and a full complement of Democratic members mostly favorable to the bill.

Re-Deal for DPs

DISPLACED persons? Well, we almost forgot to mention another purgee. Senator Chapman Revercomb (R., W. Va.), chief author of the anti-democratic Displaced Persons Bill, was among Tuesday's casualties.

In fact, he was the victim of a double purge. Mr. Truman castigated him in West Virginia and Gov. Dewey refused to go to his aid.

In legislative language, Revercomb's defeat means one thing. Liberalizing changes in the Displaced Persons Act will be rushed through the next Congress.

The coming House and Senate shakeup, plus that "mandate" from the voters, could carry Mr. Truman's edition of the New Deal far beyond Franklin Roosevelt's original.

FSA Administrator Oscar R. Ewing last week envisioned a few of the "Re-Deal" objectives:

1. A 300 million dollar appropriation to start Federal aid to education (stopped last session in the House).

2. A new Department of Health, Education and Security.

3. A Government health insurance program, and vastly expanded medical services.

4. Extension of liberalized Social Security benefits to all groups.

5. A National Science Foundation, to support basic research in the sciences.

6. Increased vocational rehabilitation, more funds for hospital construction and action to meet the shortage of doctors and trained medical help.

Repeal In Kansas

William Allen White once said of his fellow Kansans that they "stagger to the polls and vote dry." Not so last Tuesday, it seems. Absolutely final returns are still to come, and this election has demonstrated the unwisdom of counting any corks before they are pulled. But it looks as though the prohibition on strong drink that has stood in Kansas' constitution since 1881 has finally been repealed. This leaves Mississippi and Oklahoma as the only two States with State-wide prohibition. Mississippi's ban is statutory and has been on its books since 1909. Oklahoma's has been embedded in its constitution since 1907.

Kansas still has a statute that makes the possession of intoxicating liquor illegal. Until this is removed by the Legislature, Kansans will have to continue getting their liquor in the usual fashion—by "smuggling" it across the State line or from the many bootleggers who operate under only the faint suggestion of concealment. In Kansas, despite a considerable bone-dry sentiment, enforcement of the liquor law has become more and more lax since the repeal of Federal prohibition in 1933. And, of course, respect for the authority of the law has declined in proportion.

For this reason we believe the constitutional and expected statutory change is wise. While the new constitutional provision forbids saloons, it permits the Legislature to "regulate, license, and tax the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors." Thus the Legislature, which meets next January, can adopt some sort of licensing system such as prevails already in 28 other States and the District of Columbia. The language seems broad enough to authorize, if the Legislature prefers, a State monopoly on the sale of liquor. This system now exists in 17 States. Either method of controlled traffic seems to us far better than the surreptitious and widespread disregard of law that has characterized prohibition in Kansas as it did in the United States.

Reserve System

When the new Congress reassembles, it will be confronted with the unsolved problem of how the Federal Reserve System is to maintain effective control over credit expansion and support the Government bond market at the same time. Marriner S. Eccles, former chairman and still member of the Reserve Board, who led the unsuccessful drive to give the system authority to require all commercial banks—members and nonmembers alike—to establish special reserves of cash or Government securities is renewing his recommendations. He also gave warning in a recent speech to the Iowa Bankers Association that unless the control powers of the board are increased, it might become necessary to withdraw support from the Government bond market. That, he concludes—and The Washington Post agrees—would be a highly dangerous proceeding that might seriously impair the Government's credit.

The situation resulting from the board's existing commitment to support bond prices is, however, extremely serious. The October Federal Reserve Bulletin states that the increase in required reserves decreed last August under the powers granted at the special session of Congress absorbed into reserves about two billion dollars—a total that "corresponded approximately to net Federal Reserve purchases of Government securities from nonbank investors in recent months." As a result, there was little or no decline in the total volume of bank loans and investments from the level of three months earlier.

The Bulletin repeatedly refers to the action of insurance companies and other nonbank financing institutions in shifting out of long-term Government securities into private lending. Funds for this purpose, it points out, have been supplied by the Federal Reserve System, which purchased these securities in order to support their market price. Sales by insurance companies alone are said to have exceeded a billion dollars over a three-month period. And since these sales result in the creation of bank deposits and bank reserves, the board notes that the shifting process is just as inflationary as bank-credit expansion. In addition to this inflationary element, commercial-bank reserves are being increased by gold inflows, while the banks, too, can always build up their reserves by selling their own Government securities in a supported market.

As matters now stand, the policy of supporting bond prices makes it impossible for the Reserve System to apply effectively traditional weapons of credit control that would reduce the volume of reserves on which the commercial banks base their credit operations. Moreover, the restraining effect on bank-credit expansion caused by using surplus Treasury funds to retire securities held by the Reserve banks can no longer be counted upon, owing to tax-reduction measures that have swept away surpluses and threaten to put the Treasury in the red.

To sum up: it begins to look as if Congress will be forced to make a hard choice: either ignoring the danger of credit inflation in the hope that insurance companies as well as banks will voluntarily restrain lending operations, or else authorizing employment of drastic methods of credit control by the Federal Reserve authorities that would arouse the bitter opposition of private lending agencies.

Reversing Voters

The most cynical commentary on our electoral system that we have seen is the proposal that the electors who pledged themselves to vote for Governor Thurmond switch their votes to President Truman. The politicians who are talking about such a shift seem to be thinking solely in terms of getting on the bandwagon and of improving their status in the next Democratic National Convention. To achieve those objectives they would reverse the decision of nearly a million voters and have the ballots they cast counted for the man they voted against.

We can understand the desire of Southern politicians who broke away from their party to participate in the Dixiecrat movement to get back into the Democratic fold. The immediate pressure for a switch of electoral votes from Governor Thurmond to President Truman arises from the fact that States which do not cast their electoral votes for the party's candidate will lose their "bonus" votes in the next Democratic National Convention. Naturally South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana are loath to give up their customary strength in the party's quadrennial conclave. No doubt the politicians trying to negotiate the shift will attempt to justify their action by the fact that it would not change the results of the election. What they seem to forget is that it would reduce voters in the four Dixiecrat States to the status of pawns in a political game.

Whether or not the scheme is carried through, our electoral system leaves the door wide open to shenanigans of this sort. The electors will not meet in the several States to forward their votes to Washington until next month. Meanwhile, some of them will be under strong pressure to betray the people who voted for them. One elector in Tennessee has already announced that he will not vote for the candidate to whom he was pledged before the election. If the electoral votes had been more evenly divided between Messrs. Truman and Dewey, it would have been possible for a few men under terrific pressure from politicians to have swung the outcome either one way or the other. In other words, our defective electoral system offers a standing invitation to politicians to seek to thwart the will of the people in the election of the President and Vice President.

This newspaper has often directed attention to this dangerous infirmity in our political system and urged abolition of the office of elector, with distribution of each State's electoral votes in proportion to the popular vote received by each candidate. The current threat that nearly a million votes may be reversed by political maneuvers should be sufficient to induce the next Congress to approve a corrective constitutional amendment.

Taft-Hartley

Sometimes incoming Presidents conveniently forget the platform pledges of their party. But Democratic advocacy of repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act is not one of those planks that can be laid on the shelf. For on his barnstorming tour of the country President Truman reserved his most vituperative epithets to denounce the Taft-Hartley Act. He told a Detroit audience that it would "enslave the working man, white-collar working and union man alike." In other carefully timed speeches addressed to labor audiences he charged that it "converts the Wagner Act from a charter protecting the basic rights of workers into an instrument for union-busting by antilabor employers." These attacks, coupled with reminders that the Democratic Party went on record at Philadelphia for repeal of the law, undoubtedly garnered votes for the President and resulted in the retirement to private life of a large number of Congressmen who voted to pass the Taft-Hartley Act over the President's veto. The President's promises and pledges appear, therefore, to commit him to urge prompt repeal of the hated law.

However, the President himself cannot have forgotten that quite recently he was forced to invoke the emergency provisions of the act in his struggle with John L. Lewis. Nor can he have forgotten that prior to passage of the act he himself called for much more drastic forms of legislative suppression to force striking railroad men back to work. He now faces the difficult task of satisfying his labor adherents who are relying upon him to make good his promises, and at the same time devising ways and means of enabling his Administration to handle labor disturbances constituting a threat to public health and safety.

Insofar as the emergency provisions of the act are concerned, its defects lie in the weakness of the weapons placed at the President's disposal. It needs to be strengthened rather than emasculated. On the other hand, since the law came into effect it has been demonstrated that some of its provisions work unnecessary hardship, while others are administratively infeasible. This newspaper always regarded the anti-Communist oath provisions as tactically unwise. And the requirement that the NLRB conduct open-shop polls has been futile, besides putting an intolerable burden of work on that agency. Moreover, in case of the building trades it has proved unworkable. Finally, the NLRB ruling against hiring hall practices strikes at abuses, to be sure, but without hiring halls the evils they were designed to remove would return. There is need, consequently, for changes in legislation that would legalize modified hiring hall practices instead of abolishing the present system.

It would, however, be a prime misfortune for labor as well as management if the protection accorded both sides under the law against unfair labor practices, such as secondary and mass boycotting and jurisdictional strikes were to be swept away. As a matter of fact, there has not yet been time to test fully the potential value of the act in establishing rules of fair conduct for labor union guidance. For it was not until the end of October that the NLRB made public its first ruling on unfair strike activities under the Taft-Hartley Act in a case involving coercive mass picketing. From any point of view, therefore, except that of the labor leaders and others who have prejudged the effects of the law on labor organizations, it is much too soon to present Congress with a complete new labor act or a comprehensive revision of the existing one.

The Eightieth Congress was well aware that an omnibus measure of the scope and complexity of the Taft-Hartley Act would require revision. Consequently it set up a Joint Congressional Committee to study the law and recommend changes. Unfortunately the congressional upset has deprived this committee of the influence it might have brought to bear on revisionist plans. In an article in the New York Times Louis Stark reports that plans are already under way for drafting a substitute for the Taft-Hartley Act, with Senator Barkley and Secretary of Labor Tobin in control of strategy. The President intends, according to reports, to confer with representatives of management as well as labor before presenting his recommendations to Congress. But in view of his prior repeal commitments, there appears to be grave danger that the proposed new labor legislation will be one-sided, like the Wagner Act, instead of having as its chief objective protection of the rights of both management and organized labor.

On Memory

A young Washington girl, Miss Kitty Claud, has written a little book of personal reflections to which she gives the name Street Corner Philosophies. Now, one of the remarkable things about it is that the author is a victim of cerebral palsy, a form of partial-paralysis resulting sometimes from disease in infancy or more frequently from injuries at birth. Those who are acquainted with this disorder will have some conception of the purely muscular difficulties which Miss Claud was obliged to overcome in order to complete her work.

Miss Claud does not have much to say about these difficulties, being more concerned with the life of her mind, which is evidently a rich and active one. She does, however, observe that her disability has had the advantage of obliging her to rely very heavily on her faculty of memory. She relates that when she was a student at the Marjorie Webster Junior College here—

> It was almost impossible to take intelligible notes. I soon gave up trying . . . and focused my entire attention on the instructor. Then I would leave the class and think about the lesson as a whole. . . . As I sat down to type the notations stored in my mind, I would remember the unheard side remarks and gestures made by the girls during the lecture or something that would tie up the lesson for me.

Miss Claud's experience encourages us to ask whether the whole business of notebooks and note taking has not been much overemphasized by our educators, and whether it has not had a good deal to do with the lack of preparation on the part of students, of which they so frequently complain. At best, as Miss Claud points out, it makes for an unnecessary distraction, and at worst—since the student, if he is not an expert stenographer, cannot write down everything—it encourages a tendency to anticipate, if possible, the points that may be covered in the next examination. It also, so it seems to us, encourages a disposition to forget the whole subject as soon as the examinations are over.

According to some anthropologists, an enfeeblement of memory is one of the penalties of literacy, which increases as a society becomes progressively urbanized. Thus in countries which have a traditional literature or folklore that has been handed down orally for generations with scarcely the alteration of a word, the oral tradition is said to disappear soon after the introduction of reading and writing. The enfeeblement of memory is especially noticeable among those who depend upon the written word for the bulk of their information. Very few of us can remember what we read in last week's newspapers. This, of course, is a great advantage, to politicians and others, but the rest of us it seems merely to show that reading or study has been to no purpose.

I kiss these ashes of my home,
I embrace the room,
still and gray in my fingers.
I look into the burning tomb and the voice of my mother lingers there, sweet and clear.
I am tutored by the harsh teacher of flame and all I hold dear
I must in these ashes name.

I point to the scattered stone;
I pray amidst this frightening din;
I say this is what I own,
from these things I begin.

I am the child of the wicked harvesting.
I kiss these ashes of the fight;

Forgot to say our crows are peanut-fed.

I read with much interest the telegram in your paper addressed to President Harry S. Truman and requesting his presence, along with many others, whom modesty forbids me to mention, at a "crow dinner" to be held somewhere in Washington in the near future.

For many years the board of supervisors in this county paid a bounty on all crows brought into my office. I thought seriously of having a special meeting of the board to reinstate that bounty.

If this is done Loudoun County will be in a position to furnish you a large supply of crows. In consideration of the high price now being paid for all meats, the board feels it might be in a position to make some profit.

Please let me know, by return mail, what you consider a fair price so that the board will be in a position to know what bounty to pay on each crow.

County Clerk,

Your published telegraphic invitation to Mr. Truman to meet with various editors, columnists and radio commentators at a "crow banquet" compels me to observe that perhaps this will turn out to be an occasion where "crow will eat crow."

This front page spread is but another glaring example of the mentality of newspaper editors in general. A palpable bit of facetiousness is expected to redeem a colossal crawful of false and frivolous thinking—thinking implemented by actions that affect the fortunes and fate of billions of people.

And while on the subject of "crow," might it not be in order for one to inquire as to when you birds of the editorial world are going to get owlish to yourselves, to falcons of American foreign policy such as Walter Lippmann, to peacocks of persuasion such as Fulton Lewis, jr., and to all the rest of the frowzy flock which believes that the great majority of the American people can be feathered too?

JOHN H. SACHS

May I offer my own quick, easy, incomplete solution for the election upset—the arrogance of your pollsters and political prognosticators who long ago decided the election for us?

I personally believe that the man lost who would make the better President—Dewey, of course. But, if my State had an absentee ballot, I would have been strongly tempted to vote for Truman just to do my part in feeding crow to your cocksure columnists. Sad about the result of the election, I shall enjoy seeing the know-alls swallow their words. American sympathy for an underdog candidate has taken an unfortunate turn, as I see it.

JOHN P. BLOOM
Washington.

Although the pontifical polls of public opinion have now been sufficiently discredited by the recent election results, I believe the public's attention should be called to a startling and rather brazen admission made by pollster Elmo Roper on the CBS broadcast at 1:50 Wednesday morning.

By way of proving that the results were not a complete surprise, Roper stated: "We found, in a survey yet unpublished, that a majority of the people thought the New Deal had been good for the country and wanted to see its social reforms continued." (or words to that effect)

It seems to me that Mr. Roper owes an explanation to the American public as to why the results of this survey were not published prior to the election. If relevant and significant statistics which happen to favor one side in an election may be withheld from the unsuspecting public at the discretion of the pollsters, then the polls not only stand revealed as inaccurate and ineffective, but they also exude a suspicious odor of fraud.

JOSEPH ZWERDLING.

I should like to interpret Mr. Truman's victory as the voice of an enlightened South. One by one in the privacy of our voting booths we have said, "Thank you, Mr. President, for the courageous and Christian stand you have made for a race of people." Each of us seems a little shy around others, always thinking we might offend a neighbor with a different view. But when alone with our consciences, some Southern States have told the world that we have come spiritually out of the middle ages. I see this attitude among the younger in years and spirit.

I hope now to see the President continue to take a stand for right regardless of its popularity of the moment. I write this to you, since it is my understanding that our papers do not publish letters on "controversial" issues. I am white.

Your frivolous telegram to President Truman of November 4 impresses me as in extremely bad taste in that it attempts to laugh off a serious defect in news-gathering and editing.

Apparently, as Tuesday's election proved, millions of Americans saw and understood what was going on in the minds of ordinary people, while columnists and editors were happy to believe that what they willed to come true would come true.

The American press could well take a lesson in humility from the man it tried to kill off and bury at the height of his power and popularity. Your flippant message shows anything but a sense of propriety.

The stunning reelection of President Truman is not only a gratifying vindication to the man himself but to someone else who occupies a deeper niche in history. For somewhere off in Valhalla, with his head thoughtfully tilted back and his long cigarette holder at a jaunty angle, the immortal shade of Franklin Delano Roosevelt must surely smile and chuckle as through the celestial grapevine comes the word of his Vice President's reelection as President of the United States.

The master strategist, politico-magician, four-time winner of the greatest handicap known on earth had taught his protege well. The encomiums, mixed with the hollow and the trite, will surely flood 1600 Pennsylvania avenue. But somewhere off in somewhere a smiling and confident figure shifts his cigarette holder, pushes his halo over to a rakish angle, and softly says: "Nice going, Harry, my boy. I couldn't have done better myself."

I was extremely interested in your editorial reference of November 4, to the aid Mr. Truman received from such "redoubtable battlers" as Harold Ickes, Paul Porter and Leon Henderson. That Harold Ickes lent his best efforts to the campaign is unquestioned, since I heard his stimulating speeches on the air (although I looked in vain through your paper for a single reference to such speeches.) However, your laudatory reference to Messrs. Porter and Henderson mystifies me. On whose side or in what arena did they do their "redoubtable battling?" I believe I followed the campaign as closely as the average citizen but I recall reading nothing about any speeches, doorbell ringing, or other pre-election activity performed by the "battlers."

I do recall, however, reading about these two gentlemen spearheading the organization of Americans for Democratic Action, the splinter group which tried to give Truman the hook because, apparently, he was not smart enough for it. I recall also that toward the end of the campaign this same organization issued a lukewarm recommendation of Truman, which was so obvious a try at getting back into the inner circles of the party and running it after Harry's defeat, that it was worse than simply remaining silent and admitting its own poor judgment.

With reference to this campaign, I cannot refrain from writing the following criticism of the policy of your paper and your columnists.

In every way you could you depreciated President Truman's ability to conduct office. You considered he was inept. However, the American people have shown that they disagreed. After all, President Truman when he was Senator conducted his investigating committee on a high plane. Senator Ferguson conducted his as a three-ring circus. Only for publicity. In his handling of the foreign situation he has done as well as any man could do with a country whose aims and ideas are so divergent to ours, and then the situation changes daily.

If you had analyzed the issues of this campaign—high cost of living and housing—you would have been as smart as President Truman. He knew the real issues that the Eightieth Congress had two years to do something and had failed. He faced the issues squarely and showed more ability and brains than the newspapers and commentators in his analysis of what was wrong.

After all the "power of the press"—where is it, the American people do their own thinking and are not swayed by it or the commentators. Do you think the American people feel that such men as Westbrook Pegler, Drew Pearson and Walter Winchell are competent to tell us how to think and what the answers are? They feel that perhaps they are better qualified. It is quite evident newspapers and commentators cannot mold public opinion where real issues are concerned.

What's Wrong With Teaching

A Communication

RAISING salaries is a good place to begin, if we are to check the alarming rate at which teachers are leaving our schoolrooms for more satisfying pursuits. But it is not the place to stop.

Teachers will tell you, for example, that they are fed up with working for tyrants in the garb of supervisors, principals, and board members; fed up with aging equipment, overflowing classrooms, and drab surroundings. They point out further that college preparatory courses have sold them short, that the educational know-how they strove to master in the ivory towers of their alma mater turns out to be neither practical nor realistic.

Sorting through the opinions of many teachers, one finds that their charges fall into five main headings:

1. DICTATORS run the schools. It is currently popular—and not without reason—for parents, board members, whole communities to demand in loud tones that teachers awaken youngsters to the joys, benefits and responsibilities of living in a democracy.

The trouble started, say the educators, back when the superintendents and the principals went to college. The curriculum set up for them and other administrators said a lot about the courses of study, norms and organization charts, but scarcely mentioned the techniques involved in handling human beings.

Teachers, on the other hand, seek to build their work around what's best for the child and they are quick to see the fallacy of basing a school program on any other tenet. Teachers feel that if a program could be evolved cooperatively, differences could be ironed out, but they are not consulted, and they soon find themselves forced into a pattern totally out of harmony with their own working philosophy.

2. Standards count for more than children. Illogical though it may seem, teachers are expected to teach every pupil in exactly the same way and to get precisely the same results.

The teacher might remind the principal that children are not all alike and therefore can't be expected to measure up in assembly-line fashion to arbitrary standards. But such displays of individual thinking are frowned upon and so the teacher simply goes back to her job and maybe takes her feeling of helplessness out on a bewildered child.

In some schools the physical needs of youngsters, who because of poverty and neglect are generally unhealthy, must be taken care of before any thought can be given to more orthodox school pursuits. Teachers know that an undernourished child is neither happy nor ready to learn. But such conditions are lost sight of in a routinized progress report which shows only that youngsters either have or have not measured up to hard and fast standards.

3. FACILITIES CAN'T handle the traffic. Teachers are already being driven from the profession by overflowing classrooms, by short supplies of books and other work materials, and by the crushing need for more swings, seesaws and balls on the playground. If these factors contribute to low morale now, one wonders what will happen in another five or six years when the current record-breaking crop of babies enters elementary school.

The burden of too many pupils is harassing and frustrating to teacher and child alike. The delightful and rewarding experience of seeing a child develop under one' own thoughtful guidance is denied the teacher who must work with 50 or 60 youngsters instead of 20. Special aptitudes are overlooked because there is no time for individual attention.

4. Teaching tools are nonexistent or poorly chosen. If young people are fully to understand and appreciate the world about them, a teacher's ingenuity, imagination and skill must be supplemented with all sorts of tools, ranging from maps to microscopes. But teachers are plagued not only by a limited supply of work materials but by having the wrong kind or none at all.

5. Working environment is drab. Frequently a young person's recollections of school surroundings are anything but pleasant. With such memories, young people in search of a profession will think twice before they decide to teach school.

Unfortunately, even today the importance of attractive, livable buildings and grounds as an inducement to good teaching—and good learning—is frequently overlooked by school boards and communities more intent upon turning out winning athletic teams than well-rounded individuals.

An imaginative teacher can do a great deal to brighten up a library or a classroom at very little cost, but she must have the cooperation of the administration, and her suggestions should be both listened to and sought after. Too often, however, new buildings are planned from the limited vantage point of the principal's office, and a golden opportunity to make education more appealing to teacher and student alike is hopelessly muffed.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Explains 'Rights' Passion

By Drew Pearson

ONLY a few White House insiders knew it at the time, but President Truman could have avoid the split with the South on the civil rights issue. However, he decided that the question was too important for any compromise.

In a White House conversation, Morris Ernst, a member of the Civil Rights Committee, urged Truman not to send the committee's report to Congress, but rather to the Governors and Mayors of the States. Ernst pointed out that Southern leaders had always contended that this was a State, not a Federal problem; therefore a bitter fight could be avoided by handling the report that way.

Truman's reply was brief and to the point.

"I would not be doing my duty as President," he said.

Ernst, who had been a close friend and adviser of Franklin Roosevelt, then asked Truman why he had such a passion for civil rights—even more so than Roosevelt.

"When I was young," replied the President, "I saw fiery crosses burned on the hills above Independence and 3000 hooded men parading. I get worried about a return of that sort of thing. We cannot let it happen again."

Dewey-Go-Round

DEWEY was so certain of victory that he had set up secret offices in Washington and had recruited a staff to study Truman's budget and prepare his own budget to be submitted in January . . . Certain White House speech-writers were so sure of Truman's defeat they were ashamed to let anybody know they had a hand in his speeches. Of Truman's last speech tour they said: "We are just rehashing old stuff and dishing it out to keep poor old Truman slap-happy."

Note: Most of the whistle-stop speech-writers were youngsters who had tried to ditch Truman at the Philadelphia Convention . . .

Remarked a lonely, crestfallen receptionist at Republican national headquarters the day after elections: "Everybody's gone. What happened? . . . Maybe it should have been Stassen."

Watch Earl Warren

STUNNED by defeat for the second time, Governor Dewey will not get another chance to run for President. GOP leaders are categoric about this. Already their eyes are roving for a new white hope to run against the Democrats in 1952.

Two certain contenders are California's Governor Earl Warren and Pennsylvania University's new president, Harold Stassen, both with liberal backgrounds. The fusty, starch-collared crowd, which has such a grip on the Republican Party, is almost certain to be swept out like old cobwebs.

Modest, friendly Earl Warren, who reflects the California sunshine, is the real man to watch. Like Franklin D. Roosevelt before him, who was beaten for the Vice Presidency but came back to be President, Warren has not lost his place in the national picture. Instead, he will move up as Dewey slides down. Unlike Thomas "Elusive" Dewey, Warren came out openly on the issues—high prices, housing, veterans' benefits. He even criticized the Eightieth Congress, though it hurt his own party.

Stassen also is still a power to be reckoned with. He got most of the cheers, though not the votes, at the Republican National Convention. In recent weeks, however, he has behaved more like a party hack than the independent liberal he pretends to be. After bitterly denouncing Dewey in Philadelphia, Stassen miraculously showed up in the starting line-up for Dewey's Presidential campaign—in fact, was the kick-off speaker for Dewey in Detroit September 7.

Stassen's Conversion

THE inside story of Stassen's conversion has never been told. It is the story of moneyed Republicans who paid off with a university presidency and a partnership in a Philadelphia law firm.

The University of Pennsylvania was searching for a new president to move into the chair of retiring George W. McClelland. Foremost contender was Law School Dean Earl Harrison, once a Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization, who also made a survey of European displaced persons camps for President Truman.

However, Harrison had been a Roosevelt man, had not taken politics into account. For years a board of trustees had tried to operate it as a subsidiary of Drexel & Co., the Philadelphia branch of J. P. Morgan. The leader of that clique, Robert T. McCracken, saw a chance to heal the Dewey-Stassen breach. Together with Edward Hopkins, jr., a partner in Drexel & Co., McCracken offered the university presidency to Stassen.

McCracken himself is a member of the prosperous Philadelphia law firm to which former Supreme Court Justice Owen Roberts once belonged. To tone down the protest of disappointed Dean Harrison, who promptly resigned from the law school, McCracken hastily found him a partnership in another top Philadelphia law firm. Then master-mind McCracken brought the retired Justice Roberts back to fill Harrison's vacant chair as dean of the law school. To show his appreciation, Harrison publicly announced his support for Dewey.

A Younger Cordell Hull

ESTES Kefauver, the Senator-elect from Tennessee, is one of the few men who has ever bucked the Crump machine and lived politically to tell the story.

Kefauver is a tall, handsome, younger edition of Cordell Hull, who has behind him eight years in the House, where he crusaded quietly for the little fellow. He guided the House Small Business Committee in its fight against the big monopolies, and is still trying to plug the loopholes in the anti-trust laws. Kefauver hasn't hestitated to take on such friends of the Truman Administration as Charles Luckman and the Lever Bros. soap company.

But in the middle of the fighting he also managed to write a book, "Twentieth Century Congress," urging that outmoded congressional tactics be streamlined. He especially blasted headline-hunting hearings by which Congressmen chiefly try to get their names in the papers, and also the habit of expensive junketing to Alaska, Hawaii and other spots of tourist interest.

On the surface, Kefauver is as calm as a Sunday afternoon, but this covers up a stormy spirit. Yale-trained, the young Tennesseean is a liberal lawyer-economist, moves like a tornado in slow motion. A strong family man, he keeps his office cluttered with scribbled drawings of his 7-year-old daughter. His ambition is to get on the Foreign Relations Committee.

Note—One of the things that hurt Crump most in his campaign against Kefauver was the charge that Kefauver was foreign-born. The voters quickly found out that he was born in Tennessee.

MacArthur's Jap Labor

ARMY brass hats have won out in a backstage slugfest recently raging among the State, Labor and Army Departments over General MacArthur's efforts to deny collective bargaining rights to Jap workers in government-owned industries.

Ever since James Killen of the AFL (he's a vice president of the Pulp and Sulphite Workers Union) resigned as MacArthur's top labor adviser, some of President Truman's Cabinet advisers have been debating whether to put the hobbles on MacArthur. Killen had protested Mac's tough labor policies.

However, the State Department decided to throw its weight behind Army demands that MacArthur be given a free hand to invoke whatever Jap labor curbs he considers necessary.

This means that the General will be given the go-ahead signal to sign a bill his aides have engineered through the Japanese Diet, which would deny Japanese employes of government-owned industries not only the right to strike, but also collective bargaining.

it all by himself. The credit is so largely his that the popular judgment is essentially sound. To endorse this estimate wholly, however, is to overlook McGrath and many others who contributed to the crucial decisions of last July a lot of shrewd political judgment, good common sense and resolute courage.

IF their counsels continue to prevail, the new Democratic Party has a lot more internal convulsions in store. The election campaign, however, has well begun the job laid out last July. The start toward a new Democratic Party is a lot more auspicious than its planners dared hope.

To hold to the line during a campaign in which the President's word is final is one thing. To stick to it through years of an administration that will be compelled, from time to time, to compromise in order to legislate, is another thing. Even the most resolute and inflexible party leaders will not be able to resist the temptation to strike a bargain here and there.

Even the New Democratic Party, shorn of the extreme left and the extreme right, is still in our tradition—a coalition. Even a coalition of the center has its own margins. They are already visible in the reborn Democratic Party. Some of the battalions that marched in the victory (labor, for example) are going to look for their booty more and more in the spirit of men who firmly believe they won the fight single-handed. They will have to be dealt with by means that may invite occasional desertions.

For all the troubles of this kind, plainly to be foreseen, the men who deliberately chose to divorce the left and the right of the old Roosevelt coalition, have occasion to congratulate themselves. They have a Democratic Party which, in its fourth incarnation, has demonstrated that bold and courageous leadership in the face of extremist blackmail can pay off in popular and electoral votes. The lesson, it is to be hoped, will not be forgotten in the political struggles ahead.

Perilous Self-Dosing

By Alton L. Blakeslee

Associated Press Science Reporter

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—You had better see your doctor when things go wrong, rather than take some old medicine in your medicine chest or a drug prescribed for someone else, Dr. Austin Smith warns.

For old drugs and many remedies that people take on their own judgment have "caused more unnecessary grief and even illness than can ever be calculated," he warns in a new book, "The Drugs You Use" (Revere Publishing Co.)

Dr. Smith is director of the division of therapy and research of the American Medical Association and secretary of its council on pharmacy and chemistry.

Drugs in your home medicine cabinet can be dynamite, he says. Sometimes old prescriptions change chemically, and can become harmful.

"Too often, people take drugs that the family doctor has prescribed earlier for someone else, for an entirely different sickness," he added in an interview. "The things they take may be actually harmful. Or the self-dosing may prolong the illness or make it worse before they do call the doctor."

Half Billion Outlay

AMERICANS in 1944 spent an estimated 500 million dollars on articles to stock their medicine cabinets, he writes. The figure is probably higher today.

He lists the seven most common forms of self-dosing as drugs for treating colds, laxatives, vitamins, sleeping tablets, pain-relievers, antiacids and kidney medicines.

"If you catch a cold, leave it alone," he writes. "Rest and sleep will shorten its duration. Eat and drink whatever you like—a cold doesn't last long enough to be affected by special diets.

"Nose drops and inhalants, when used properly and under expert medical advice, can help relieve some of the suffering. But otherwise they may do more harm than good."

Some nose drops relieve the stuffy feeling of a head cold temporarily. The congestion results because more blood is being supplied to the infected tissues to fight infection. Some nose drops constrict the tiny blood vessels, cutting down the blood supply and hence relieving the stuffy feeling. Later the congestion may become worse. Overuse of the drops may cause damage, Dr. Smith explained.

Laxatives can actually cause constipation, he writes.

Also, he says, "the supposed harmful effects of constipation, as normally observed in most persons, are unimportant. They are of no consequence when constipation is of brief duration and occurs only occasionally. Laxatives cannot be expected to bring back that schoolgirl complexion, that youthful step, or relief from tiredness, business failure or temper tantrums."

Surplus Vitamins

AS FOR vitamins, "only one tenth of 1 per cent of the people who take them without medical advice get any good from them. Most people get enough of the vitamins in their food. The additional amounts don't help them at all. It takes huge doses to overcome a real vitamin deficiency."

Trouble can come if people start taking big doses on the theory that "if a little is good, more is better." Overdoses of vitamin D can cause premature aging in the blood vessels and kidneys, Dr. Smith said. It isn't yet known if overdoses of other vitamins are harmful.

Overdoses of sleeping pills cause far too many deaths, sometimes accidentally, Dr. Smith said. The pills may affect a person so that he forgets he has already taken as many as he wanted to.

A few persons are helped by antiacids for stomach relief, Dr. Smith said. But they can cause alkalosis, and upset digestion. The result may be only to make the person more irritable and upset.

If you're fat, 99 chances out of 100 it's due to overeating. There's no drug generally available to the public that can take weight off safely, Dr. Smith said. Doctors prescribe some that dull the appetite. But the real treatment—and still the tough part—is that you have to eat less.

YOU HAVE about 1 chance in 10 of getting peptic ulcers, says Dr. McLeod C. Wilson, medical director of the Travelers Insurance Co., Hartford. It is estimated that "about 1,500,000 persons in the United States past age 10 are affected by peptic ulcer during a period of 10 years," he told the Association of Life Insurance Medical Directors of America. "The majority of ulcers first appear in the age group 30 to 40."

Flashes of lightning may be visible 15 to 20 miles away, say scientists of the General Electric Research Laboratory. Visibility would be limited by the curvature of the earth and type of terrain. But, in general, 15 miles probably is the limit for lightning strokes from clouds to the ground. "Heat lightning," distant strokes between clouds, might be visible up to 20 miles or more.

Tories Have 48-41 Edge Over Labor

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

IN contrast to the Democratic sweep in this country, there has been a steady decline in the popularity of Prime Minister Clement Attlee's government among British voters.

Satisfaction with the Labor government had reached a low ebb just before it faced a major test over the nationalization of the steel industry. Last week the Conservative Party served notice that it will make steel nationalization a major issue in the 1950 general elections.

If that is the case, those elections will bear a strong resemblance in reverse to Tuesday's voting in this country, when Truman's demand for repeal of the Taft-Hartley law turned out to be a major factor in the Democratic victory.

Positions Reversed

LATEST survey among representative English voters conducted by the British Institute of Public Opinion (Gallup Poll) reveal that, if the general elections were being held today instead of 1950 as scheduled, the positions of the Labor Party and the Conservative Party would be reversed from their standings in the 1945 elections.

The British Institute on a number of occasions has asked voters: "If there were a general election tomorrow, how would you vote?" The following table compares recent results of this question with the actual percentages of the 1945 election:

	1945 Election Pct.	January, 1948 Pct.	October, 1948 Pct.
Labor Party...	48	43	41
Conservative & Nat. Liberal	39	45	48
Liberal	9	11	10
Other	4	1	1

In the above table the no opinion vote has been eliminated, and the percentages are, of course, subject to the usual margin of error inherent in public opinion polling. The British Institute, one of the 11 foreign affiliates of the Gallup Poll, forecast the Labor Party's victory in 1945 with an error of 1 per cent.

Steel Excepted

AN indication of voter sentiment toward the government's proposal to take over the steel industry was provided by a poll conducted by the Institute in January of this year.

At that time 54 per cent of voters with opinions opposed the nationalization of the steel industry. On the other hand, 59 per cent of voters felt that the nationalization of the coal mines had been a success and 48 per cent believed that transport nationalization was working well, as against 42 per cent who thought it was a failure.

The British Institute's surveys also reveal a steady decline in Attlee's popularity with rank and file voters. The following trend is based on answers to the question, "On the whole do you approve of Mr. Attlee as Prime Minister?"

	Approve	Disapprove	No Opinion

Matter of Fact

'New Truman' to Follow Through

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

HARRY S. TRUMAN'S reaction to his own triumph is perhaps the most important single factor in the American political future at the moment. Already it is evident, from the testimony of those close to him, that victory against all the odds has very deeply changed the President. Determination and self-assurance have replaced the humility of the old Truman, who used to complain that he had never wanted the Presidency, was unprepared for it, and must utterly depend on the help of others.

The word "mandate" is being used around the White House with some freedom, as is reasonable. The President, feeling that he has won his mandate from the people by his own unaided efforts, has already let it be known that he means to fight hard to put his program into effect. Before November 2 his language was often strong, but his actions frequently failed to match his words. A different pattern is now to be expected.

In the domestic field, the result should be political drama almost verging on melodrama. Among other points included in the Presidential mandate are repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, enactment of the civil rights program so detested by the South and of housing, education and welfare legislation, and a broad extension of Social Security. Adding the vote for Truman to the vote for Democratic Governors, Senators and Representatives, there can be little doubt that a majority of the voters, especially in the North, want the President to put this program through if he can.

The South Won't Play

THE word from the White House is that he "will do his damnedest," and his damnedest will undoubtedly result in a struggle with Congress of really epic proportions. If it were not for the civil rights program, he might dragoon enough Southern Democrats into line to pass most of his program with some help from the more progressive Republicans.

The election of such men as Paul Douglas of Illinois and Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota has greatly strengthened the liberal Democratic element. The progressive Republicans will have noted the election results and adapted their behavior accordingly. But the Truman commitments on civil rights insure that all but such Southerners as Lister Hill and Estes Kefauver will remain at war with the White House. He has a paper, not a real, Congressional majority.

The word is already being passed, however, that the post-election Truman will deal with Congress in an entirely new way. His old system was to bundle all his recommendations into one vast message, and then stand on this rather meaningless written record to which Congress paid no attention whatever. The new system will be to insist on the mandate; to follow the fortunes of each individual piece of legislation; to seek actively to mobilize public opinion whenever Congress hangs back; and to use all the familiar Presidential weapons of pressure and persuasion on a major scale.

The adoption of the new system has already been presaged by the much closer relationship now established between the President and Vice President-elect Alben Barkley. While Senator Scott Lucas will have the formal title of Majority Leader (which would now have been Lister Hill's except for the civil rights issue), Barkley will have the real responsibility. Truman was Barkley's friend in his Senate days, when Barkley was his senior. But once in the White House, he seemed to secluded himself almost purposely from Barkley and the other Congressional chieftains, from the end of the honeymoon period onward. Now, on the other hand, Truman is going out of his way to indicate that his intimacy with Barkley is greater than ever.

Annoyed at State Department

THIS means more than mere gratitude for Barkley's doughty campaigning. It means that in the struggles with Congress that are ahead, the President intends to be his own general, and to use the Congressional leaders as his personal staff. The same phenomenon apparently marks the approach of the post-election Truman to the problems of foreign affairs.

In foreign relations, as in his dealings with Congress, the old Truman was like a constitutional monarch, who remains at home to preside inactively over the nation while trained military men carry on the campaigns in the field. With the solitary exceptions of Palestine policy and the unhappy plan for Chief Justice Vinson's mission to Generalissimo Stalin, every major decision of foreign policy from 1945 to the present was really taken by the chiefs of the State and Defense Departments, and was merely approved by the President pro forma.

Recently both Truman and his immediate entourage have been frankly annoyed by the resistance of the State Department to the President's suggestions concerning appointments as well as the Vinson mission and the Bernadotte report. For this and other obvious reasons, voices are not lacking in the White House to echo the determined mother of George III, who brought up her son with the continual advice, "George, be a king." Since the election, the President feels the inclination to rule himself.

Thus, as he means to superintend personally the struggle for his program in Congress, he also means to superintend personally the future development of American foreign policy. And this is singularly significant, for while the President's domestic program has already been outlined under his "mandate," foreign policy must be continually adapted to events.

It remains to be seen how this remarkable man, whose electoral feat seems only the more astonishing as it begins to recede into history, will handle the difficult, complex and highly sophisticated process of foreign policy-making. In the present circumstances of deepening crisis all over the world, one thing at least is clear. If American policy is mishandled, the result will probably be another war.

Ice Age Saves the Air Age

Close-up of a snow cave dug by students of the Alaska Air Command school. The entrance is made as small as possible to avoid loss of heat

By E. Q. Anderson
Associated Press Staff Writer

NOME, Alaska, Nov. 6.—A school for survival is holding class on frozen tundra and windswept ice packs.

The school was founded a year ago by the Alaska Air Command. Its purpose is to show fliers how to exist in the Arctic should a mishap maroon them.

A staff of "survival experts," both Air Force personnel and Eskimos, is the faculty. The course involves two problems—how to live indefinitely on either ice pack or tundra.

The tundra is the frozen plain north of Nome. The ice packs lie against the shoreline of the Seward Peninsula to the west and south.

The basic course is given in a week to classes of 60. The students are commissioned and enlisted members of flight crews on duty in Alaska.

One day of instruction in Nome starts the candidate off. The next day, walking on snowshoes and carrying a 50-pound pack, he moves north into the barren lands—choked with drifted snow and sparsely dotted with scrub willow trees. There he is isolated with a group of fellow trainees and an instructor at a theoretical crash site.

Then the battle begins for life and sanity in temperatures ranging from zero to 50 or 60 degrees below.

Candlepower Stove

THE FIGHT is waged with only the supplies the student has in his pack and the know-how of his instructor.

Shelters are built of blocks of snow or snow caves are dug into huge drifts. The students learn that snow is an excellent insulation against cold; that one small candle will warm the interior of a snow shelter so much that outer garments may be removed.

They find that parachutes, willow branches and string or wire will strengthen snow shelters. They learn that a saw is better than an ax or a knife for cutting snow blocks; that vents must be made to eliminate carbon monoxide gas from oil heaters.

They see that snow huts are windproof, virtually waterproof and easily heated.

The snow caves are usually dug by two men—one tunneling into the drift while the other removes the snow. To avoid loss of heat, the entrance is made as small as possible.

The sides and roof of the caves are formed into rough arches, increasing the structural strength and keeping melting snow on the inside of the walls from dripping on the occupants. The moisture freezes, forming an insulating coat of ice.

The main room is made high enough to permit the men to sit up at meals. These are cooked on gasoline stoves, small enough to fit into the pocket of a parka.

Fish Without Barbs

AFTER the lessons on the tundra, the students return to Nome for more lectures. Then they are loaded onto trucks and taken to the shoreline west of Nome.

There they hike onto the ice pack and follow procedures similar to those on the tundra.

There's a difference, however. They can fish. They are taught to fish through the ice with barbless hooks and how to land a fish without getting their mittens wet.

The entire group cooperates in building an ice house. This is approximately 6 feet in diameter, formed of ice blocks cut and shaped with a saw.

When the ice house is complete, snow is packed in the outside cracks and a fire is lighted outside, resulting in a coating of ice which further strengthens the shelter.

The Tenth Air Sea Rescue Squadron is in charge of rescue in Alaska. It is equipped with amphibian planes which in water rescues can drop completely equipped, nonsinkable, noncapsizable Higgins boats. In land operations, it can deliver supplies and complete dog teams by parachute.

The Air Force has found that dog teams are not by any means obsolete. They have proved to be the most reliable method of transportation in Polar regions.

The helicopter bogs down in heavy snow and soft ice; the amphibian caterpillar "weasel" frequently develops trouble because of frigid temperatures.

The Alaska Air Command says the roughest going can be overcome by dog teams. Eskimo drivers do most of the sled driving for United States forces in Alaska.

Life in Army 'Kindergarten'

Recruit Will Really Learn Rifle

By Rowland Evans, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

THE curtain has gone up on our second peacetime draft.

The first groups of the 25-year-old men went into the Army last week for 21 months.

The draft is designed to increase the strength of our Army from about 635,000 to about 900,000 by July 1, 1949. The Army says it cannot guess how much of this will be acquired by the draft; that voluntary enlistments are unpredictable. A good guess, though, is that 200,000 will be drafted the first year. The draft expires June 24, 1950.

What will these men run into?

For months the Army has been getting ready to receive them. Under the direction of Gen. Jacob L. Devers, Army Field Forces chief, it has worked out a minutely detailed training program to enable them to take over responsibile duties as soon as possible.

The Army feels it must train these men fast if it is to utilize them, for at the end of 21 months discharge is automatic for any draftee who wants it.

One in Virginia

MEN selected should find the civilian-to-military road a smooth one. Ten thousand go this month and 35,000 in the next two months.

After simple induction proceedings at Army recruiting stations, during which the oath is administered, the $75-a-month draftee is sent to one of the Army's eight basic training divisions.

These are at Camp Pickett, Blackstone, Va.; Fort Jackson, Columbia, S. C.; Fort Dix, Trenton, N. J.; Fort Knox, Louisville, Ky.; Camp Breckenridge, Morganfield, Ky.; Camp Chaffee, Fort Smith, Ark.; Fort Riley, Junction City, Kans.; Fort Ord, Monterey, Calif.

The Army says that recruits (their official title) will be sent to training camps nearest their home, but adds that this might not be possible in every instance.

"Basic training" is the Army term for military kindergarten. Recruits learn their left-right routine, how to fire a rifle, how to look neat in a fitted uniform and countless other "basic" military things. They operate on a strict 40-hour week.

On arrival at his training center, the recruit gets an orientation talk, is shown about the premises, meets his commanding officer and is told to write a letter home giving his new address.

Clothing, bedding, eating utensils and all other "basic" equipment are given him. He gets a dozen or so aptitude tests and immunization shots against major diseases.

72 Hours on Rifle

THESE THINGS consume the better part of a week. Then the 320-hour basic training starts in earnest.

His rifle, often called a soldier's best friend, will demand more of the recruit's attention than any other training item. Schedules call for 72 hours to be spent on rifle-familiarization and range-firing. The standard .30 M-1 (Garand rifle) and the .30 carbine are the weapons he uses.

A large part of those 72 hours is spent learning the weapons' mechanisms and how to clean them. "Snapping in" or "dry firing" with weapons unloaded teaches the recruit basic firing positions.

Next in length of time are two items labeled "physical training" and "individual tactical training," each of which takes 30 training hours.

Physical training means calisthenics, obstacle courses and other forms of hard exercise. Tactical training includes scouting and patrolling, erecting hasty fortifications, learning cover and movement, concealment and camouflage and practice in combat formations.

Only 24 hours are given over to drill.

Week by Week

HERE'S a rough outline of how the eight weeks will be apportioned.

FIRST WEEK

Instruction on maintenance of clothing and equipment, physical training, drill, military courtesy, sanitation, cleanliness, etc.

SECOND WEEK

Dry-firing and continuation of first week training.

THIRD WEEK

First whack at rifle firing. Also drilling and physical training.

FOURTH WEEK

Thirty-two hours' firing on the range.

FIFTH WEEK

Finish up rifle firing (12 more hours) and freshen up on basic military subjects.

SIXTH WEEK

Fire the carbine, go on short marches and learn something about bivouacs (short-duration encampments).

SEVENTH WEEK

Spent entirely in the field in combat maneuvers. There is no "live" firing. Maneuvers take place in the training camp's hinterland. (Average camp has 2500 acres).

EIGHTH WEEK

Brush-up of the whole basic training period and a general military subjects test.

If the recruit doesn't pass, he stays right on at basic training.

Four Possibilities

THE recruit is now eligible for, and will likely get, the rating of private and the $5 a month raise which goes with it.

Orders come through for transfer and the new private does one of four things:

1. Goes to a Regular Army unit for more advanced training, either here or abroad. This will happen to most draftees.

2. Goes to an Army school, like signal or artillery school, at a Regular Army post.

3. Stays at his training center to attend "leadership school" and becomes a permanent part of the training personnel.

4. Goes to an officer candidate school. Few draftees will do this. Those who do must agree to sign up for 24 months' service as an officer after graduating.

When its units get to authorized strength, the Army plans to lengthen its basic training course to 13 weeks.

The Magazine Rack

By Katharine Graham

WEEKLY news magazines had a harder time than most deciding how to cover the election, which came so near their deadlines. Time, with an incredible sleight of hand, managed four pages of news, complete with the by now standard admission that "Time was just as wrong as anybody else." Newsweek delivered its regular edition and followed it up closely with a 16-page extra election section. U. S. News and World Report, with an even earlier deadline, made the fatal assumption and discussed the difficulties a change of Administration would involve.

A SURVEY designed to assess the intensity of religious faith in this country was conducted by the Ladies Home Journal and the returns are analyzed in this issue by three theologians. There were three levels of inquiry: What do Americans believe? How fervent are their beliefs? Do they live according to their faith? The religious potential here is very great, the magazine found. Ninety-five per cent of those questioned said they believed in God. Its quality and active influence on American life are "not so obvious," adds Lincoln Barnett, who sums up the findings.

A STUDY of the relation of the church to a democratic state is made by Agnes E. Meyer in the Atlantic. In "The School, the State, and the Church," Mrs. Meyer defends the Supreme Court decision in the McCollum case which prohibits "released time" for sectarian education in the public schools. Instead of fighting this decision, the churches might better accept it as a stimulus to devise more effective and more constitutional methods of education, she contends.

THE TOP BRASS is busy rehashing events of the last war. Jimmy Doolittle's story, "Through Hell and High Brass," told by W. B, Courtney, starts in Collier's, and the first of three long installments from Gen. Holland M. (Howlin' Mad) Smith's forthcoming book is in the Saturday Evening Post. The tenor of the contents can be rapidly deduced from the title of this one, "Tarawa Was a Mistake," and the next one, to be called, "My Troubles With the Army on Saipan."

Doolittle's story is a personal account of how the General talked himself out of jobs with both MacArthur and Eisenhower, how he finally was put in charge of air for the North African invasion, of a personal narrow escape just before the invasion came off. It will continue next week with the organization of an effective striking force.

"I am convinced that we should have hit the Marshalls first, capturing Kwajalein, which we did two months later," says Smith . . . "Tarawa had no particular strategic importance; as a base it had little value." Although hard on the families of men lost there, as the Post editors concede there are lessons to be learned from the story about unification of the armed services.

LIFE FEATURES, "My Story—Joe Louis," as told to Meyer Berger and Barney Nagler. The first of two installments starts with Louis' birth in a sharecropper shack in Alabama, and carries him through the slums of Detroit to his marriage and the Max Baer fight.

A rather large picture of Princess Elizabeth making her final public appearance is run over a story by Alfred Wright, jr., glamor boy and former Navy dive bomber pilot, about where and how she will have her baby.

MAXINE DAVIS presents a grim picture of "Our Fearful Youth" in McCall's. Above all things, youth today wants security, she found on a trip around the country. The prosperity generation is not interested in doing a great job or trying out new ideas. Good pay, long vacations, no work Saturdays and a set future are the prime requisites of young people today, she says.

JIM CONZELMAN, head coach of the Chicago Cardinals Football Club, theorizes in Cosmopolitan that there is an unknown quantity "X" which permits a very few athletes to find exultation and excitement from so-called body-contact sports—football, boxing and wrestling. You have it or you don't, and most of us don't. In either case it has no relation to courage, Conzelman observes.

That great expert on the war between the sexes, James Thurber, advances "Ten Rules for a Happy Marriage," also in Cosmo.

A SET of do's and don'ts for those who go to meetings and lectures are set forth by Gerald Frank in Good Housekeeping. Some people go to listen to a talk; others go to ask questions, says Frank. The questions fall into categories such as, "Didn't you contradict yourself when . . ." and the belligerent, "How come you have the right to stand up there and say . . ." Then there is the question designed to ridicule the speaker, and the one asked to show how much the questioner knows. Thumbnail rules for model behavior are given.

This is the laughing scene described in Eric Johnston's book, when Stalin got off a wisecrack about American politics. Molotov, at Johnston's right, obviously didn't get the joke. Ambassador Harriman was on the other side of Stalin, isn't shown in this picture

Johnston Has Some Good Ideas

Eric's as Brave as He Is Smug

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

WE'RE ALL IN IT. By Eric Johnston. 220 pp. E. P. Dutton & Co. $2.75.

"IN RUSSIA, a man is counted. In America, he counts."

You can find this capsule judgment, and dozens of others like it, in Eric Johnston's new book, in which he airs his views on America's role in the world. The book is as slick in its style, and profound in its thought, as a full page of institutional advertising.

Eric Johnston's place in American life is not to be measured just by his job as president of the Motion Picture Association. He is also one of the most vocal leaders of the Committee for Economic Development, which has tried for six years to put political and economic sense into the heads of American business leaders.

And he happens to be one of the smoothest and most persuasive salesmen of American private enterprise at home and abroad. Only the other day he came home from a whirlwind trip on which he managed to do business with Stalin, Tito, Franco and the British Labor Government.

Johnston was able to do it because, as a British newspaper remarked of him the other day, he thinks "the welfare of the film industry and the increase of peace, prosperity, culture and happiness all over the world are synonymous." He has the same evangelical faith in American private enterprise that a Communist has in the Soviet system.

Nominates Dubinsky

IN HIS new book he hastens to explain that present-day American capitalism is not at all what other countries think it is. Other countries, he says, still think we have the old-fashioned monopoly capitalism, whereas our present-day industry has given greater blessings to labor as well as management than any system since man emerged from the caves.

He concedes that the American system has shortcomings, which he names as "slums, discrimination, unequal opportunity, unfair distribution of the fruits of our abundance, inadequate educational facilities, inadequate public health, wasteful plundering of our natural resources."

"We can get rid of them," he writes, "only as we own up to them, blush about them and do something about them."

These are brave words for an American businessman; and it is brave, too, for Johnston to suggest that labor leaders would make our best ambassadors abroad, and that American interests would be well served by Philip Murray as Ambassador to France and David Dubinsky as Ambassador to Italy.

But the smugness of this book is so overpowering that its brief mention of possible American faults reads as if Johnston had an afterthought. We are the world's leaders, Johnston says; we are unlike others in that we have no evil motives; we may be unversed in the arts of diplomacy, but "we're bluff, outspoken, impatient, candid;" "we use no diplomatic double talk in telling what we stand for"—the assumption being, of course, that everyone else does—and our social and economic system "has bestowed more freedoms on us than are possessed by any other people."

This is the sort of thing that makes hackles rise in the slave trade of Canada, for example, or in those cringing and poverty-stricken autocracies of Sweden and Switzerland or New Zealand, or even in England which, presumably, has never learned the blessings of freedom.

40 Pct. on Russia

IT is a pity that a man as widely traveled and as quick-minded as Eric Johnston should be so self-righteous. For he is a man of many good ideas, and he has put some of them into this book. He writes intelligently of labor-management relations and of the potentialities of American production in raising world standards of living.

He devotes 4 of his 10 chapters to Russia on the strength of his six weeks there in 1944, and here

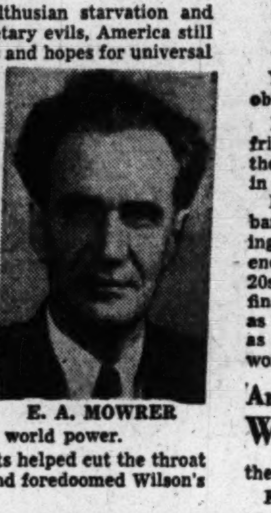
Naive Diplomacy Angers Mowrer

THE NIGHTMARE OF AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY. By Edgar Ansel Mowrer. Knopf. 256 pp. $2.95.

IN A WORLD threatened by Soviet aggression, atomic destruction, Malthusian starvation and half a hundred other planetary evils, America still sits and twiddles its thumbs and hopes for universal peace, freedom and prosperity.



E. A. MOWRER

At least that is the contention of Edgar Ansel Mowrer, who, as a keen student of foreign affairs for more than 30 years, is appalled at our naivete and incompetence in the realm of diplomacy.

Geography saved us until the turn of the century. Then Theodore Roosevelt's "Big Stick" and Woodrow Wilson's collective security showed that a few Americans were beginning to visualize our inevitable role as a world power.

Lodge and the isolationists helped cut the throat of peace during the 1920s and foredoomed Wilson's League to failure.

In the 30s we plumped for the Good Neighbor Policy (excellent in itself) but remained essentially isolationist until shortly before Pearl Harbor, thus strengthening the hand of such conscienceless aggressors as the leaders of Germany, Japan and Italy.

The Overriding Law

BUT we made equally fatal mistakes from 1941 to 1945, says Mowrer, by appeasing Stalin as Munich-minded men had once appeased Hitler. And we suffered (in the author's estimation) a terrific drubbing at Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam.

Only recently have we learned to our bitter sorrow that the West can't do business with Stalin and Molotov.

Mowrer has as few illusions as Machiavelli concerning power politics. So long as we have no operating world government, there is but one "law" among sovereign states—the law of the jungle.

Furthermore:

You can't "outlaw" war.

You can't cure it with pious sentiment.

You can't wish it or pray it out of existence.

You probably can't buy, bribe or trade it into oblivion.

People aren't essentially "evil." But, hungry, frightened, befuddled, exploited and badly led, they grope their way into situations from which, in the past, war has often seemed the only out.

Meanwhile America is looking right down the barrel of the big Soviet gun. We are still weakening some friends (China) and bolstering some enemies (Germany) as we did during the idiotic 20s and the desperate 30s. So if an atomic war finally overwhelms the planet, it will be due almost as thoroughly to our own diplomatic incompetence as to the well-laid Soviet plan to dominate the world.

An Impotent Device

WHAT to do:

Stop kidding ourselves about the power of the U. N. with its present crippling veto.

Follow up the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan with strong regional pacts, military preparation and unflinching toughness in facing Russia.

But, most important of all, make a titanic effort to create a real world government—with or without Russia. We have a tragically brief period in which to federate or perish. And the peoples of the world, if not their governments, are ready for the imperative step which alone can save us.

Mowrer was right about Hitler in 1933. He is right about Stalin and Molotov today. He is categorically right about world federation. For years his batting average has been above .900 on international prognostication. Those who ignore his present warning do so at their own risk.

Only One Fulfilled Pattern

Magi Traced to Dawn of History

By the Rev. Craig E. Eder

Rector of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and former assistant at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase, Md.

THE MYTH OF THE MAGUS, by E. M. Butler. Cambridge-Macmillan, $3.75.

AMONG the six tribes of ancient Medes was a caste of magician priests called Magus. The word "magic" is derived from the name. These men march in through the dawn of history, but their order appears again and again throughout all ages, repeating the same feats, following the same life pattern.

Miss Butler Schroeder, professor of German at the University of Cambridge, has written a remarkable study of the recurrent pattern of folk imagination as age by age it brings forth the magi. The reality of the magic feats is doubtful, but folk tales gather like cobwebs around mysterious old figures. It is in these cobwebs, in the race imagination, that Miss Butler finds a pattern.

Miss Butler started a short essay on the place of Faust in the historic line of magicians, but ended with a diagrammatic survey of the whole line. The historic Faust that she found was a crude, cheap magician who was a genius at self advertisement. About him crystallized the post-Luther belief in the reality of the devil and his black dealings with men. The Faust created by men's mytho-poetic tendency looked a lot like all the other magi.

Miss Butler analyzed the points they had in common, then described the magi in terms of the pattern. The common points are: (1) A supernatural or mysterious origin; (2) portents at birth; (3) perils menacing infancy; (4) an initiation; (5) far-distant wanderings; (6) a magical contest; (7) a trial or persecution; (8) a last scene; (9) a violent or mysterious death; (10) a resurrection or ascension.

Primitive Origin

THIS outline is an elaboration of the kingship ritual of primitive tribes; that is, the death of the hero and his rebirth as a god. The same pattern runs through Greek tragedy and the kingship rites of Egypt, Mesopotamia and Palestine.

Moses and Solomon have many of the characteristics of the magus, yet they only partially fulfill the pattern. It is remarkable how the Bible holds down its heroes, compared with other stories and other heroes. For further traditions and myths, Miss Butler uses the rich legends outside the Bible, some from the Apocrypha.

Though few pages are devoted to Christ, he is the center of the entire book. In Christ alone is the pattern fulfilled completely. His contest took the form of temptations by Satan. One of them was to prove His divinity by the use of magic.

Simon Magus followed Christ. He represents the downfall of the magus through the power of Christianity. He made the mistake of engaging in a magic contest with St. Peter.

Magi of the Dark Ages take the color of their times; Theophulus and Gerbert teach the moral lesson that people should leave the black arts alone.

Friar Bacon represented a more humanistic approach to magic. He made mirrors which would show what anybody in the world was doing. He had to smash them because they diverted curious Oxford students from their work.

'Democratic' Magi

IN OUR OWN times the magi have returned in the form of secret societies. The reader feels that through these organizations the magi have become democratic.

There is one criticism of the book. The magi are obviously magi, but very few of them meet the 10-point description of magi's characteristics. Before Christ they hit seven or eight of the points; afterward, only one or two or three.

Miss Butler has written a splendid descriptive work; now we need an intrepretation. Why did the myth fade after Christ? Why is Christ the only complete fulfillment of the myth? Why are the Gospel stories so much closer to actual history than the myths about the others?

Perhaps the pattern is a description of a native understanding in man of God's way of revelation. Without an expectation of Christ, Christ would not have been recognized. So men attached their ideas of Christ to every mysterious figure that came along. Their longing could only find fulfillment in the true Magus. But this is the work of a theoretical book, on the religious level.

This book is filled with rich stories and a wealth of interesting material. It makes excellent reading and is completely worth while, since it leads to the deepest questions of life.

MAHATMA GANDHI, An Interpretation. By E. Stanley Jones. Abingdon-Cokesbury. 160 pp. $2.

E. STANLEY JONES, famous as a missionary-evangelist and as the author of such books as "The Christ of the American Road" and "Along the Indian Road," gives an admiring and sympathetic account of Gandhi and the problems of India. Though Dr. Jones describes his book as an "interpretation," it is also a good introduction, written from firsthand knowledge.

THE SWISS WITHOUT HALOS, by J. Christopher Herold. Columbia. $3.75.

HEROLD, who was educated in Switzerland, debunks the popular idea that Switzerland is a picture-postcard land where yodelers and watchmakers live together in perfect harmony. The Swiss were the most ferocious mercenaries of the Middle Ages, he says, and they fought among themselves until comparatively recent times. It is good-humored debunking, but he notes that Switzerland is behind every other democratic country in the world in denying women suffrage.

WHAT GRANDPA LAUGHED AT, by Homer Croy. Duell, Sloan. $2.75.

NOVELIST CROY has made a compilation of American humor from the Chicago World's Fair through World War I, devoting a chapter to each year from 1893. There are hundreds of jokes, but it is more than a jokebook, for Croy's comments show the trends in American humor and the development of some current jokes.

WINE, WOMEN AND WORDS, by Billy Rose. Simon & Schuster. $3.

THIS book is a byproduct of the Broadway showman's newspaper column, but it is no paste-up job. He has used some of his columnar material, but this is a writing job by itself. And, of course, it's pure Broadway—a slangy picture of a fast-changing way of life.

FIRE IN THE HEART, by Henrietta Buckmaster. Harcourt Brace. $3.

AN ALMOST legendary figure of the theater becomes a very real young woman in this novel about the fabulous Fanny Kemble. It is the story of a child of 18 blossoming into a woman with "fire in her heart," envied by other women and desired by men, but a major character is her easy-going father. He wants her to choose her own way, but it becomes a question of losing Covent Garden to his creditors or arranging her debut as Juliet. The story follows Fanny to her American triumphs in the 1830s, and finds her a husband.

I CAPTURE THE CASTLE, by Dodie Smith. Atlantic, Little, Brown. $3.

ESSENTIALLY, this is the story of the wild, wonderful Mortmains' rise from deepest poverty to a fairyland of prosperity for all and husbands for both daughters. Its charm, however, is in the combination of discernment and girlish wonder with which Cassandra Mortmain captures the delightful people of her world in her journal.

THE LOCK AND KEY, by Frank Gruber. Rinehart. $2.

SOME RAPID romance is dovetailed into this murder story involving a lock expert snagged by a couple of crooks to do a safe deposit job for them. The fancy double-crossing that results adds up to good entertainment.

Readin' and Writin'

By Lee Grove

JACOB BLANCK, a former Washington resident now living in New York, knows that his new book for wee fry, "Jonathan and the Rainbow," is good.

Of the 400 stories he told his daughter Rosamunde, now 7, this was her favorite. He figures the story was really polished up in his frequent retelling of it upon her demand. (This might be an idea for other fathers who yearn to be authors.)

Blanck is an authority on early books for children, as well as American first editions, but this is the first time he has felt impelled to write a children's book himself.

Another odd thing about the book is that the illustrator, Louis Slobodkin, has a considerable reputation as a sculptor. Chiseling granite and limning children's books seem to come equally naturally to him.

An Old Favorite

MARIAN KING of 4707 Connecticut ave. nw., had a different reason for writing "Young King David," a recent Lippincott publication addressed to teen-age-to-adult readers.

She has loved the story since childhood, and wanted to retell it.

Fleming James, authority on Old Testament history and visiting professor of divinity at Yale Theological Seminary, contributed the foreword, and Steel Savage did the illustrations.

Miss King has about 15 other books to her credit, among them another biography for young people, "Elizabeth, the Tudor Princess."

Author! Author!

AS editor in chief of Doubleday, few authors are heroes to dark, slender Ken McCormick, but General Eisenhower is the shining exception.

"We were all just overwhelmed by him," McCormick says, "when working on 'Crusade in Europe'.

"When the General wants to get something done, he has a single-track mind. During the writing of his book he didn't exist for anything else. I never saw anything like it for concentration."

To relieve the tedium and tension while waiting for the start of the African invasion, the General wrote about 60,000 words of his book in the caves of Gibraltar. The rest of it was written in the interval between leaving the Army and assuming the duties of president of Columbia University, the General dictating for hours at a time.

His secretary was Douglas Waldrop, who sometimes felt like dropping out of his chair from fatigue as he took down the quarter of a million words. The typing was done by John Kennedy, like Waldrop, a former Washington resident.

"The General is so quick to grasp situations," McCormick says, "that sometimes during conferences we felt as if he knew as much about the publishing business as we did. One time, for example, we were discussing the limited edition of the book, and his signing it. The frontispiece is a reproduction of the order for the invasion of France, so the General suggested that instead of just signing his name on the flyleaf of each copy that he autograph the order itself, and thus each owner of the book would have a signed copy of the order."

Weems' Washington

ADVANCE SALE OF Douglas Southall Freeman's "George Washington" totaled more than 10,000 copies, according to Scribner's.

In reviewing the Freeman work, a national weekly referred to Mason Locke (Parson) Weems' biography of Washington, with its famous anecdote of George chopping down the cherry tree—which brings to mind that a copy of Weems' biography is among President Woodrow Wilson's books in the Library of Congress.

The Lincoln Museum in the Ford Theater on 10th st. also has a copy similar to that read by Lincoln. Lincoln as a boy borrowed the copy from a neighbor, and one night stuffed it between the chinks of his cabin. It rained during the night and the book was destroyed. He split rails for three days to pay for it.

Eric Even Dented Stalin's Shell

again there is much good sense in what he says about the Russian people and the evil system under which they live. He is convinced that we can do more to reach the mind and heart of "plain Russian Ivan," who "doesn't want war any more than plain American Joe."

His most entertaining chapter is his account of a talk with Stalin in the summer of 1944. It wasn't an easy interview; at first Stalin was bored and rude, and doodled without looking at his American visitor.

But Eric Johnston is irrepressible, even in the Kremlin. In the end he had a two-hour talk which made him feel, as he says in this book, that "I know Joseph Stalin," and convinced him that the master of the Kremlin is "both saint and devil."

Joe Makes a Joke

WHAT Stalin said in this talk was not as new or as important as Johnston makes it seem. The master of the Kremlin reeled off so many facts and statistics about the American economy that Johnston was "amazed"; he harped on the inevitable American depression; he showed that he knew "little or nothing about the soul of America—or how America thinks."

Stalin posed for pictures at the end of the visit, standing between Johnston and Ambassador Harriman. He laughed while the cameras ground away. As Johnston tells the story:

"'What's the joke?' I asked. He replied: 'Imagine me having my picture taken between a Republican and a Democrat! Maybe I can be the means of bringing your two parties together'."

All this is good clean fun and adds to the great American myth of jovial Joe. Johnston does not mention that within a few weeks of that interview in 1944, Stalin ordered the American Air Force to get out of its shuttle-bombing bases on Soviet soil and, in effect, told the United States to go to blazes.

Gov. Edge Has A Good Word For Hague

AS active at 75 as most men in their forties, Edge tells his story of success in one of the most rough and tumble public arenas in the world—New Jersey politics.

There is no false modesty in his direct and forceful tale of starting to work as a printer's devil for $5 a week at the age of 15, and amassing millions in building a world-wide advertising business. But his first and constant love was public life.

He became assemblyman, State senator, Governor during both World Wars, United States Senator for two terms and Ambassador to France.

Something of a believer in the theory that the end justifies the means, Edge fought on a State and national scale for reforms that read like the history of the good Government movement in the United States. His inside story of a half-century of contact with leaders of two continents is interwoven with a frankly partisan account of his triumphs and relatively few defeats.

He quotes with apparent approval a rival's characterization: "Walter Edge is a terribly dangerous guy to sit down with in a back room." Alternately accused of being an Old Guard Republican and "a New Deal turncoat," Edge makes no bones about using his patronage and appointing power while Governor to whip his program through a balky Legislature, and to win elections.

But he shows a remarkable fairness to his foes. Of his arch political enemy, Democratic Leader Frank Hague, he writes:

"Justice compels me to correct the impression created by his many critics that he is the incarnation of all evil. True, he is a cold, calculating and ruthless political boss, but he is at the same time, an able administrator with strong humanitarian qualities, and Jersey City is in many ways a well-managed municipality."—LEWIS C. STANLEY.

100 PRINTS IN Full Color OF THE WORLD'S GREAT PAINTINGS

Including 25 of the famous masterpieces rescued from Germany NOW BEING EXHIBITED IN AMERICAN MUSEUMS including portfolio!

Like Having an Art Museum in Your Home

—and with the informative descriptions about the painter and his work that come with each reproduction, it is like being conducted through that Museum, whenever you feel the urge, by someone who can point out the beauties and the significance of the great paintings of the world. The most treasured examples of Art are included.

IF BOUGHT SEPARATELY, THEY WOULD COST AS MUCH AS $25.00

ALL SUITABLE FOR FRAMING

NOTE TO PRESENT MEMBERS: If you would like to have The Portfolio of 100 Full Color Masterpieces under the Club's book-dividend system, write for information as to how to obtain it.

HOW THIS OFFER CAN BE MADE: For many years, the Book-of-the-Month Club NEWS has included in every issue a reproduction in full color of a world-famous painting. Hundreds of high schools and colleges have come to use these beautiful reproductions in their art classes, and many thousands of people over the country, we find, have been collecting them. Over the years the highly expensive full-color plates, necessary for such fine reproduction, have accumulated one by one and—with the recent addition of many of the famous German-owned masterpieces now being exhibited—by printing them all together in one large edition, this extraordinary gift to new members has been made possible.

You buy many Club selections ANYWAY—why not get those you want from the Club, often PAY LESS, and share in the Club's book-dividends which totalled over $30,000,000 in the past two years

AS a member you pay only for the particular books you decide to take. You may take as few as four selections in any twelve-month period.

You receive a careful pre-publication report about each selection. If you decide you want it, you need do nothing; it will come to you on a regular shipping date. If you don't want it, you may either specify any other book you want, or simply write, "Send me nothing next month."

The amount you pay for the Book-of-the-Month is the regular retail price set by the publisher in each case, frequently less. Notice, in the coupon, that the members' price is substantially lower in four out of six cases. (A small charge is added to cover postage and other mailing expenses.) Yet with every second Book-of-the-Month you take, you receive—free—one of the Club's valuable book-dividends. These are beautiful library volumes, sometimes two-or-three volume sets.

Since the books you take from the Club are only those you would buy anyway, the saving is extraordinary. We suggest you try it for a short time, and see how it works. You may begin your subscription by ordering any book listed in the coupon at right.

'D. C. Weatherman'—All 5 of Him—Forecasts for 50 Million Persons

By Charles Davis, Jr.
Post Reporter

PERHAPS you've pictured your weather forecaster as a grumpy, pipe-chewing individual dozing by a telephone with a thermometer at his elbow.

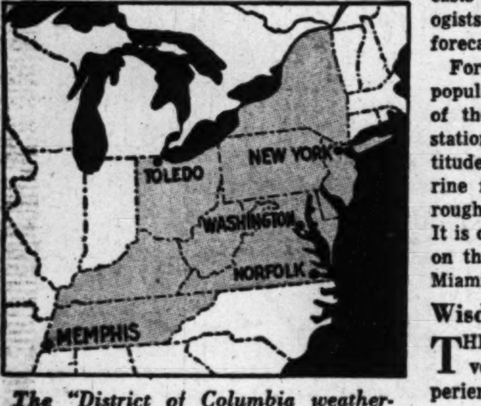
Actually, it's so easy to dial WEather 1212 and get the latest forecast that you might get that impression. But a visit to the Weather Bureau Station at National Airport will convince you otherwise.

There you will find a smooth working staff of about 70 persons and an awe-inspiring display of scientific apparatus.

You will see a radar screen that spots rain or snow at a distance of 100 or more miles.

You will see a clever mechanism that measures the height of clouds over the airport.

You will see a tiny transmitting set—radiosondes, they are called—that are sent aloft by balloons to heights as great as 80,000 feet, to transmit back to the station recordings of air pressure, temperature and humidity.



The "District of Columbia weatherman" forecasts for the entire shaded area of the United States and for a great wedge of ocean including two thirds of the North Atlantic and the whole sweep of the Gulf of Mexico

You will see other delicate apparatus that measures every pertinent scrap of weather data to its finest point.

A Very Large Backyard

METEOROLOGIST in charge at the station is R. C. Schmidt, who has almost 25 years' experience in the Weather Bureau.

One thing that constantly dismays Schmidt is to find that the general public (and most newspaper reporters) believe the District forecaster at his station charts the weather for only the District of Columbia.

There is not one but five District forecasters, and their "district" embraces the District of Columbia and 10 States in which live more than 50 million persons—better than one third of this country's population.

The States are Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York.

It works this way: The station at National Airport prepares weather maps and forecasts for each of the States and meteorologists in the various States expand on these forecasts for their own localities.

Forecasting the weather for this densely populated land area is only a minor part of the duties assigned the local weather station. It must also make special high altitude forecasts for aviation. It makes marine forecasts for an ocean area which is roughly two thirds of the North Atlantic. It is one of three hurricane forecast centers on the East Coast, others being located at Miami and Boston.

Wisdom of Centuries

THE FIVE District forecasters are all veterans. They have a combined experience of 123 years, or slightly less than 25 years per man.

But their responsibility is a heavy one. A third of the Nation looks to them for its weather forecasts. Ships on the often turbulent Atlantic expect them to provide the latest information on weather conditions at sea with immediate warnings of any severe storms.

Mary Earley, 3024 Wisconsin ave. nw., an observer at the National Airport Weather Bureau, uses a telescopelike theodolite to check the path of a free balloon carrying instruments to high altitudes to compute wind velocity and direction

Radar is comparatively new as a means of forecasting, but Meteorologist R. C. Schmidt can detect rainstorms within a 100-mile radius by watching the screen. They show up as patches of light of varying size and intensity

The station's Aviation Forecast Service is used by 18 major air terminals in this part of the country and approximately 30 private airports located within a 25-mile radius of Washington. Many of the forecasters in this branch are pilots themselves.

The station also prepares special trip forecasts for transatlantic and transcontinental flights.

Communications are an important part of modern day weather forecasting. To speed the hundreds of weather observations to forecast offices and other weather offices, the Government maintains a widespread system of teletype, radio, telegraph and telephone communications.

The public never loses interest in the state of the weather. Sometimes the interest runs high, as during last August when a local heat wave and the threat of a Florida hurricane resulted in a record number of more than 165,000 calls during a 24-hour period to WEather 1212.

(The latest forecasts and hourly temperatures are transmitted to the telephone company by teletype).

The weather station also receives many direct calls, many from travelers, some from women wanting to know if it will be cold enough for their fur coats.

An Overnight Bag Lasts Just About That Long at NBS

"SMASH YOUR BAGGAGE, SIR?" The National Bureau of Standards here has been doing that for a year now. Not with the exuberance of the ordinary redcap, but with cold, calculating, scientific methods.

Object is to test the structural strength of luggage, and to devise voluntary standards to guide luggage makers in how best to foil baggage-smashers encountered in suitcase travels. The means are said to justify the ends.

Already the project has passed a milestone. The scientists say they have found "a strong correlation" between the damage their machines inflict on luggage and the everyday rigors of suitcases in transit. And to make the tests authentic, the scientists have been filling the suitcases to "maximum capacity," which they say is what the average traveler does most of the time, anyway.

One NBS test consists of free-dropping each bag 26 times each from eight different heights. This, they say, simulates everything transportation can do short of a train wreck or airplane crash. Another machine, a standard puncture tester, plunges its pyramidal arm into luggage sides and panels to determine puncture resistance.

The third major test, on a baggage bouncer, lifts two bags alternately 37 times a minute for a total of 25,000 pull-ups on each suitcase handle. At the knee-high height of each lift, the bag is dropped with a bounce on the floor, thoroughly testing its hardware.

The laboratory testings were matched by service tests. In these, suitcases similar to those being abused at NBS were dispatched periodically by train. They were thus transported for a total of 12,000 miles on 22 roundtrips from Washington to the compass points.

The commercial services do a good job, too, in baggage smashing, acknowledged the scientific smashers.

The NBS project, a continuing one, is under direction of Dr. Robert B. Hobbs. An assistant, Edward T. Steiner, technologist, does the large share of the manual work, the day by day hoisting of 24 bags, some weighing 60 pounds, 26 times each, at eight levels ranging from 1½ to 5 feet.

Bend. Lift. Steady. Release trap. Bang. Twenty-four times 26 times 8 equals—"Smash your baggage, sir?"

Rat-Trappers Trace a Killer

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

THREE YEARS AGO, two young farm boys of Loudoun County, Va., mysteriously began losing weight, wasted away and died.

The circumstances were such to attract attention of the medical profession and the United States Public Health Service. And since then, USPHS scientists have been seeking the cause—as yet without significant success.

The 9-year-old boy and his 7-year-old brother had died, successively, from histoplasmosis, rare fungus disease that attacks the internal organs, autopsies revealed.

The disease was not unknown. It was recorded as a cause of human death back in 1905. And since that year a total of 120 deaths had been ascribed to the same fungus that grows in the vitals, frequently the liver and the spleen.

Though the organism can be detected before death, medical science is as yet unable to halt its fatal course, which ranges from several weeks to several years.

Death Without Pain

THE DISEASE is infectious, but not contagious; chronic, and slowly progressive. Symptoms are so varied that diagnosis cannot be made on clinical grounds alone. It can and is diagnosed by blood smears and bone marrow and tissue examinations.

Victims show emaciation, have irregular fever and may show gross enlargement of the liver and spleen, enlarged by the mass of fungus that grows yeast-like there. Histoplasmosis is not painful—just deadly.

Doctors didn't have very much to go on, but the double tragedy in Loudoun County offered one small clue. Those who had studied the disease recalled that of the deaths recorded before 1945, two others were of Loudoun County farm children.

And it had been suspected, but never proved, that rats, common barn rats, could be a body host to the fungus.

So while Dr. Byron J. Olson and Dr. Joseph A. Bell instituted a search for additional human cases of histoplasmosis in the area, the Public Health Service started a rat-trapping program around farmhouses and barns of Loudoun County. This project and the improvement of diagnostic methods were turned over to Chester W. Emmons, principal mycologist, and his assistant, Samuel Salvin.

Last week the two researchers reported they have yet to find the natural source of the fungus. And they have yet to find, they added, any direct evidence that the disease is transmitted from rats to man.

Many Found Infected

REPORTING on the rat-trapping program, Dr. Emmons said that in the past two years more than 700 barn rats have been trapped and brought to the National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md., for study.

The fungus was found infecting 22 of these, Dr. Emmons said. On one farm alone, 6 of 29 rats trapped were hosts to the organism. At another farmhouse, three of nine rats trapped were harboring the organism.

But rats, apparently, are resistant to histoplasmosis. Those experimentally infected with it were not killed by it, the research team reported.

Besides seeking the source of histoplasmosis in man, the researchers are looking for a simple test to detect its presence, and possible means of arresting the fungus growth or dissipating the organism entirely.

Painstaking serological testings now show promise that a simple, Wasserman-like blood test may be perfected to detect histoplasmosis.

The mycologists are not disheartened. Their work will go on, and perhaps some day a cure will be found.

A New Printing Technique Aids Virginia Weekly

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

A NEW technique in newspaper printing has been adopted by the North Virginia Free Press, combining varitype with offset printing.

Officials say it has halved costs.

The 2-year-old weekly has its office in the Shirlington shopping center. It was started by George H. Engeman, a newspaperman of 25 years' experience on the Baltimore Sun and the Washington Star, in the basement of his home.

About a month ago, Semour J. Spelman, a Parkfairfax resident, joined Engeman and his wife as associate publisher and business manager. His first problem was, "Every week we put this paper out, we're losing money."

They installed a varitype machine equipped with a differential space adjuster, which varies space between words in a line rather than between letters.

Varitype has principally been used on strikebound newspapers, a fact which has caused some reflection by Engeman, who headed the American Newspaper Guild unit in Baltimore, and Spelman, who resigned as a National Labor Relations Board attorney after the Taft-Hartley Act was enacted.

Spelman declared emphatically, "We are going into varitype not to beat the International Typographical Union or undercut standards for linotype operators. This system turns out a fine paper at a reduced cost—not just reduced labor costs, but reduced capital and physical operating cost."

In the new process, stories are typed twice, once in the usual manner and a second time so the "D. S. A." can justify the lines. The copy is then pasted in position, headlines and pictures are added and the entire paste-up is then photographed and printed by offset.

They're Ready to 'Break Mud' At Last for Chesapeake Span

By Patricia Parslow

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 6—Nearly five miles of steel and concrete, riding high over Chesapeake Bay, forming one of the world's longest bridges . . .

On this, a half-century-long dream of Marylanders, preliminary construction work is about to begin, and by the first of the year the biggest engineering job in this area in recent years is scheduled to be well under way.

The 28-million-dollar span is expected to have drastic effect on the whole of Maryland, linking its heretofore isolated Eastern Shore to Baltimore and Washington. The bridge is scheduled for completion in 1951.

Stretching from Sandy Point, just north of the present ferry slip, it will run southeast for a mile into the bay, then swing due east to Kent Island on a line with Stevensville.

A million and a half cars a year—70 per cent of them from out of the State—are expected to roll over the bridge's 28-foot roadway. The span will cut 40 to 60 miles off a trip between the two parts of the State.

And, with projected relocation of Highway 301 and construction of another bridge at New Castle, Del., across the Delaware River, the Chesapeake span will permit traffic from Richmond to New York to bypass Washington, Baltimore, Wilmington and Philadelphia.

Some New Customers

MORE significant, however, will be an expected shift of wholesale and retail trading by eastern Marylanders from Wilmington and Philadelphia to Baltimore and Washington.

Heretofore, either a ferry trip or a long drive was necessary for eastern Marylanders to reach Maryland's chief city or the District of Columbia.

With a length of 24,816 feet, the span will be in a class with the 27,000-foot Gandy Bridge at Port Tampa, Fla.; the 23,178-foot James River Bridge at Newport News, Va., and the 22,700-foot Oakland Bay Bridge in San Francisco.

In 1907, private capital made the initial proposal to bridge the bay. Nothing came of it. Announced in 1918 but soon abandoned was another plan by private capital, this time for a double-deck span to carry railroad, trolley and vehicle traffic.

A private company actually was chartered to carry out the job in 1926. In 1931 the State Legislature authorized it to proceed with plans for a span from Miller's Island to Tolchester. This project also lapsed and 10 years later the company's charter was annulled.

The State entered the picture in the middle 30s, encouraged by the possibility of obtaining New Deal assistance. Under the Public Works Administration, the State planned four bridges. Two of these—spanning the Potomac and Susquehanna Rivers—were opened to the public in 1940.

The two remaining projects were a Patapsco River crossing and the Chesapeake span. A contract to go into the engineering phases of the bay bridge was let, but the project went no further.

Older Spans Help

ALMOST a decade later, the administration of Governor Lane took up the bay crossing. Finances were the first hurdle.

The Susquehanna and Potomac spans are toll bridges. Indebtedness on the two will be paid off in a few months, but to keep tolls on the proposed bay bridge at a reasonable level, the State hoped to continue tolls over the completed bridges.

Permission to continue charging tolls on the Potomac bridge had to be obtained from the Federal Government, since this is an interstate thoroughfare. Under a law passed by Congress last spring, Maryland may pool the Susquehanna and Potomac and the proposed Chesapeake and Patapsco bridges as one project. Revenues from those in operation will go into a general fund to finance all four.

New plans for the bridge were submitted to the Army Engineers May 28 and were approved June 30. Specifications and cost figures were delivered to the State Roads Commission July 1.

The original plans would have cost 27 million dollars. A change adding a million dollars to its cost was necessitated by objections of shipping circles to unprotected anchors for the suspended span over the main shipping lane to Baltimore.

This change entailed further approval by the Army, which was received October 6.

37½ Million in All

TO THE 28 millions for actual construction, there has been added a 20 per cent contingent fund and engineering and legal expenses, boosting the bridge bond issue to $37,500,000. These bonds were sold last month and a contract for test pilings was let to the Tidewater Construction Co. of Norfolk.

The work will be contracted for in sections, the sequence being ground approaches, embankments off the two shores, the shorter, near-shore spans, the longer spans and finally the suspension span in the middle of the bay.

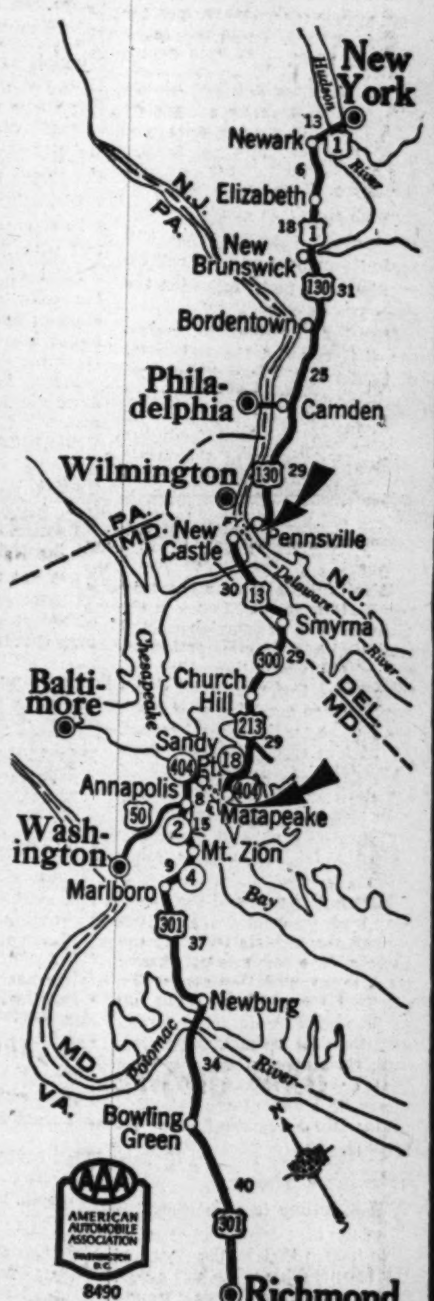
The approach work, and possibly other work, is expected to be under way by the end of the year.

The bridge will require 83,000 tons of steel, 174,900 cubic yards of concrete and will entail 375,000 cubic yards of dredging to place the pilings.

The bridge's suspended span will cross the main shipping lane to Baltimore at right angles. This span will be 190½ feet above mean high water.

Many authorities advocated a bay tunnel as less likely to interfere with bay commerce. A New Orleans firm announced it could build a tunnel for 25 million dollars, but final cost figures indicated a nine-million-dollar greater expenditure than a bridge would require. Maintenance costs would run higher for a tunnel, and not all types of vehicles could use it.

At least three quarters of the cost of the Chesapeake span will be borne by out-of-State users. It will be a major link in the network of new and improved roads being planned by the State Roads Commission.



Motorists could breeze through to New York without passing through Baltimore, Wilmington and Philadelphia, if bridges replaced the Sandy Point-Matapeake and New Castle-Pennsville ferries (arrows). Traffic from Richmond would also bypass Washington.

Some Folks Miss Old Dobbin

By Henry Decker

FREDERICK, MD., Nov. 6.—The Old Gray Mare ain't what she used to be on western Maryland farms. Farmers are more and more getting their horsepower from tractors and mechanized equipment.

Breeders of broad-flanked draft horses view with alarm their passing from farm operations, but admit there is nothing that can be done to stem the trend. In 1921 there were an estimated 21 million horses and mules and only 250,000 tractors on American farms. Today there are 2,600,000 tractors and 11 million horses and mules.

Only bullish market in horses at present is reported in the so-called "killer" type animals, which are purchased to be processed into dog food or as fresh meat for zoo animals. The "killer" horses also find their way to laboratories for experimental purposes. Few horses are purchased for farm work.

They Need Attention

THE situation is particularly acute in Frederick County and the condition exists in Montgomery, Washington and Carroll Counties.

The shortage of farm labor is largely to blame, most farmers contend. You just can't get help to work with horses. A horse has to be fed, watered and curried. You can't even find anyone to shoe a horse, farmers lament.

Some of the more experienced farmers prefer horses, it is said, but they can't get the help to handle the animals.

Aside from the loss of manure on farms, the general use of heavy farm machinery is seen by many as a threat to future production. Heavy equipment packs the ground so that it is difficult to plow and pulverize even with powerful machinery. Tractors are becoming bigger and heavier all the time. Corn pickers, combines and other modern equipment all pack the soil tighter.

'Cements' Wet Ground

IT IS not unusual now for a farmer to employ a five-ton tractor to pull a two-row corn picker with two heavy wagons trailing. They load as much as 13 tons of corn to a wagon. All that adds up to tremendous weight on soil that is usually wet during the corn harvesting period.

Most of those employing heavy equipment, it is said, are giving little thought to future production at a time when the need for soil conservation is becoming generally recognized.

Many farmers agree that the greatest need on farms today are men and horses, working together.

Time will bring back the horse, they hope.

Penn, Georgia Tech Lose; Tar Heels Tied

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

To Whom It May Concern:

ANN ARBOR, MICH., Nov. 6.—Michigan's new Governor, G. Mennen Williams, elected on Tuesday, discovered quickly that the powers of his office are limited. He asked for 12 box seats to today's Michigan-Navy game, and was forced to accept 6 seats in the stand . . . playing at left tackle for Michigan today was a 33-year-old college junior, Alvin Wistert, 10 years out of high school before he decided on a college career. He is the only college football player who can boast of having a brother, 6 years younger, in the pro leagues. His kid brother is Albert Wistert of the Philadelphia Eagles, All-Pro league tackle for six years in a row . . . Before next season, the Big Nine may expand into the Big Ten again, with Michigan State being admitted to the conference . . . Navy's unbeaten Plebe team promises to restore football prestige at Annapolis next season. One of its stars is Plebe Quarterback Zastrow, who against the George Washington freshmen, dropped back to his own 8-yard line and threw a pass that was caught 74 yards downfield on the GW 18-yard line . . . The Detroit Lions are sending a scout to California tomorrow to look over Stan Heath, Nevada's ace quarterback, who is ready to join the pros next season . . .

POVICH

A NEW TWIST was given the sale of game programs at Durham, N. C. last Saturday. As the crowd entered the stadium for the Duke-Georgia Tech game, a leather-lunged vendor was yelling, "Names, numbers and salaries of all the players," and at 14th and Pennsylvania ave. last Wednesday morning, a newsboy was waving the noon editions and bellowing, "Extra! Read all about it. Truman the winner, whether you like it or not." Georgetown has captured the East's prize schoolboy sprinter with a four-year scholarship to Forrest Miles, Eastern High dash man who was unbeaten in the 100 and 220 sprints, setting new D. C. schoolboy records at both distances . . . The Michigan spinner plays were lifted bodily from Dick Harlow's teams at Western Maryland and Harvard . . . Michigan students today were wearing "Sink the Navy" buttons that had been in storage for 23 years. The buttons, originally ordered for the Navy game of 1925, arrived too late that year and were discovered this week by a student working in the basement of a downtown music store.

THE LATE JAKE POWELL, a turbulent character throughout his baseball career, once was suspended by Commissioner Landis for 10 days in 1938 after making radio remarks offensive to the Negro race in a dugout interview in Chicago . . . On other occasions, he was fined $25 by League President Will Harridge for fights with Joe Kuhel and Joe Cronin, and the day he was rebought from St. Paul by the Nats in 1944, he reported to the team in Boston wearing a black eye that was a souvenir of a brawl with Eric McNair the night before . . . On the day the 1936 World Series ended and Powell emerged as the leading hitter of the series, he reported his car was stolen from in front of his hotel. Police later learned the finance company had merely recaptured it . . . Powell stayed with the Yankees for four seasons because of Manager Joe McCarthy, who admired the fierce enthusiasm of the former Washington sandlotter. The suspension Powell drew for his fight with Kuhel in Yankee Stadium was superfluous. He was in no shape to play after taking a punch also at Catcher Walter Millies of the Nats who thoughtfully had donned his mask before leaping into the battle. Jake bruised his right hand fearfully with a swing at Millies before noting the mask.

CLEVELAND SPORTS EDITOR Gordon Cobbledick charges that the Indians' disputed pickoff of the first World Series game was edited out of the official series films because it revealed Umpire Bill Stewart's decision to be glaringly wrong . . . Cobbledick's charge is a reply to National League President Ford Frick, who labeled the protests of Cleveland writer on the play as "infantile journalism" . . . Lew Fonseca, director of the series movies, denies the play was edited out of the films, saying, "We missed it; you can't catch everything." The National Football League, looking down its nose at the All-America Conference, still maintains there is only one major league of pro football . . . And the NFL may be right, and the AAC may be it. Attendance figures show that the AAC games are averaging crowds of 29,524 against the average NFL crowd of 27,269 . . . Joe Louis' golf losses since his last title defense are said to be in excess of $100,000, and are one of the reasons he is returning to the ring with its promise of fresh money.

Penn State Wins, 13 to 0, On Rogel's Touchdowns

Philadelphia, Nov. 6 (AP).—Two perfect plays from which Fullback Francis Rogel spun touchdowns from 44 and 13 yards out enabled the rugged Nittany Lions of Penn State to subdue Penn's punchless Quakers, 13 to 0, before an overflow throng of 80,000 today.

The defeat at the hands of their traditional rivals knocked the Quakers from the ranks of the Nation's undefeated teams and boosted State's bowl stock. It was the sixteenth straight game over two seasons in which the Lions have escaped defeat.

Penn, which meets Army in the East's big game next week, gained only 28 yards by rushing through State's great defense, led by Paul Kelly and Wally Triplett, and threatened only once to score on the wings of its passing attack in the third period. At the end of the fratricidal struggle, there was small doubt in the minds of the banked thousands in Franklin Field that the better team had won.

Rogel Is Offensive Star

Rogel, the offensive star of the game, whirled off his left tackle, found an opening in the Penn secondary and whisked 44 yards for the first score in the second quarter, capping a State drive which ate up a total of 88 yards in eight plays in a running attack from the single wing.

Early in the final period, the versatile State machine took to the air, and with Elwood Petchel, the "Flying Fragment" hitting his receivers with deadly accuracy, shot to another touchdown in two plays.

On the first one, Petchel zipped a short pass to Sam Tamburo just across the scrimmage line, and Tamburo dodged and raced his way 52 yards to the 13 before Chuck Bednarik, Penn's great center, knocked him out of bounds, with a despairing dive. Petchel then pegged one far into the end zone, and Rogel gathered the ball in as he fell sprawling.

Bednarik Fooled

Of the two scoring plays, the first was the more spectacular, as it came more or less out of the blue after a dull opening period in which State had held the upper hand but had displayed no scoring threat.

The play, on which Rogel wound up with the ball after considerable deception, saw Bednarik completely fooled and drawn far from the ball-carrier's path. With Penn's pride and joy out of it, the rest was fairly simple. One Penn tackler grasped Rogel as he threaded through the line, but the State back spun away and was gone.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 6.—William and Mary sacrificed its offense but acquired a stellar defense that enabled it to pull the South's most startling upset today, tying mighty North Carolina, 7-7, before 43,000 stunned partisan Kenan Stadium fans.

Rube McCray's courageous Indians fought their hearts out, ignoring the fact that they were supposed to lose by 21 points to a team ranked third nationally. Their inspired play interrupted a two-year 13-game Carolina winning streak that began with a victory over William and Mary, the defending Southern Conference champions, 13-7.

And on the last play of the game the Indians nearly derailed Caroline. Arlington's Billy Hayes threw a pass that Joe Mark stole on the Carolina 30 and carried all the way to the 8. He might have gone all the way if he had stayed along the sideline.

Coping with Carl Snavely's two-team system, McCray principally used his first line only on defense and let the second line play offensively.

Only First Down Made on Penalty

It hurt—statistics show that William and Mary gained only 19 yards rushing and its only first down of the game was made on a penalty.

However, the Indians put together one brilliant scoring effort early in the second quarter and almost managed to hold Charley Justice, Hosea Rodgers and company at bay.

A fumble by Rodgers gave McCray's lads a chance they didn't squander. The bone-crushing fullback dropped the ball on his 26 on a line smash and Tackle Ralph Floyd, Washingtonian from Devitt Prep, grabbed it.

From the North Carolina 21, Tommy Korczowski threw a pass to brilliant End Lou Hoitsma who was on the one. The 6-foot-2-inch wingman leaped above defenders Bill Macey and Bill Flamisch to spear the ball and fell into the end zone for the touchdown.

As was to be expected, Snavely's men came charging back after intermission, but it wasn't until 13.10 of the third period that Rodgers registered the tying touchdown on a short smash from the two.

Carolina Gets Breaks

Even then, the powerful club that had been behind only once all season as it rolled past Texas, Georgia, North Carolina State, Forest, Louisiana State and Tennessee, needed the help of the somwhat zealous officials.

When the third period got under way with a kickoff by Ed Magdziak that Justice took eight yards behind the goal line and returned to the 22, the Tar Heels went all the way to the Indians' 25. Henry Blanc interrupted what looked like a certain scoring march when he intercepted a pass by Rodgers on his 20 and returned 27 yards.

After an exchange, Carolina started another surge that finally got it seven all-important points. W. & M. nearly stopped that one but two close decisions went against it.

Kicking from the Indians' 45, Justice put one out of bounds on

Duke Beaten In Thriller

Durham, N. C., Nov. 6 (AP).—Wake Forest won a spine-tingling 27-20 decision from Duke today, the Deacons' second victory over the Blue Devils in 21 years.

The Deacs, leading 20-13 seemed on their way to the clincher when they stalled on the Duke 10 late in the final period. On second down, Duke Sophomore Wingback Jack Friedlund cut loose along the right sideline and flew 82 yards to a touchdown. Mike Souchak's conversion made it 20-20 with about four minutes to play.

Then Halfback Gregus, one of the Nation's leaders on kick returns set up the deciding tally. He took the next kickoff and raced 78 yards down to the Duke 15. The Deacs were halted momentarily when a fourth down Carroll Blackerby to Red O'Quinn pass from the six was broken up. But they got the ball back in a hurry when Duke Fullback Jack Mountie fumbled and Bob Jones recovered for Wake Forest on the 10. On the first play Halfback Mike Sprock sped around his right end for the score that clinched it.

Duke came storming back in the closing moments to eat up 61 yards, chiefly on passes from Fred Folger to Ends Ed Austin and Pat Lyons, but the clock ran out on the Devils. The game ended with an incomplete fourth down pass by Bill Cox from the 20.

Chewning Runs Wild; Gallaudet Swamped, 39 to 0

Hampden Sydney, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Hampden Sydney's Tigers had an easy time of it today as they chalked up their fourth win of the season and first in Mason-Dixon Conference competition by stomping over Gallaudet, 39-0.

The Tigers' brilliant little All-America candidate, Lynn Chewning, paced the winners with three touchdowns although the fast-stepping fullback saw only about one quarter of action.

Hampden Sydney reserves started the game and played almost three quarters of the contest.

Chewning's first score came just after the half with the Tigers out in front, 7-0. He intercepted a pass from Gallaudet Quarterback Bradford on his own 15 and sped down the right sideline the remaining 85 yards.

GW Strikes Late to Beat Citadel, 14-0; Davis Stars

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 6.—After stalking its Foe for most of four quarters, George Washington struck twice in the last three minutes to whip plucky Citadel, 14-0, here today. Eight thousand uncomfortable Parents' Day fans sat in on the ragged game, played in a 35-mile-an-hour gale and other trying conditions.

The deadly passing and spot running of handsome Andy Davis set up the first touchdown, which was scored by Bill Spangler on a one-foot plunge.

A pass interception and 23-yard runback by Arlington's Johnny Grinnell set up the second score with a minute left. Davis took things into his own hands and ran over his second collegiate touchdown with a thrust through right tackle from the 4. Frank (Footsie) Cavallo converted after both touchdowns, ending a three-game losing streak.

The win was the third in eight games for G. W. The Colonials have a 2-3 record in Southern Conference play. Citadel has a 2-4 record for the season. Six fumbles

Terps Easily Beat S. C.

By Morris Siegel

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 6.—Maryland restricted itself to a 19-7 victory over South Carolina today.

Holding back for their big outing against unbeaten North Carolina next Saturday, the Terrapins were directed to play it straight this afternoon and they did.

The Terps scored twice in the second quarter and once in the last period and spent the rest of this rainy day in Dixieland hounding the fleet-footed Gamecock backs.

Gamecock Runs 65 Yard

Their only lapse came late in the fourth period when freshman Steve Wadiak, a "Southerner" from South Chicago, galloped 65 yards through the mud to prevent a Gamecock shutout.

Maryland showed the homecoming crowd of 15,000, which included six scouts from North Carolina, practically nothing. The Terrapin running attack, slanted through the middle, ground out 228 yards, but the Old Liner passing game was as dismal as the weather.

Vic Turyn essayed 12 passes, but completed only two, one to Ted Betz for Maryland's first touchdown and another to Quarterback Ed Pasky of the Gamecocks, to stem a Terp touchdown drive.

South Carolina helped Maryland to its other two scores. The Gamecocks fumbled on their own 20, Maryland recovered and Turyn climaxed the short excursion by scooping up Hubie Werner's bobble and dashing 3 yards for a touchdown.

In the final quarter, the Gamecocks fumbled behind the goal line and Maryland's End Elmer Wingate pounced on it to complete Maryland's scoring.

Playing a tight six-man line to thwart the running of the fleet-footed Wadiak and Bishop Strickland, the Terps held the Gamecocks to 94 yards on the ground and only 45 on five passes.

Ray Krouse, 240-pound tackle, whose recovery of a fumble set up the second Maryland tally, and 260-pound Jim Goodman, Krouse's running mate, spent most of their time in the Carolina backfield.

In the second period, Krouse threw Carolina Quarterback Bo Hagan for a 12-yard loss and on

Michigan Pours It on to Top Irish Score by One Point

By Shirley Povich

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 6—Michigan's fancy football carriers bolting out of their razzle-dazzle behind the scrimmage line, raced to a satisfactory 35-0 victory over forlorn Navy today, as advertised.

At the end of the afternoon, the elation was high in Ann Arbor for the unbeaten Wolverines had shaded last week's 41-7 triumph of Notre Dame over the same Navy team.

For the winless Navy squad, now losers of 12 straight, it was a new indignity with the Midshipmen failing to score for the first time this season. In the big oval of Michigan Stadium, a sellout crowd of 85,938 watched the discomfiture of the Middies, Michigan recorded its twenty-first consecutive victory.

Navy didn't come within 38 yards of scoring a touchdown against the bristling defense of Michigan, and until the fourth quarter the Michigan 42-yard line was the high-water mark of the feeble Navy offense.

The Wolverines tossed a bewildering attack at the Middies from their single-wing formation, with Fullback Tom Peterson faking, running and lateralling in a tandem offense with Tailback Charley Ortman. They swept the Navy flanks, hit inside the Navy defenses and on occasion discombooberated Navy by going into a T.

Obviously attempting to excel the Notre Dame score against the Middies, the Wolverines went into the air late in the game to get their last two touchdowns after rolling up a 21-0 lead with their ground attack.

Coach Benny Oosterbaan, with a Michigan squad of seemingly boundless depth, moved 43 players into the game, with Navy using only 29.

Michigan scored in the sixth minute of each of the first three quarters, taking the lead with a 53-yard touchdown march the first time it gained the ball. The second quarter score came at the end of a 79-yard drive overland. A Navy fumble on its 25-yard line set up the third touchdown.

Dick Rifenberg, Wolverine end, scored both of their last two touchdowns, on passes. Bob Van Somern,

Virginia Beats N. C. State

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 6.—An injury-riddled University of Virginia grid team scored an upset 21-14 victory over North Carolina State here today, spoiling Homecoming Day ceremonies for approximately 15,000 Wolfpack rooters.

The Cavaliers, two-touchdown underdogs, came from behind to break a 4-4 deadlock in their series with State. They did it with five regulars out of action, victims of last week's whaling by Princeton.

It was Virginia's fourth triumph of the season, against two defeats and a tie. State was suffering its

Iowa State Wins Pitchers' Battle From Drake, 2 to 0

Ames, Iowa, Nov. 6 (AP).—Iowa State squeezed out a 2-0 victory over Drake today in the forty-eighth renewal of their football series on a slippery field.

The bitter intra-State rivals were deadlocked in a scoreless draw before 13,500 fans when the Cyclones picked up two vital points on a safety with six minutes gone in the fourth period.

Floyd Miller, Drake fullback, intercepted Don Ferguson's pass, fumbled on the 3-yard line and Frank Lorenso, Drake halfback, fell upon the ball in the end zone for a safety.

Vols Topple Georgia Tech

Atlanta, Nov. 6 (AP).—the Tennessee Vols tumbled Georgia Tech from the unbeaten ranks today, 13-6, as the Vols' big, fast skirmish line continually operated in the Tech backfield.

A sellout crowd of 38,000 fans at a muddy Grant field saw Tennessee linemen outhit Tech's and destroy the Yellow Jacket passing aim. The light, high-speed Tech backs were forced to run instead of pass. Their fumbles set up one Tennessee score and ended several threats.

The loss was a major upset, Tech being a two-touchdown pick before the Southeastern Conference game. Although the sun was out during the game, last night's downpour made footing it a dangerous way to advance the ball.

Twice-beaten Tennessee was outgained on the ground 160 yards to 42 but managed to stop all except one Tech drive before it became a big threat. Tech made 18 first downs to the Vols' 4 but few of them were put into a string.

The only score of the first half came on the fourth play of the game. Tech's Fullback Frank Ziegler, usually a sure man under a Change Called 'Desirable'

Detroit Fires Steve O'Neill; Harris Rumored as Successor

Detroit, Nov. 6 (AP).—Steve O'Neill, who gave Detroit one world championship and three American League runner-up clubs in his six-year stay here, was fired today as manager of the Tigers.

He was the seventh major league pilot to lose his job this year.

One of the other six, Stanley (Bucky) Harris, deposed New York Yankees manager, has been rumored as a likely successor to O'Neill. Other possibilities include Paul Richards, former Tiger catcher who now manages Buffalo in the International League, and Roger (Doc) Cramer, Detroit coach.

An announcement from Detroit General Manager Billy Evans said no successor has been chosen. It said O'Neill's contract is not being renewed for 1949 because of a belief "that a change in field management would be desirable."

Evans' statement said the Detroit management "is keenly appreciative" of O'Neill's six years of "loyal and conscientious service."

O'Neill, reached at his home in Cleveland Heights, Ohio, said he had no plans for the future. He said he hadn't "given it a thought" before receiving a telegram from Evans. Shortly before that he had

Tripucka Is Passing Star In Easy Win

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 6 (U.P.). Notre Dame struck through the gloom on a slippery, rain-soaked football field today to smash Indiana, 42 to 6, for its 19th straight victory and its 25th game without defeat.

Indiana did, however, derive the consolation of stopping Notre Dame's streak at 33 consecutive periods when the Irish failed to score in the final quarter. It was the most lopsided score in the schools' 50-year relations.

It was a near-perfect Irish ball club which appeared before a record crowd of 34,000 in Memorial Stadium. The first-stringers for the Frank Leahy-coached eleven put the game in the Notre Dame win column long before the first period was completed.

Then Leahy was merciful. None of the Irish stars saw any action in the final half, and Indiana made a nearly-even contest of the debacle when opposing the third and fourth stringers.

Tripucka Star

Frank Tripucka, the Notre Dame quarterback, was a standout. His ball-handling was perfection, and his passing, as proved by the record, could hardly have been better even with a dry ball.

The slender Easterner was in the game less than 30 minutes but during that time he passed nine times and completed seven for 145 yards and two touchdowns.

Tripucka had plenty of help from Billy Gay, John Panelli and Emil "Red" Sitko. Those men were in the backfield. And on the line, Marty Wendell, Bill Fischer, Leon Hart and Bill Wightkin were terrific both on offense and defense.

Sitko Powers Drive

The Irish pounded 83 yards on 14 plays to score in the first seven minutes as Sitko powered 23 yards for the tally. Moments later, Tripucka passed to Gay for a 45-yard gain to set up a 2-yard touchdown drive by Jack Landry.

In the second period Panelli finished off a 70-yard march with a 54-yard touchdown run down the sidelines behind blockers who didn't miss a man. The next time Notre Dame got the ball, Tripucka passed 45 yards to Wightkin for a touchdown and pitched his second payoff pass to Gay for 20 yards for another tally.

The scrubs took over with a 35-point lead in the second half. They launched an 80-yard push on 13 plays for the final Irish tally.

Indiana scored its only touchdown with less than a minute and a half to play when Del Russell passed to Joe Bartkiewicz. Steve Oracko converted after every Notre Dame touchdown, but George Parker couldn't make his try for the Hoosiers.

Clemson Routs Furman

Unbeaten Tigers Take League Lead

Clemson, S. C., Nov. 6 (AP).—The Clemson Tigers kept their undefeated football record clean here today by swamping Furman, 41-0.

Clemson drove 60, 46, 88, 92, 64 and 62 yards for its scores. Fullback Fred Cone plunged and broke through the middle for gains ranging from 3 to 21 yards in the first Tiger scoring drive. Left Halfback Bobby Gage interspersed two 10-yard runs. Cone went over from the four. Sub Fullback Jack Miller booted the extra point from placement, his 12th of the season and his first of the afternoon's five.

Cone, Matthews Star In 41-0 Victory

Right Halfback Ray Mathews got his first touchdown of the afternoon on Clemson's next series of plays, a cutback off left guard for 37 yards.

Clemson racked up two more in the third period and again in the final period the Tigers went twice for scores.

Tulane Downs VMI, 28-7

New Orleans, Nov. 6 (AP).—Tulane's big Green Wave wore down a spirited band of Virginia Military Institute Keydets today and went on to win, 28-7, with a strong finish.

For three periods it seemed as if Tulane's name might be added to the list of the day's startling upsets. But the Wave put over a pair of last-period scores to clinch victory over the tiring Virginians.

Tulane Fullback Ed Price opened the scoring in the first period with a 3-yard plunge, after setting up the touchdown on a 41-yard run. A fumble recovery on the Tulane 21 gave VMI a chance for its score soon afterward. Bob Thomason passed a yard to Claude Patton, who ran around the whole Tulane team which had been sucked far out of position.

Two minutes later Price broke around left and scooted 72 yards for a touchdown.

Price sparked Tulane on a late ground attack from its 21 to the VMI 10, but when the Keydets stopped three running plays Bill Bonar pitched to George Kinek for the third touchdown.

Joe Ernst shot another last-down pass to Dick Sheffield for 17 yards and the last six-pointer. A fumble recovery set up the score.

Miss. State Whips Auburn

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 6 (AP).—Mississippi State's touchdown specialists, Shorty McWilliams and Harper Davis, spearheaded a 20-0 victory over the Auburn Tigers today.

It was the fifth year in succession that one or both of the two halfbacks had starred in trimming the Tigers. The 20,000 Auburn fans were glad to see the last of them.

McWilliams, who first began his exploits against the Tigers in 1944, pitched a 28-yard pass to Davis for the first score in the first period. McWilliams missed the 1945 season, when he was at the United States Military Academy, but Davis took over that season. Both have been on hand for every game since.

McWilliams' scoring pass was his fifth consecutive completion, but until the final period the Tigers had held the score down to 7-0.

But in the final period, a poor punt gave State the ball on the Auburn 18. Davis rammed through for 16 in two carries, and Fullback Jim Bailey scored on the next play.

The final State tally came on the game's last play. Doug Colston connected with a 33-yard pass to Crosby Simmons on the Auburn four. McWilliams drove through tackle as the final whistle blew.

Owls Defeat Syracuse, 20-0

Philadelphia, Nov. 6 (AP).—Temple's football Owls lived up to preseason predictions they would be a November team by trouncing Syracuse, 20-0, today for their second straight triumph.

The Owls, playing their best all-around game of the season, were in command from the start although it wasn't until the second period that they scored their first touchdown before a homecoming crowd of 8000.

Alertness on the defense played an important role in Temple's victory as the Owls' two second-period touchdowns were tallied after halting Syracuse's aerial attack. Their third in the third session came on a blocked punt.

Tom Skladany was the first Owl to hit pay dirt, banging over from the 1-yard stripe after four minutes and 36 seconds of the second quarter.

Bill Bernardo, fast-stepping Temple back, galloped 33 yards on a sweep around left end to score after 10 minutes of the period.

The Owls had another seven pointer added to the scoreboard in the third. Jim Dragotta, who did some excellent punting for the New Yorkers, was swarmed over by Vince Zielinski, 215-pound Temple guard, as he tried to get a boot away from his 25. The ball bounced off Zielinski's chest and man on the 2. He merely had to man on the 2. He merely had to step across for the score.

punt, fumbled Tennessee's kickoff on his 3-yard line but recovered.

Two running plays gained 6 yards. On the next snap Ziegler again fumbled and the wet ball squirted over the Yellow Jackets' goal. Vol Fullback Tommy Slack recovered for Tennessee's touchdown.

On the try for the extra point practically the entire Tech line smothered Jim Powell. A bad snap from center gave Tech linemen time to get through.

After the score both teams had trouble holding the ball. The game developed into a rough battle of lines, with Tennessee forwards doing a better job.

Hal Littleford of the Vols and Ziegler and Joe Brown of Tech kicked on third down with Tennessee usually gaining on the exchanges.

The second half began very much as the first. Within two minutes Littleford tossed a perfect running pass to Halfback Bob Lund. Lund took the ball over his shoulder, feinted twice and, with the help of a block by Alan Fielder, he went 47 yards for the touchdown.

Powell kicked the extra point to give the Vols a 13-0 lead.

Tech immediately came back with a powerful 80-yard drive in which the Jackets rolled up half their yardage. The Tech touchdown was scored on the second play of the final period when Halfback Dinky Bowen bucked over from the 1-yard line. Bobby North's kick was blocked.

The loss was Tech's first at home in 18 games and their first in nine games.

Tennessee centered on its running game, throwing only seven passes and completing three. Tech passing, which had been principally responsible for winning six games this year, was a near flop until late in the first half and in the final minutes when necessity forced the Jackets to throw instead of trying to run through the stout Tennesseeans.

Georgia Beats Florida, 21-20

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Georgia took over the Southeastern Conference lead the hard way today, scoring a 20 to 12 victory over Florida by dint of Johnny Rauch's passes and some hardy defensive work in the closing minutes.

It took Rauch's accomplished flipper to set up scores, but the Bulldog runners had to carry the burden all afternoon against a fiery Florida line that played its best game of the season.

It was Georgia's fourth league victory and, coupled with Georgia Tech's 13 to 6 loss to Tennessee, put the Bulldogs on top of the conference. Their only loss has been to North Carolina outside the loop.

Rauch gave Georgia first blood in the initial period on a 1-yard quarterback sneak after setting up the maneuver with long passes to Ends Bob Walston and Gene Lorendo and Halfback Floyd Reid.

Florida's Johnny Cox bulled 10 yards over the goal to put the Homelings back in the ball game. The Bulldogs went further ahead on Floyd Reid's 2-yard plunge a few minutes later. Chuck Hunsinger kept Florida threatening with a winding, flashy 64-yard punt return to score.

Joe Geri cemented Georgia's margin in the third quarter on his nonchalant 13-yard stroll behind perfect, three-man blocking.

Area Horses Score Heavily In New York

By Austin Bealmear

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Barbara Pease, 17-year-old Larchmont, N. Y., rider won the National Horse Show Equitation championship today as the youngsters took over the ring at Madison Square Garden for the first of two juvenile matinees.

Reserve honors went to George R. Berman of New York City.

Eleven-year-old Spunky Fisher of Salisbury, N. C, who has been competing against adults in the open jumping fixtures, captured the junior jumping title on his brown mare, Reckless. Heroditie, shown by Mrs. Raymond Bargin of Keswick, Va., was second.

Golden Chance, a 3-year-old buckskin mare, who is the only entry of Paul R. Fout of Jamesville, N. Y., scored a surprise triumph by taking the $1000 Professional Horsemen's Association Stake.

Second place went to 11-year-old Spunky Fisher of Salisbury, N. C., and his brown mare, Reckless.

Mr. Chips, from the Sterling Smith Stable at Ravenna, Ohio, was third, while Request, Morton W. (Cappy) Smith's star from Middleburg, Va., was fourth.

Portmaker, the 8-year-old brown gelding from the Bethesda, Md., stables of Dr. and Mrs. Alvin I. Kay, won the Corinthian Class Hunter competition and added a second leg on the East Hampton Riding Club Challenge Cup.

Ridden by Mrs. Jane Rust, Portmaker captured the event he also won in 1946 and needs only one more triumph to retire the trophy. His victory was worth five points in the scoring toward the Open Hunter championship but still left him half a point behind the leader, Mrs. E. Cooper Person's Adventure.

Teddy Lecarpentier of Reisterstown, Md., was the star of the hunter classes. He rode his aged chestnut gelding, Eastern Hal, to three first-place ribbons and placed third in another event.

Maryland juniors also scored heavily in other events. Safety Pin, owned by Mrs. Walter T. Kees of Cockeysville, Md., was judged best of the pony working hunters and Spice, exhibited by Billy Boyce 3d., and Elise Kelsey of Glencoe, Md., was the best of the pony working hunter hacks not more than 13 hands high.

Cosentino Cadet Star In 7th Win

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Army decisively scored its seventh straight victory of the season today by overpowering Stanford 43 to 0 in Yankee Stadium before 46,695.

It was the first time in three meetings that Army has defeated Stanford, and the highest score any opponent has run up this year on the Big Reds, rated only 20 points behind the Cadets on the strength of walloping Washington 20-0 and barely losing to Southern California 7-6. Stanford's previous worst defeat was 27-14 by Santa Clara.

Army had too many fast backs for the faltering Stanford line—Gil Stephenson, Arnold Galiffa, Harold Shultz, Bobby Jack Stuart, and Rudy Cosentino all making spectacular dashes.

Cosentino's 78-yard touchdown run in the last period was the longest gain of the game, but Galiffa—whose passing was sharp all day—scored on a 41-yard dash, Stuart ripped off 60 yards to tally, and Shultz had a 56-yard run to his credit. Stephenson scores once on a plunge, and set up the touchdown with a 48-yard gain on a shovel pass from Galiffa.

Stanford never had a chance. Army made its first score after only seven minutes and 46 seconds, starting from its own 25, with Stuart ripping the ends, and Stephenson carrying 48 yards to the 9 on his shovel pass from Galiffa.

In the second period, in between Galiffa's 41-yard dash straight through the center of the line, and Stuart's 60-yard jaunt around left end Army picked up two points on a safety. This was set up when a penalty pushed Stanford back to the 3. Kenneth Rose tried to kick, but End Bill Kellum blocked it, and the ball shot into the stands.

Stanford held for downs on the half-yard line to end the second period, and Army went into second half leading 23 to 0. Coach Blaik mercifully held back his first-string backs after Stuart made it 29 to 0, by climaxing a 70-yard march with a 7-yard smash at tackle.

The substitutes, however, kept on galloping. Schultz started the fourth period with a 56-yard counter, and Consentino climaxed it all with his run that was the longest of the day.

The game was played with all the panoply of Army's annual appearance in Yankee Stadium. The Cadets paraded smartly before a notable crowd that included Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower—who deserted Columbia temporarily for the occasion—Secretary of War Kenneth Royall, and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Chief of Staff, Air Forces.

7 Quick Scores

Vandy Goes Wild, Beats L. S. U., 48-7

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Vanderbilt pulled the cork on a flood of touchdowns today, scoring seven of them in 28 minutes to whip Louisiana State, 48-7, before a homecoming crowd of 21,000.

It was Vanderbilt's first victory over Louisiana State since 1937. Louisiana's lone score came on Ken Konz's 87-yard kickoff return down the middle late in the second quarter, but Vanderbilt led, 13-0, at the time and made it 20-7 within two minutes.

A crack defensive battle was broken wide open with a minute gone in the second quarter when Vanderbilt's Dean Davidson rifled a 33-yard pass to Mac Robinson, who ran 31 yards more to the Louisiana 4. Bobby Berry plunged 2 yards three plays later for the score and Zack Clinard kicked the seventh point.

That started it. Vanderbilt marched 69 yards in 10 plays for another, with Davidson plunging three for the score. Vanderbilt's toe expert, Clinard, missed his one extra point kick in seven tries at this point. Two more touchdowns came in two and a half minutes, Konz racing the kickoff back for Louisiana State's score, and Davidson passing 50-yards to Bud Curtis for another Vanderbilt tally.

The Vanderbilt deluge continued in the third quarter despite a raft of substitutes. Berry's 17-yard spurt for a touchdown was erased by a penalty, so Joe Hicks ran 22 on the next play for the score. Zealand Thigpen raced 80 yards for another within three minutes. Jim Tabor climaxed a 56-yard march with a four-yard touchdown plunge, and Billy Fuqua ran 15 for the final score with two seconds to go in the third period.

Gorgeous George Gets Hair Curled

By Red Smith

New York, Nov. 6.—The announcement which came through the mail bore the return address of Mr. Toots Mondt, the rassling tycoon. It read:

"The most sensational wrestler of all time—the man who has swept the national (sic) with his personality and color and the fact that he is different—Gorgeous George is here at last! You are cordially invited for cocktails and the first New York appearance of Gorgeous George in New York at Maryo Ward, hair stylists, 356 East 57th st. The pride of Hollywood and everywhere else he's appeared is scheduled for a hair marcel and will then play host to the press of New York whom he's been most anxious to meet. Don't miss it!"

Turner's After Gorgeous George

Wrestling impresarios at Turner's Arena are trying to land Gorgeous George for one of their Wednesday night wrestling shows.

Well, the back room of this ladies' barbershop was pretty well jammed when Gorgeous George arrived wearing long blond curls and somewhat formal afternoon attire—black coat with mother-of-pearl buttons on the sleeve, soft white shirt with nine-inch points on the collar, striped trousers hung on braces. Ahead of him came a valet spraying the joint with an atomizer.

"That's George No. 4 in the atomizer," said a man with curly black hair and a fairly fancy suit of a small, checked pattern. "He never enters a ring that hasn't been sprayed with it first."

GORGEOUS GEORGE sat in front of a mirror and a couple of barbers with curly black hair took down his hair and started putting it up in little metal gimmicks. Gorgeous George has a thick red neck and the features of a Roman senator.

A rather awed crowd clustered around Gorgeous George, talking. From the background, only an occasional phrase could be heard. Once George said, "In other words, allus I do is what I please and nobody stops me." Somebody asked whether he had a wife and he declined to answer. Somebody else suggested the hair-do was decidedly feminine, and George flew into a noble tizzy, shouting about George Washington and other distinguished characters who wore long hair.

In the background, the man in the checked suit was talking. He said he was a rassler himself and George's business manager, name of Sammy Menacher. He displayed a program of some shindig run by a thing called a Coiffure Guild in Hollywood.

"Each year," he said, "they pick a coiffure queen out there. See? Here's a picture of this year's queen, Frances Langford. This year, for the first time, they picked a coiffure king. See? George. 'Our King,' it says here. The hair-do he's got, that's the Gorgeous George swirl."

"Has this critter a name?" Mr. Menacher was asked.

"Gorgeous George is his legal name."

"What's alleged to be his history?"

"HE STARTED wrestling 19 years ago," Mr. Menacher said, "when he was 14. About six years ago he started letting his hair grow. It was black. Then he had it bleached, the way it is now. No thats not platinum blond, or even honey blond. It's Lana Turner blond.

"He's got 59 dressing gowns and the sixtieth is being made. One has an ermine cape. No, not quite a stole, more like a collar. He never wears the same dressing gown into the same arena twice. His valet keeps a chart."

"Is he a fiend in the ring," Mr. Menacher was asked, "or an All-American boy?"

"He is savage," Mr. Menacher said. "He is rough customer in there. Thats the amazing thing, the way he changes."

"Amazing to whom?"

"To the public,' Mr. Menacher said.

"It's the worse corn I ever saw," said Mr. Mondt, whose orange hair is worn only across the back of his thick neck. "But he sure draws the customers. When he struts down that aisle with his chin in the air, he looks like the queen of a carnival midway."

After a long while they took the drier off Georgeous George's skull, brushed him up, and he arose, his head a mass of lovely, soft curls.

"Now I feel more relaxed with my hair done," he said. "I allus feel such a mess before."

Mr. Menacher had a gold bobby-pin in his lapel. So did the valet.

"In Hollywood," Mr. Menacher said, "everybody wears one. Have you heard the new song hit, 'Georgeous George is the Man I Mean?'"

We spoke to an almost empty room. A large number of guests had departed, looking a trifle green about the gills, too much whisky, no doubt.

Oregon Whips Washington By 13 to 7

Seattle, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Oregon Webfoots kept alive their Rose Bowl hopes with a hard-fought 13 to 7 victory over the Washington Huskies today before 33,000 fans.

The Oregon aerial circus paid off with two touchdown passes by Norm Van Brocklin. A 26-yard pass to Dick Wilkins scored the first Oregon touchdown shortly after the second half began and a fourth period 21-yard aerial to End Dan Farza was the second payoff pitch.

Washington pushed over its first score in four games in the final period when Fullback Marshall Dallas plunged from the 1-yard line to climax a 65-yard drive. Jim Rosenzweig added the extra point.

Ansel McCullough was more accurate with his aerials than the Oregon wizard, completing 11 out of 18 while Van Brocklin connected for 6 out of 19.

Boyanks Could Play Spoilers' Role Today Against Redskins

Special Dispatch to The Post

Boston, Nov. 6.—The Boston Yankees have nothing to lose and precedent in their favor as they entertain the Washington Redskins, strong contenders for the Eastern Division, National Football title here tomorrow.

Losers of five out of seven starts so far, the Yanks' only chance for distinction now is in the role of spoilers. It's a role they played to perfection against the same Redskin forces last year.

The 'Skins, who have won four games and lost only two this season, still had a chance for the Eastern crown when they came to Boston in 1947. The Yanks shut the door conclusively with a 27-24 victory, the winning margin coming on a 24-yard pass from Frank Dancewicz to Joe Golding with 8 minutes of play remaining.

In one respect tomorrow's clash will be reminiscent of the teams' 1945 meeting here. A skinny rookie halfback, fresh out of the Marines, was making his professional debut with Washington then.

Steve Bagarus did all right for himself, too. He caught a touchdown pass and went ahead to become one of the most popular figures in Washington gridiron history before running into trouble with the Redskin management, getting himself traded, and then breaking his leg.

Now Steve, more serious than ever before in his life, is starting a comeback. The "Buggsy" of 1945-46, who hasn't played a minute since shattering his leg in the second '47 game of the Los Angeles Rams, is again starting off against Boston.

A Redskin victory tomorrow would be Washington's second in two weeks over the same charges of Coach Clipper Smith. Last Sunday the 'Skins ran up a luck anointed 59-21 margin, a feat which apparently impressed oddsmakers very little. They call the Tribe a mere 14-point favorite for tomorrow.

69-Yard Run Ties Villanova

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 6 (AP).—Jim Howe ran 69 yards in the last minute today to score a touchdown that enabled Kentucky to tie Villanova, 13-13, before 22,000.

Bobby Brooks booted the placement that locked the count and robbed the Main Liners of revenge for their loss to Kentucky in the 1948 Great Lakes Bowl.

Thirty-six seconds remained when the team lined up for what appeared the last play of the game. George Blanda faded back to pass and had two decoys far down the field.

He passed instead to Howe, 5 yards past the scrimmage line. The Ft. Thomas, Ky., junior started his broken field run from there and sailed over the goal.

Villanova had a 13-0 lead at halftime. In the first quarter Bill Doherty passed five yards to Ed Berrang for a touchdown and Tom Clavin kicked the extra point. Just before intermission Doherty connected with another 5-yard heave to Frank Kane in the end zone after a 73-yard march.

Kentucky went 73 yards on 14 plays after the third period kick-off to score its first touchdown, Bill Boller going the last few inches.

Caps Outplay Minneapolis To Win, 67-62

Towering George Mikan used his 6 feet 10 inches to the best possible advantage on a slippery floor last night, but he was not enough to stop the red-hot Washington Capitols.

The Caps won their third successive Basketball Association of America game by outspeeding and outclassing, the powerful Minneapolis Lakers at Uline Arena, 67-62.

Some 2933 spectators braved a driving rain and saw the Caps offset the 27-point scoring of Mikan, who converted 15 of 17 free throws.

The local pros achieved their victory without the last period services of Kleggie Hermsen, their 6-foot 9-inch center, who left the game with five personals chalked against him in the third quarter and never returned.

While Mikan was putting on his scoring circus Washington's old pro, Bones McKinney, was keeping the fans in an uproar with some spectacular circus shooting, rolling up 24 points

Minneapolis forged ahead at one time, 11-4, but Feerick and McKinney combined to pull Washington within an 11-14 count at the quarter.

The Caps speeded up in the second period with Scolari and Feerick setting the pace and were ahead at half-time, 32-27.

The invaders challenged repeatedly throughout an exciting third quarter but McKinney and Feerick started winging away in the clutches and Washington was leading at the three-quarter point, 47-41.

Sooners Bid For Title in Big Seven

Norman, Okla., Nov. 6 (UP).—Starting slowly, the Oklahoma Sooners warmed to their task today and wound up by handing Missouri a humilating 41 to 7 defeat in a football game that was billed as a match of the best teams in the Midlands.

But if Missouri was a quality grid crew, it failed to show it today. Favored slightly in the betting, the Tigers who had scored an amazing earlier season upset of Southern Methodist, simply didn't measure up. The game also was billed as a probable settling factor in the Big Seven Conference race since the teams had been tied for first place.

Oklahoma's smoothly clicking offensive machine, gaining momentum as it went, exploded for four touchdowns in an amaging third period which routed and wrecked Missouri.

Fans Go Wild

The outcome sent 38,500 partisan fans, who had jammed Owen Field with hopes higher than their expectations, into acrobatics of football frenzy. The Oklahoma victory set up the relentless Sooners as overwhelming favorites to take the Big Seven championship and it also tagged them as a likely choice for somebody's bowl on New Year's Day.

Three Oklahomans—Quarterback Jack Mitchell, Fullback Leon Heath and Halfback George Thomas—divided the six Oklahoma touchdowns with two each. Conversion specialist Les Ming made good five of his six kicks for extra points.

The third-period melee featured two flashing touchdown runs by Mitchell, Oklahoma's speedy quarterback. Thomas, who got the first Oklahoma touchdown in the second quarter to even the count at 7-7, also took a big slice of the third-period glory. Tackle Homer Paine blocked a Missouri punt to set up Thomas' third-period touchdown.

Heath Scores

Halfback Darrell Royal started the series of running plays which accounted for the final Oklahoma score of the third period. He ran back a Missouri punt from his own 40 to the Missouri 35. In eight plays Oklahoma powered down to the 4 and Fullback Heath smacked over.

Missouri's score came midway in the first period. The touted passing of Bus Entsminger and good deception sent Missouri deep into Oklahoma territory.

Then Entsminger faked a pass but ran instead straight down the middle to the Oklahoma 10. Three plays later Halfback Dick Braznell bored across from the one. Bob Dawson added the extra point and Missouri was through for the day.

Oklahoma	0	7	28	6—41
Missouri	7	0	0	0—7

Touchdowns—Thomas (2), Mitchell (2), Heath (2), Braznell. Points after touchdowns—Ming (5), Dawson.

Field Goal Gives Underdog Denver Win Over Detroit

Denver, Nov. 6 (AP).—Underdog Denver refused to give up in the face of superior land power today, and rode the air lanes to an upset, 37-27, victory over Detroit in a hair-raising football game.

Three times the hard-running Titans from the Midwest surged ahead on the speed and power of Wally Gruber and Jack Kurkowski plus the passing of John O'Connor.

And as many times Denver's John Parise passed or ran for touchdowns with Bob Gruenler's 25-yard field goal providing the winning margin.

Virginia, Shy Five Regulars, Upsets State

fourth setback of a schedule which shows two victories and a tie.

All the first quarter was played in Virginia territory, but State couldn't muster a scoring drive until the session was almost over. Then a Cavalier violation ofa"fair catch" signal gave the hosts possession on the 38 and they punched it over from there.

Longest gain of the drive, picking up four first downs, was an 8-yard tackle smash by Dick Johnson. At the end, after 11 straight running plays, Sophomore Bill Thompson dropped back and dropped a flat pass in the arms of Senior Oscar Boseman and after Jim Byler's conversion it was 7-0 State.

Virginia tied it up near the end of the second quarter. The score came after a Cavalier push had fizzled 25 yards from a six pointer. State was set back by a clipping penalty, could get nowhere running and Ogden Smith kicked out to Steve Osisek, who came back to the Pack's 26.

On the first play from scrimmage Bernie Gill, high-stepping halfback from Norfolk, slanted through right tackle. He shook off the grasping hands of two tacklers, cut sharply to the right sideline and was in the clear at the end of his 26-yard touchdown run. Carlton Elliot tried his first placement for the Cavaliers and made it 7-7 for intermission.

Virginia took a 14-7 lead with a minute of the third period remaining, the big chance coming after Billy Sinclair intercepted a State aerial and romped 26 yards to midfield.

Osisek first passed to Gill for 24 yards. Then, with Quarterback Dick Michels doing the hurling, Osisek switched to catching. He juggled Michels' toss on the 5 and trotted over. Elliott again converted.

The clincher came with the final session half over. Starting from their own 13, the Cavaliers sent Gill and Johnny Papit around the ends to State's 37, from which point an Osisek-to-Gene Edmunds pass made it 20-7, and Elliott made good on his third placement.

State came back with a second touchdown but it wasn't enough. A 54-yard toss, Smith to Miller, put the pack on Virginia's 24 and shortly thereafter the ball was on the 10. But four Smith passes failed and Virginia had a chance to hold all of its margin.

It didn't. Osisek fumbled as the invaders tried to run the ball and Freshman Elmer recovered for State on the 1-yard-line. Ogden Smith took a lateral and swept wide around right end for a touchdown. Byler kicked the last point of the game.

California Socks UCLA For 8th Win

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—California's unbeaten, untied juggernaut, taking advantage of all the breaks and playing inspired football only in flashes, ground out a 28-13 victory over U.C.L.A. in one of the wildest football games of its season today before 65,000 fans.

Coach Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf's club, racking up its eighth straight victory this year and its twelfth in succession, scored on nearly every type of play in the book—on a sustained march powered by Jackie Jensen, on the interception of a U.C.L.A. pass and an 85-yard touchdown run; on a blocked punt, and even on a counter that was set up by California's woefully weak aerial attack.

In the opening moments of the game, after the big California line staved off a Uclan attempt inside the 20, the Bears threw All-American candidate Jackie Jensen and Fullback Jack Swaner into a ground drive that carried 80 yards into the end zone with Swaner going over from the one.

Just before the half time gun, defensive Fullback Will Lotter intercepted a pass from Bruin Quarterback Ray Nagel on his own 15 and ran 85 yards to score and give the Bears a 14-0 halftime lead.

The Bears got another seven points in the third period. Swaner plunged over from the three after a 69-yard push. The country cousins from Los Angeles cashed in on their first of four scoring opportunities in the fourth period with a 67-yard march in 10 plays. Hal Braly plunged over for the score.

The Bears sent their big forward wall bowling through to block a kick behind the goal line after U.C.L.A. was pushed back to their own 1-yard line on a penalty. Cullom recovered in the end zone for the score.

With only 49 seconds of play remaining, the Bruins took the ball on their own 16 and went all the way to the Bear's 1 with the aid of a pass interference penalty. Halfback Ernie Johnson hit the goal line.

Marines Win Cross-Country

The Quantico Marines defeated the University of Richmond, 20 to 35, in a cross-country meet at Quantico yesterday, with Quantico's Hank Hart the star.

Hart set a new record for the 3½ mile Richmond course when he ran the distance in 19 minutes 11 seconds.

It was the Marines' fifth victory of the season. Richmond had a three and one record before yesterday's met.

SMU Scores 20-14 Victory; Texas Beats Baylor, 13-10

Walker Victimizes Texas A&M; Campbell Is Longhorn Star

Waco, Tex., Nov. 6 (AP).—The Texas Longhorns hit the comeback trail today, coming from behind to nudge Baylor, 13 to 10, in a wild, hard-fought football game before 20,000 at municipal stadium. It was the first defeat for once-tied Baylor.

In the final analysis, it was Texas Quarterback Paul Campbell's improved passing arm that turned the trick for the Longhorns after it looked as if the Bears had the game in the bag.

Baylor drew first blood in the second period with a touchdown and conversion. Then the Bruins added three more points with a field goal in the third quarter.

Shortly thereafter, Texas came back with a 70-yard pay-off drive for a touchdown, and Campbell's pass to End George McCall in the fourth period sewed it up for Texas.

A fumble by Texas' Ray Bourneman set up Baylor's first touchdown. Don Mouser pounced on the ball on the Texas 5. Jerry Mangum found a big hole and ran over for the score. Henry Dickerson place-kicked the extra point.

Another Texas fumble put Baylor in scoring position in the third.

A Baylor fumble and two line plays left the ball on the 17 and Dickerson came in to boot the field goal. Texas stormed back in eight plays. Driving 70 yards before Clay scored.

Baylor	0	7	3	0—10
Texas	0	0	6	7—13

Baylor: Touchdown—Mangum. Point after touchdown—Dickerson (placement). Field goal—Dickerson (placement).

Texas: Touchdowns—Clay, McCall. Point after touchdown—Clay.

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Dazzling Doak Walker, practically everybody's candidate for All-American, left the fans amazed and his opponents dazed today as he personally accounted for every touchdown in Southern Methodist's 20 to 14 triumph over an inspired Texas A&M team. SMU thus took on the conference lead.

He scored on runs of 40 to 12 yards and arched a pass to Fullback Dick McKissack for a third counter, leaving the Methodists undefeated in Southwest Conference

The fighting Aggies, who haven't won a game this year, cut loose with a dazzling passing attack that brought them second and third period touchdowns and knotted the score at 14-14 at one stage of the game.

SMU broke in front of the first four minutes of play after recovering A&M's fumble on the first play from scrimmage and moved 27 yards with Walker hitting McKissack for a fourth down pass for the final four.

Early in the second period Walker picked him a hole at center, threaded through it and twisted away from three Aggies, then went the rest of the 40 yards untouched.

With 13 seconds to play in the period, the Aggies made it 14-7 on a 50-yard surge featuring Baty's 42-yard pass to Bob Goode and on fourth down Bob Goode flipped a pass to Andy Hillhouse for a score. Herb Turley kicked the first of two conversions.

Midway of the third period the Aggies scored again on Goff's plunge from the 3 that was set up by a 51-yard pass from Baty to End Charley Wright.

W. Va. State Wins, 18-2

Breaking the long line of victories of the undefeated Virginia State Trojans, the West Virginia State Yellow Jackets scored three times to win, 18-2, last night at Griffith Stadium before 22,741.

It was the first time the Trojans have been scored on in 10 games. A pass, Joe Gilliam to Horace Christian, was good for the first six points after five minutes of play.

Playing in a sea of mud, the Yellow Jackets scored again after another Gilliam-to-Graves pass had placed the ball on the Virginia 4, and Graves crossed off tackle for the touchdown.

Their final count came early in the fourth period when Bill Stratford's punt was blocked and recovered by Warren Baugh, who scampered 20 yards for the final touchdown.

Virginia registered its safety in the first period when Joe Graves fumbled a pass from center and fell on it in the end zone.

Kostecka Hot But Jets Lose

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP).—The Rochester Royals made a successful debut in the Basketball Association of America tonight by beating the Indianapolis Jets, 69 to 58, before a sellout crowd of 4200.

Andy Kostecka, with 14 of his 19 points, coming in the final quarter, set the scoring pace in defeat. Arnie Johnson led the winners with 11.

received the news of his dismissal from newsmen.

O'Neill, who came out of Minooka, Pa., as one of four brothers to become major league players, took over the Detroit reigns from Del Baker in 1943. That year the Tigers wound up in fifth place, the same as last season.

No Word Yet, Bucky Tells Post

Bucky Harris told The Washington Post last night that he has not had "one solitary word" from the Detroit ball club about a job with the Tigers for the 1949 season.

Harris was reached by telephone last night in Philadelphia where he attended yesterday's Penn-Penn State foolball game.

Harris has been reported as a likely successor to Steve O'Neill, who was dismissed yesterday as manager of the Detroit club.

"I haven't heard one solitary word from Detroit," Bucky said. "Mr. Briggs (W. O. Briggs, Detroit president) has a mind of his own and he may have some one else in mind."

In between those years, however, the Tigers finished second to St. Louis in 1944, won the World Series from the Chicago Cubs in 1945, ended up second behind Boston in 1946 and runner-up to New York in 1947.

Last season was O'Neill's eighteenth as a manager and his ninth in the American League. Of his 17 years as a player he spent 13 as catcher for the Cleveland Indians.

O'Neills first big league managerial job was at Cleveland where he took over from Walter Johnson in 1935. After three years there he went to Buffalo for a three-year stay as pilot. Then he came to Detroit as a coach under Del Baker for a year before being sent to manage Beaumont in the Texas League in 1942.

He led Beaumont to a league pennant that year with such present Detroit players as Dick Wakefield, Hoot Evers and Pat Mullin.

Only Hughie Jennings of Detroit's 11 previous managers led the Tigers for longer than O'Neill. Jennings led the club for 14 years from 1907 through 1920. Ty Cobb equaled O'Neill's tenure, serving from 1921 through 1926.

Army Harriers Win Heptagonal

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Army scored a victory in the heptagonal cross-country meet today for the fourth time in the past five years. The defending champion West Point harriers totaled 51 points.

Individual winner was Stanton A. Waterman of Dartmouth, who was timed in 26:55.7.

Team scores:

Army, 51 points; Cornell, 64; Pennsylvania, 68; Yale, 100; Dartmouth, 108; Princeton, 154; Harvard, 176; Navy 208; Columbia, no score, only four men finished.

Alabama Has It Easy, 27-0

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Nov. 6 (AP).—Alabama piled up the yardage when it counted today and outscored a scrappy Mississippi Southern football team, 27-0.

Passes and pass interceptions spelled the margin of victory. The 'Bamans scored once by grabbing an aerial intended for a Mississippi man and twice on long passes of their own.

Butch Avinger hit the end zone on a quarterback sneak from the one-yard stripe for 'Bama's first touchdown in the opening period.

Clem Welsh accounted for the next score in the second quarter by snagging a 32-yard pass from Salem in the end zone.

Gambling on a pass deep in its own territory proved costly to the visitors in the third period. Alabama's Guard Jim Franko grabbed it and raced 21 yards into the end zone untouched.

Late in the final quarter, Welsh intercepted Vernon Wells' pass on the 'Bama 43. On the next play, Welsh caught Salem's aerial and ran 57 yards for the final score.

Fulks Gets 26, Warriors Win, 69-56

Providence, R. I., Nov. 6 (AP).—With Joe Fulks collecting 26 points, the Philadelphia warriors defeated the Providence Steamrollers, 69-56, in a Basketball Association of America game tonight before a 32428 crowd at the auditorium.

It was the Warriors' second victory in three starts and the Rollers' second straight loss.

W. & L. Bests VPI by 14-7

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 6 (AP).—Squeezing over a touchdown just before the half and another just before the final gun, Washington and Lee handed Virginia Tech its seventh straight loss of the season, 14-7, here today.

A crowd of some 8000 sat through intermittent rain and watched the Generals take the Southern Conference victory.

GI Freshman Quarterback Ray Leister gave the big Blue Generals their first counter with an end sweep of 2 yards on the last play from scrimmage before the half. That tied the ball game at 7-all, Tech having counted only seven minutes earlier when Sophomore Fullback Roger Neel plunged across from the 2.

The Generals' second and game-winning touchdown was just as close. Brian Bell, senior fullback, slipped 3 yards through tackle for that score and there was time only for a W-L kickoff before the officials called the end of the ball game.

Dover Romps In Bullis' Win

By Howard Flieger

Bob Dover's five touchdowns paced Bullis in its 56-19 win over Fork Union, yesterday on the Little Admirals' field.

Dover took two 30-yard passes from Duke Wuzzardo on Fork Union's 20 and 15 and raced over for two of his scores. His others were made on dashes through the Union line for 5, 9, and 22 yards.

Mishi Marinkov scored twice for the Kadets. Taking a reverse on a Bullis second quarter kickoff, Marinkov scampered down the sideline for 85 yards to score. His other touchdown came in the first quarter when he went around right end to score from the Bullis 9.

Dean Smith added two more touchdowns for Bullis, on a 55-yard pass play from Jim Joyce and on a 19-yard line buck. Joyce scored a touchdown from the 1, which ended a 85-yard drive for the Admirals and Joe Pagluica went through the center of the Kadets' line to score from the 17.

Fork Union managed to score once more in the final quarter when Bill Blair completed a pass to George Carter in the end zone.

Colt Beats Slam Bang, Sun Bahram

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 6.—Stamping himself as strictly Doiby-Preakness-Belmont material, Greentree Stable's Capot finished his 2-year-old campaigning in excellent style today. With 21,379 customers—the top crowd of the Maryland fall season — watching, the son of Menow finished four lengths ahead of the closest opposition in a field of nine competing in the twenty-sixth running of the famous 2-year-old event.

As the favorite in the betting, Capot returned a $4.60 mutuel.

Without feeling the sting of Jockey Teddy Atkinson's whip and not too strongly urged in the closing stages, the Menow colt came into the finish line in front of C. Mahlon Kline's Slam Bang which headed Mrs. Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Bahram out of the place.

The three juveniles finished in the exact order of their appearance last week in an overnight race when Capot broke the track record only to be disqualified for impeding Slam Bang in stretch.

Clocked in 1:45 4-5

Despite a slow track, Capot was clocked in a creditable 1:45 4-5, three seconds under the mark of Citation last year and the best for the race since Count Fleet's 1:43 3-5 in the 1942 running. However, the local strip is in better condition now than ever before.

In stamping himself as a "horse to watch" next spring, Capot did everything asked. He ran the early speed horses into the ground and then staved off, without apparent effort, the ones with the supposed stretch punch.

In contrast to his rather fractious actions in his previous race, Capot ran straight and true and looked the part of a winner all the way.

Atkinson got Capot away in good style and then settled him down as Slam Bang and Entrust ran along with him to the half pole. At this point, Atkinson asked the colt for speed and he responded, gradually opening a gap on his nearest rivals.

Slam Bang Holds On

Entrust dropped out of it at the far turn. Slam Bang, however, held on rather gamely. Flying Disc and Sun Bahram began moving around the outside. Flying Disc, in slightly close quarters turning for home, faltered under pressure and Sun Bahram hung in the final drive.

Although the Maryland Jockey Club posts only $25,000 for the Pimlico Futurity, nomination and eligibility fees increased the purse of this running to $57,445 and Capot's share of this large purse was $47,325.

This lion's share increased Capot's total earnings to $92,150 and he moves into second place behind Joseph Roebling's Blue Peter on the list of leading money-winning 2-year-olds of the year. Blue Peter, who was retired for the season about two months ago, earned $189,185.

Last year and the year before it was Calumet Farm's Citation and Maine Chance's Jet Pilot, respectively, who won the Pimlico Futurity and both colts went on to win in the Kentucky Derby. Also Count Fleet, who won the Futurity of 1942, won the Blue Grass Classic the following spring.

Capot had finished first in four previous outings, including two stake offerings.

The Fair Play Purse, secondary feature, drew enough contestants to be divided into the fifth and sixth races and the respective winners were Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Brass Band and Mrs. E. H. Augustus' Battle Cry.

Gallop for Brass Band

The fifth race was more or less a gallop for Brass Band when the colt came from just off the pace and won by a length and a half from H. H. Wilson's Sky Noamer. A rank outsider who was in front in the back stretch, J. G. Fair's Tab Wales, another long shot, was third

A product of the Sagamore Farm, Brass Band is by Bahram and from Parade Girl. The brown racer was the second favorite to win during the afternoon and backers received $5.60 for $2 after their choice had covered the six furlongs in 1:14 1-5.

The officials and chart makers needed the assistance of the camera to decide. Battle Cry the winner by a nose over R. P. Steckler's Mess Boy in the sixth race. The two game geldings raced head and head for the final furlongs and Jockey Dave Gorman did an exceptional fine job of booting to have Battle Cry's nose out in front at the end.

Battle Cry, who was beaten at very short odds at Laurel, returned $7.60 for $2 investment on his nose. The son of War Dog and Appomattox went the six furlongs in 1:13, considerably faster than Brass Band had moved in the first half of the Fair Play Purse.

The 6-1-9 combination clicked in the daily double. Apprentice Benny Civitello rode the Bernadotte Stable's Breakage home ahead in the first race at $9.20. The second went to Mrs. B. S. Campbell's Third Division, a $12.40 shot, ridden by Jockey Bobby Strange.

Maryland Tops S. Carolina

the next play Goodman broke through and smeared Hagan for a 13-yard deficit.

The defeat was South Carolina's fourth straight and the triumph Maryland's sixth in seven starts. Only Duke has stopped the College Park crew this year.

South Carolina was a 13-point underdog and looked every point of it. The Gamecocks lack poise and attack. And their defense, which today was called on to stymie simple inside power plays, couldn't meet the test.

The Terrapins frittered away three scoring chances—twice on fumbles and once on a pass interception—but they were never in trouble. Wadiak's run, a play which started around left end and which ended with Wadiak beating Safety Man Johnny Idzik in a sideline—to the goal, came with less than four minutes left in the game.

Except for Wadiak's long sprint, South Carolina was in Maryland territory only twice. Their deepest penetration was to Maryland's 47-yard line.

Jimmy Larue got Maryland off to its first touchdown by legging back a Hagan punt 22 yards to the South Carolina 39-yard line just as the scoreless first quarter ended.

Six plays later the Terps broke the stalemate. Werner made up for the eight yards Turyn lost trying to pass with a 14-yard dash. Roth added five more to carry to the 9. On third down, after one pass had failed and Werner had been stopped, Turyn pitched a 9-yard six pointer to Betz, standing unguarded at the end zone. Bob Dean came through with his only conversion.

In the shank of the second period, Maryland barreled over again. Krouse set up the drive by pounding on Bishop Strickland's fumble on the Gamecock 20-yard stripe. Harry Bonk got seven through the middle and Werner added 10 more yards, driving down to the 3.

Werner, ramming through tackle, fumbled on the 3, but Turyn scooped up the ball and skittered around end to make it, Maryland 13, South Carolina 0.

The third quarter was only two minutes old when Maryland was headed for another touchdown, but failed. Guard Tom McHugh reclaimed Basky's fumble for the Terps on the Carolina 6. Werner goth three and then misfortune overtook the Terps.

They were assessed 15 yards for illegal use of the hands and on third down Basky intercepted Turyn's pass intended for Stan Karnash, on the goal line. The Gamecocks fumbled on third down, but once again Maryland couldn't push it over from 28 yards out.

The drive bogged down on the 11 from where an Earl Roth drop kick attempt failed, but badly.

Maryland got its final score on the first play of the last quarter. Roth punted out of bounds on the Carolina seven to put the Gamecocks in a hole from which they couldn't extricate themselves. On second down, Ashley Phillips, back to punt, fumbled in the end zone and Wingate fell on it for Maryland's 19th and final point.

The Terps had a flock of reserves in the ball game when Wadiak electrified the crowd by taking a Hagan hand-off and zooming 65 yards for his touchdown. Bayard Pickett added the extra point.

Ken Stribling, Blackwood Fight Monday

A free-swinging session is in prospect when Joe Blackwood, bolo-punching New Englander, locks horns with Ken Stribling, local middleweight, in a scheduled ten-round boxing bout at Turner's Arena tomorrow night.

The bout tees off a middleweight elimination tournament that Matchmaker Gabe Menendez has announced will lead to an over-the-weight bout with Champion Marcel Cerdan here next spring.

Menendez has had preliminary discussions with Cerdan's American representative, Lew Burston, about bringing the champion here.

Blackwood and Stribling are rated even, although the more experienced visitor may be a slight favorite tomorrow night. Both are stand-up, slugging competitors. Blackwood has exhibited a terrific bolo punch in training sessions here, dropping two drill mates in his first local workout.

The New England youngster lists victories over Al Priest, Coley Welch, Gene Farland, Izzy Jannazzo and Joe LaMotta. He also fought two sizzling bouts to a draw with Ralph Zanelli, New England titleholder.

Stribling has knocked out Joe Gannon, Frank Sweeney, Kid Wolfe and scored over Johnny Walker and Frank Lacey. He won new followers in his exhibition of courage and durability in his battle with the highly-rated Jake LaMotta here this summer.

In addition to Blackwood and Stribling, Menendez plans to enter Smuggy Hursey, Johnny Hansbury, Steve Belloise and other top middleweights in the elimination tourney this season.

Big Al Edwards, Washington heavyweight, tests Joe Lindsay, highly rated newcomer from New York, in the six-round semifinal.

Two rematches are listed in the preliminaries, with Puggy King facing Walter Ham and Bobby Suma meeting Puggy Lyons in four-rounders. A four-rounder between Heavyweights Russ Berry and Ben Harrison will start the show at 8:45 p. m.

Armistice Day Show Will Feature Midget Auto Card

Director Tom Lane of Majestic Raceways announced last night that 150 crack D. C. National Guardsmen will participate in a special Armistic Day show during intermission of the second weekly indoor midget auto racing program at Uline Arena Thursday night.

Five of last week's opening night competitors have reentered the field for Thursday night. They are Mike Joseph, Clarence LaRue, Len Duncan, Jimmy Keegan and Vic Sloan.

Powerful searchlights will spotlight the arena from the outside while expert drill teams, aircraft warning squadrons, antiaircraft air weapon troops and the Guard's 28 piece 257th Army Band perform on the track.

A 36-man drill team from the 163d Military Police Battalion will hold a close order drill, followed by a Negro platoon from the 171st MP Battalion in swing time drill.

The Guard's 113th Aircraft Warning Squadron will hold simulated firing with multiple mount machine guns and the 380th antiaircraft air battalion will demonstrate its weapons.

Commanding the entire group will be Col. Leroy S. Mann.

Fourth Metro Title May Be Decided Today

The fourth and final Metropolitan Amateur Football League championship may be determined today when Northeast Body Works opposes Arrow Linen on Gonzaga Field, 34th and Benning rd., ne.

Northeast presently is leading the Arrowmen by two points, and can clinch the 160-pound Eastern Division crown with a win or tie. However, a victory for Arrow Linen would necessitate a playoff a week from today.

Championships already determined are: Brookland-Woodridge Merchants, 160-pound, Western Division; Car Credit, unlimited, Eastern Division, and Anacostia Eagles, unlimited, Western Division.

Arrow Linen has lost to Southwest Merchants and played ties with Brookland-Woodridge and Riverside Rollers: Northeast has bowed to Brookland-Woodridge, but won all its other games.

In other 160-pound games today Riverside Rollers take on Southwest Merchants at Hearst Playground while Brookland-Woodridge meet the Maryland Mohawks at Turkey Thicket.

The only unlimited contest of the day finds Car Credit, favored to extend its three-year, 32-game winning streak against Silver Spring A. C. at Montgomery-Blair High School. All games start at 2 p. m.

The regular Metro League schedule will wind up with an unlimited game involving Arlington Merchants and Falls Church at George Washington High School Stadium tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Hicks Leads Belvoir To 42-0 Triumph

Herschel Hicks broke loose three times for touchdowns yesterday as Fort Belvoir swamped Bolling Field, 42-0, in a Middle Eastern Service Conference game at Fort Belvoir.

Two of Hicks' scores came after runs of 55 and 45 yards. Ed Saunders, the Belvoir placekicker, had a perfect day with 6 conversion, giving him 15 in a row.

Catholic U. Harriers Turn Back Gallaudet

Catholic University's cross-country team defeated Gallaudet, 25 to 37, yesterday over a 3 2-3-mile course at Brookland despite the fact Gallaudet runners finished first and second.

1, Tiberio (Gallaudet); 2, Christian (Gallaudet); 3, Lias (Catholic); 4, Foley (Catholic); 5, Rudd (Catholic); 6, Boegel (Catholic); 7, Peck, Catholic; 8, Browning (Catholic); 9, McCurnin (Catholic); 10, Davila (Gallaudet); 11, Kopas (Gallaudet); 12, Paul (Catholic); 13, Kerr (Gallaudet); 14, Friesen (Gallaudet); 15, Goldenberg (Gallaudet).

Charlotte Hall Beats Gonzaga

A Gonzaga fumble on its own 30-yard line midway in the first period proved to be the source of the only score of the day as Charlotte Hall Military Academy gridders battling a stiff wind and hard luck, won yesterday, 7-0, on their own gridiron.

Three plays after Gonzaga's fatal fumble Larry Garner, Charlotte quarterback, passed from his own 20 to Dave Kline who in turn lateraled to Len Weiss who scampered the remaining distance for the tally.

Throughout the second period and for most of the third, a strong headwind prevented Charlotte from kicking out any farther than its 25. Still their defense showed remarkable strength in retarding powerful line bucks by Gonzaga's Johnny Hogan from as close as the 4.

Touchdowners Honor Cook

Arthur Cook, 20, a junior at the University of Maryland and a resident of Chevy Chase, will be saluted as the Washington area's "Youth of the Year" tomorrow when he addresses the Touchdown Club's weekly luncheon at 12:30 o'clock.

Cook won the rifle shooting championship while representing the United States in the Olympic Games in London last summer, and more recently captured the national title at Quantico, Va.

"Cookie," a ruddy cheeked and likeable youngster, not only will review his own Olympic performances and display his medal, but also will discuss outstanding feats credited athletes of this nation and other countries.

Kusserow Runs 103 Yards but Dartmouth Beats Columbia, 26-21

Early Spurt Decisive in Indian Win

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 6 (AP).—Dartmouth's fast-starting Indians eked out a 26-21 victory over Columbia by finally smearing the Lions' famed aerial attack in the semidarkness of the last four minutes today before 16,000 fans.

They needed only seven plays to score after taking the opening kickoff, Hal Fitkin making the first touchdown with an 8-yard slam off left tackle.

Herb Carey, Dartmouth's heavy duty fullback, romped 40 yards for the second touchdown in the second session, just after Sophmore Johnny Clayton's aerial to Wnger Dale Armstrong in the Columbia end zone was nullified by a clipping penalty.

Finding themselves behind, 12-0, the Lions started roaring. Kusserow, Columbia's top groundgainer, started his teammates on the upgrade by taking a kickoff three yards behind his goal line and going all the way just before halftime.

Carey and Fitkin each scored again in the third period. The former climaxed a 60-yard march with a 23-yard scoring run and the glue-fingered Fitkin grabbed a 15-yard pass Clayton threw from Dartmouth's 20 and then galloped with it for 65 yards. After turning in his second touchdown, Carey took over the placekicking and came through with a pair of conversions.

Rossides completed two passes to Kusserow and one to Winger Adam Rakowski to move Columbia to Dartmouth's 2-yard line. From there it was an easy matter for Kusserow, who played the entire game at fullback, to bang for his second touchdown.

A few minutes later, Johnny Nork spelled Rossides as passer and got the Lions rolling from midfield with a 20-yard heave to Kusserow. The latter then tried three line smashes before Rossides took over again and threw another 20-yarder that enabled Bill Lockwood to score standing up.

Dartmouth: Touchdowns—Fitkin (2), Carey (2). Points after touchdowns—Carey, 2 (placements).

Holy Cross Tops Duquesne

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 6 (AP).—Balked in the air and fought on fairly even terms on the ground, Holy Cross reached in the bag for a third-quarter field goal by Vito Kissell and a 16-13 victory over Duquesne at Forbes Field today. Duquesne wasted little time in the first quarter, setting the Crusaders behind, 7-0. The Easterners came back near the end of the same period with 7 points of their own.

In the second the picture was reversed, with Holy Cross scoring first and Duquesne second. The third quarter field goal by Kissell ended the scoring.

Holy Cross found the Dukes sharp on the defense against second half passes. The Crusaders' passing quarterback, Walt Brennan, was stopped in the last half. But his three passes to End Dieckelman brought the first quarter score, and his heave into the end zone resulted in a second period touchdown.

Fullback Ralph Longmore scored first for Duquesne after he sliced through right tackle and raced 42 yards for a score. After taking the ball on its own 16-yard line, Holy Cross scored in short order on the Brennan-Dieckelman aerial combination.

In the second period, Holy Cross drove from its 20-yard stripe for the first downs. Then Brennan pitched another touchdown pass, this time from his 36-yard line to Halfback Joe Byers in the end zone. Duquesne's six points came on a pass from Len Kubiak, quarterback, to Lee Squires. That heave went from the 21-yard line to the end zone.

Score by periods:

Holy Cross	7	6	3	0—16
Duquesne	7	6	0	0—13

Holy Cross scoring: Touchdowns—Dieckleman, Byers. Field goal—Kissell. Points after touchdown—Murphy, (placement).

Duquesne scoring: Touchdowns—Longmore, Squires. Points after touchdown—Bretz.

Cornell Turns Back Colgate In Mud, 14-6

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP).—Cornell University's high powered football team slithered to a 14-6 triumph over Colgate today in ankle-deep mud.

A crowd of 17,000 protected somewhat from a steady downpour by raincoats and umbrellas, saw the Big Red capture the upState New York "Big Three" championship in decisive style in the second half.

The Cornell attack was sparked by Fullback Jeff Fleischmann, he also scored Cornell's first touchdown.

Another big factor in the Cornell victory was the play of Bob Dean, who scored the second touchdown and booted both extra points.

Colgate scored in the second period. Substitute Quarterback Carroll McLaughlin heaved from his own 41 to Alan Egler who caught the ball on the Cornell 20 and scooted the rest of the way for the score. Haley blocked Bob Cochran's placement try for extra point.

Dean's boot from placement put Cornell ahead in the third period after Fleischmann scored on a 9-yard plunge, skidding over the goal-line on his face. Dean ran 14 yards around his own left end without a hand being laid on him for the Big Red's final tally.

Cornell now has a season record of six wins against a lone defeat at the hands of Army. It was Colgate's fifth defeat in seven starts.

Colgate	0	6	0	0— 6
Cornell	0	0	7	7—14

Colgate: Touchdown—Egler.

Cornell: Touchdowns—Fleischmann, Dean. Points after touchdowns—Dean, 2 (placements).

Rice Topples Arkansas

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—A versatile and powerful ground attack sprinkled with enough passes to open up the defense carried Rice to a 25 to 6 victory over Arkansas today before 34,700.

Using passes only in overcoming an early six-point Arkansas lead, Rice depended mostly on the running of Gordon Wyatt, John Kelly and Bobby Lantrip.

It was Wyatt who roared almost single-handedly to to Rice's third score in the third period, carrying five out of six times in the 50-yard march. Kelly played the same role in scoring the final time.

Arkansas got off to an early lead but Rice roared back fast on the accurate passing of Vernon Glass, who completed passes to Emmanuel Braden and Jack Wolcott to place the ball on the three. Bobby Lantrip scored.

The second Rice tally came late in the second period after Joe Watson recovered a fumble by Ross Pritchard on the Arkansas 12. It took Rice only two plays to score with Lantrip going over standing.

Rice's other scores came on long drives in the final period with Wayatt and Kelly crossing the goal line.

Boston U. Routs Fordham, 33-7

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—Alert, hard-charging Boston University used three blocked kicks, two recovered fumbles and a pair of intercepted passes to score a 33-7 triumph over Fordham today.

A crowd of 2500 at the Polo Grounds saw the Terriers score in every period to register their sixth straight triumph. Only an opening day loss to Muhlenberg mars a perfect slate for the New Englanders.

Yale Wallops Kings Point

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 6 (AP).—Yale, using reserves freely and playing without the presence of Coach Herman Hickman, walloped Kings Point, 52-0, today in the Yale Bowl. The Blue tallied in each period, including four touchdowns in the second quarter.

Hickman was scouting the Princeton-Harvard fray at Princeton.

In piling up its largest score against a foe since beating LaFayette, 55-0 in 1935, Yale's touchdowns were recorded by seevn of its performers—Tex Furse, Dale Liechty, Bob Raines, Levi Jackson, Warren Gant, Stu Tisdale and Roger Barksdale, who also accounted for a placement kick. Bill Booe registered the other points, including a field goal which covered 24 yards.

Washington State Ties Oregon State

Pullman, Wash., Nov. 6 (AP).—Washington State College and Oregon State College swapped touchdowns furiously today and ended in a 26-26 tie before a standing crowd of 12,000 fans.

Don Samuel, Oregon State right halfback, scored two touchdowns for the Beavers, but the plunges of Fullback Dick Twenge and the passing of Ken Carpenter were just as important in the Beaver attack.

Jerry Williams, the Cougars' sparkling halfback, romped for three touchdowns. He was helped by the throwing arm of Quarterback Frank Hataya and the drives of Halfback Don Paul.

Ohio State Wins, 41-0, Over Pitt

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Ohio State neatly trimmed an ambitious but inept band of Pittsburgh Panthers today, 41 to 0, to continue its football renaissance under Wes Fesler with its fifth victory of the year.

A crowd of 68,000 watched Ohio clinch the game immediately after the opening of the second period with Fullback Joe Whisler punching over from one yard out. The march started from Pitt's 37 and was aided by short chunks of yardage bitten off by Halfback Jerry Krall.

Most of the scoring was done by Ohio State in the second and third periods, when it had a mighty wind at its back and took full advantage. At one point in the third period Ohio Fullback Curley Morrison kicked a full 80 yards on the fly, from his own 20 into the Pitt end zone.

After Whisler went over for the first one, Ohio State scored twice more in the second period on an off-tackle slant by Krall from the Pitt one and a Savic pass to Halfback Alex Verdova in the end zone.

In the third period Whisler smashed off tackle from the Pitt 8 for a score. End Sonny Gandee intercepted a pass thrown by Bobby Lee on the Pitt 21 and carried it over, and Sub Quarterback Dick Widdoes threw a long one to Jimmy Hague from the Pitt 27 for Ohio's other scores. Hague made all but one conversion.

Ohio State	0	20	21	0—41

Touchdowns—Whisler (2), Krall, Verdova, Gandee, Hague. Points after touchdowns—Hague (5).

Lazier Returns Punt 56 Yards

Illini Nurse Early Lead, Coast to Victory Over Iowa

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 6 (AP).—Illinois exploded for two second-period touchdowns on Murney Lazier's 56-yard punt return and a 46-yard payoff drive to whip Iowa, 14-0, today. A 41,502 Dads' Day throng watched the Big Nine football scrap.

The fightin' Illini faded somewhat in the second half, but the Hawkeyes were unable to penetrate closer than 12 yards to the Illinois goal.

With due credit to Lazier and Fullback Russ Steger, who rammed over from the 1-yard line for the second score, Illinois had splendid help from the passing of Quarterback Bernie Krueger and the punting of Dike Eddleman.

Krueger completed six of 11 passes for 120 yards. His tossing set up the second Illini touchdown.

Eddleman took the starch out of the game Hawkeyes with quick-kicks of 88 and 75 yards.

The contest ruined Iowa's chance to sneak into the Rose Bowl picure. It left them with a 2-3 record and Minnesota still to play in league competition.

Nebraska Routs Kansas State, 32-0

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 6 (AP).—An attack that brought touchdowns in every quarter broke Nebraska's five-game losing streak here today with a 32 to 0 win over slow Kansas State.

Nebraska went 41 yards for its first quarter touchdown. Fullback Phil Young plunger 4 yards on fourth down to score. The second period scoring drive was for 45 yards, Dick Hutton going wide for the final 9 yards.

In the third, a Del Wiegand-to-Fletcher pass to the 18 was followed by a first down on the 4. Young plunged for his second score.

From the State 40, the Huskers moved to the 7 on a Ferguson-to-Bob Askerman pass, and gave the scoring nod to Young, his third of the game.

A twisting 82-yard punt return by Don Bloom brought Nebraska's fifth score with two minutes left.

Hockey in a Fog

Philadelphia, Nov. 6 (AP).—New Haven and Philadelphia struggled to a 2-2 tie tonight in an American league Hockey game played in a fog that halted action five times.

Landon Beaten By Sanford, 20-7

Hockessin, Del., Nov. 6.—Favored Sanford Prep had to come from behind in the fourth quarter today to defeat Landon School of Washington, 20 to 7 Sanford scored first on a pass from George Hume to Ellis Krauss good for 27 yards but the extra point was no good.

A few seconds before the end of the first quarter Landon recovered a Sanford fumble and six plays later Bob Nicholls drove through the middle for Landon's only score.

Princeton Overwhelms Harvard in 47-7 Rout

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 6 (AP).—Princeton ground Harvard into the green turf of Palmer Stadium today, 47-7, with the highest scoring splurge of an ancient series dating back to 1877.

Taking complete charge of play after a first-period Harvard touchdown on an electrifying 77-yard run by Harold Moffie, the Tigers opened the defense of their Big Three title with a smashing attack that netted 493 yards.

One by one Princeton smashed all existing scoring marks for its feud with Harvard. Before today the top score was 41-15 for Princeton in 1889 and a 36-0 margin for the rampant Tigers of the 1925 era. Both were bypassed in a crushing defeat for the Harvard team, the third worst in its entire grid history.

Twenty-two first downs for Princeton to five for Harvard probably tells the story as well as anything. The Tigers moved for 355 yards on the ground and 138 on the air to the delight of most of the crowd of 37,000.

Tigers March 80 Yards

Smashing back after Moffie's dazzling run for Harvard, Princeton rolled 80 yards in 14 plays on an effective mixture of ground smashes by John Weber and Val Wagner's passing. Wagner's toss to End Reed covered the final 10 yards.

George Sella accounted for a second period score as he took Wagner's short pass on the line of scrimmage while the Harvard offense scattered. Sella scored standing up on a 13-yard run.

Fumbles by the hard-hit Harvard team turned the game into a rout in the third quarter. George Chandler galloped 40 yards shortly after Cohn snared Gannon's fumble. Weber smashed over from the 5 after Bill Koch fell on a ball that bounced away from Bill Henry for another. And Reed caught another Wagner pass on a 16-yard play for a third score.

Jake McCandless skirted left end from the 3 and Bob McCormick tossed a 6-yard southpaw pass to Cliff Kurrus to account for two last-quarter touchdowns. Frank Reichel, whose field goal edged Columbia, added five extra points.

Harvard	7	0	0	0— 7
Princeton	0	13	20	14—47

Harvard: Touchdown—Moffie. Point after touchdown—Drvaric (placement).

Princeton: Touchdowns—Reed (2), Sella, Chandler, Weber, McCandless, Kurrus. Points after touchdowns—Reichel, 5 (placements).

Howard Beats Hampton, 6-0

Hampton, Va., Nov. 6.—The Howard University Bisons of Washington struck through the air for a third-period touchdown and a 6-0 victory over Hampton Institute before 6500 homeecoming fans at Armstrong Field today.

After a scoreless first half, Howard's Chuck Ross started pitching. Passes to Asahel Abrams and Ralph Spencer moved the ball to the Pirates' 24. At that point Ross connected with Don Jones, who wriggled away for a touchdown.

Late in the game, the Pirates started an aerial offensive that carried to the Bison 2, where the clock ran out. Hampton led the winners in first downs, 7 to 5, and in yards gained from scrimmage, 144 to 132.

Howard	0	0	6	0—6

Touchdown—Jones.

Richmond Tops Davidson

Davison, N. C., Nov. 6 (AP).—Richmond University's Spiders capitalized on a third-period blocked punt today and defeated Davidson College's Wildcats, 6 to 0.

On a rain-soaked field, blocking Back Bernard Hofbauer broke through and slammed into Anderton's kick on the Davidson 26. A wild scramble across soggy turf finally ended on the 2-yard line with Ed Ralston, Spider fullback, recovering it.

On the first play Ralston rammed over center for the score as Davidson's homecoming crowd of 7500 groaned. Frank Thompson failed to convert when a bad pass from center delayed Tom Billingsley in setting the ball upright Davidson's boldest bid for points came midway of the opening period when Charlie Suttonfield fumbled on the Spider 21 and Buddy Chandler recovered for Davidson. Jim Sifford got 3 yards in two tries, two passes, Auburn Lambeth to Jack Ashmore, carried only to the 16 and the ball went to Richmond.

Bowl-Bent Northwestern Stops Wisconsin, 16 to 7

PIGGYBACK—Northwestern Back Frank Aschenbrenner goes for a ride on the back of Wisconsin End Eilden Meyers as he is tackled low in returning a kickoff in yesterday's game at Madison, Wis. Northwestern won, 16-7

Wildcats' Rally in 2d Half Wins

Madison, Wisc., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Northwestern's wily Wildcats, aware that the second place consolation prize in the Big Nine race means more this year than the championship, advanced a step closer to it and a New Year's Day Rose Bowl date today by blasting Wisconsin, 16 to 7.

A gathering of 45,000 homecoming fans saw the inspired Badgers almost spring a colossal upset, on this cold November day. For Wisconsin played fine football, holding Northwestern a 2 to 0 halftime lead before superior manpower wore its first stringers down.

The Wildcats now need to defeat only Illinois to claim the right to represent the Big Nine in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day. Michigan, the apparent winner, cannot make a second consecutive trip. Northwestern has lost only to Michigan.

Northwestern's big, hard-charging line went to work early in the second half, and the Wildcats smashed to two quick touchdowns and the ball game.

It was hard to single out any individual standout although Frank Aschenbrenner scored two touchdowns and was dangerous from any point on the field. Defensively it was the entire Wildcat line, led by Capt. Alex Sarkisian, Reserve Center Ray Wietecha, Guard Fatso Day and End Don Stonesifer.

The Wildcats scored in the first quarter when Wietecha smashed through the line to block a Wisconsin punt. Wisconsin recovered behind its own goal line for a safety.

That was all the scoring in the first half but Northwestern soon made up for that with two quick touchdowns midway in the third quarter. A clipping penalty set Wisconsin back to its 1 and the Badgers were able to kick out only to their 28. Aschenbrenner burst through the line for 27 yards one play later, and Jim Farrar kicked the point.

Wisconsin's Clarence Self fumbled the next kickoff on his 17 and six plays later Aschenbrenner broke around end for the score. Farrar again kicked the point.

Wisconsin went 85 yards a few minutes later, exchanged fumbles, and then went 15 yards with Dreyer plunging over from the 1. Lisle Blackbourn converted.

Wisconsin	0	0	0	7—7
Northwestern	2	0	14	0—16

Touchdowns—Aschenbrenner (2), Dreyer. Points after touchdowns—Farrar (2), Blackbourn. Safety—Cox.

Minnesota's Passing, Running Game Crushes Purdue, 34-7

Minneapolis, Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Minnesota dazzled Purdue with passes and smashed it with powerful ground thrusts today, winning, 34 to 7, before a record crowd of 66,953 persons at Memorial Stadium.

The Gophers bottled up Bob Demoss' heralded passing and whipped up a combination running and passing offensive which had the oft-beaten Boilermakers playing with their backs to the wall most of

Except for the running of Harry Szulborski, speedy junior halfback from Detroit, Purdue would not have been in the game at all. Szulborski broke loose on a 53-yard touchdown jaunt after only two minutes of play and sprinted 50 yards to the Minnesota 28 in the third period before he was run out of bounds.

Other than that it was all Minnesota. The Gophers made up for Purdue's lone touchdown with a 50-yard march early in the first period which Fullback Frank Kuzma capped with a 20-yard scoring jaunt.

Michigan State Wallops Marquette

East Lansing, Nov. 6 (AP).—Michigan State powered effortless to a 47-0 shutout over Marquette in the eighteenth game of the traditional series before 36,436 fans.

It was the most impressive score the Spartans have run up since they plastered the Hilltoppers 67-6 in 1915.

The defeat was the sixth in seven starts for outclassed Marquette and marked the fourth win against two losses and a tie for the Spartans.

Little George Guerre scored twice as did Jim Blenkhorn, once on a 68-yard ramble, the longest run of the game.

Baugh Has 128 TDs

At the beginning of this National Football League season, Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins had tossed 128 touchdown passes since he joined the loop in 1937.

Eastern Branch Takes Title in Boys Club Games

Winning in two weight divisions and trying in one, the Eastern branch of the Boys' Club of Washington proved to be the team of the day as it stopped all comers except a powerful 90-pound Trinidad eleven yesterday on the Armory Field.

Eastern's 120 and 140-pound clubs came out victorious by similar 21-0 scores over Trinidad and Alexandria, respectively, in perhaps the most exciting event on the agenda.

The little 80 pounders from Eastern and Trinidad battled to a scoreless tie.

Trinidad's 90-pound crew were the only ones to blemish the Eastern record which it did by a close margin of 12-7.

Freddie Mills Kayoes Ralph

Johannesburg, Nov. 6 (AP).—Freddie Mills, world light heavyweight boxing champion, knocked out Johnny Ralph, South African heavyweight king, tonight in the eighth round of a scheduled 12-round non-title bout.

Hornets, Flyers Tie

Pittsburgh, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Hornets and the St. Louis Flyers battled to a 3-to-3 tie tonight before 5083 fans in an American Hockey League game.

Rutgers Wins Middle Three Title

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov. 6 (AP).—Rutgers bounced back from a mauling by Brown and subdued Lafayette, 34-13, today, retaining the Middle Three championship before 18,000. The Scarlet set down the other member of the Middle Three, Lehigh, two weeks ago at Bethlehem, Pa.

Barons Hit Bottom

Cleveland, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Cleveland Barons, defending champions of the American Hockey League, slipped into the basement of the circuit's western division tonight when they were edged, 3 to 2, by Indianapolis's Capitals before 10,817.

W. & M. Ties Tar Heels, 7-7

TAR HEELS—Fr. Pg. C-1

the 10. However, Tackle Lou Creekmur was accused of roughing Carolina's favorite son and the Tar Heels were awarded a first down on the visitors' 30.

The play was a tough one to call Creekmur was rushing in to block the punt and nearly did. It looked like he just couldn't stop, rather than deliberate charging.

Again, when it looked like the Indians would hold, after all, a decision went against them. End Ken Powell, on an end-around play that went awry, was dropped on the 20 for a 10-yard loss.

A couple of eager Indians were trying to make sure he was stopped but it was interpreted as piling on and North Carolina was given a first down on the five.

Justice made only three yards in two tries but Rodgers went over and End Bob Cox place-kicked the tying point.

Out-first downed by a staggering 17 to 1 and gaining only 19 yards on the ground to Carolina's 184, William and Mary's exhibition was a truly great defensive one.

Hoitsma not only made the score but played a marvelous game on defense. The entire forward wall played splendidly but Center Tommy Thompson and Lou Creekmur deserve special recognition.

They kept close watch on that man Choo-Choo Justice. Justice did get loose for 34 yards in the first period and did average 5 yards per carry with 77 yards in 19 attempts, but he didn't get away for that damaging run. His passing record of 7 for 17 was hampered by inefficient receivers, but two tosses were intercepted.

That brings up William and Mary's statistical advantage—the Indians intercepted four passes and recovered three of Carolina's four fumbles.

Today's tie was viewed glumly by Maryland coaches Jim Mead and Al Wood. After the game, they made no secret of fearing the Tar Heels rebounding Saturday at Griffith Stadium against their Terps.

Wolverines Rout Navy for 21st Straight

a former Midshipman now third string tailback of Michigan, passed to Rifenberg for touchdown number 4 and Ortmann pitched a 48-yarder to him for the final score.

Against Michigan's 22 first downs and 227 yards rushing, the Middies could show only eight first downs and 73 yards running. Driven into the air, Navy could complete only four of the 15 passes of Reaves, Baysinger and Bob Horne, for a mere 46 yards.

In the first half, Navy appeared a sharper team than the squad that had taken the beating from Notre Dame, despite its failure to score. Big Bill Hawkins, returning to the team after a month's illness, gave the Navy defense a big lift, but never did the Middies mount any kind of a drive.

The Navy offense suffered when Pete Williams was hurt on the fourth play of the game, and after Baysinger punted to the Navy 47, the Wolverines moved relentlessly into action. On a reverse, on which he was the third man to handle the ball, Leo Koceski tore off 15 yards at left tackle, and a bit later Michigan was on Navy's 26 after interference by Green was called on a pass from Koceski to Rifenberg.

Ortmann passed to McNeill for a first down on the 15 and alternated with Koceski on a smash that carried to the two. Two plays later, Ortmann cut back through right tackle for the touchdown and gave Pete Allis an opportunity to kick the first of his five consecutive extra points.

Bill Powers and Billy Earl, Navy's little backs, took the middies to the Michigan 45 with line smashes and after an exchange of punts Navy reached Michigan's 42, but that was to be their farthest advance until the fourth quarter.

Navy Caught Flatfooted

Michigan stormed back into Navy territory in the second quarter on a 20-yard pass play by Ortmann who after running wide pitched to Quarterback Elliott for 20 yards. A fancy lateral to Ortmann by Peterson after the latter had cracked through for 15 yards, accounted for a 20-yard overall gain, and five plays later it was a touchdown, Michigan.

The touchdown play caught Navy's left side flatfooted with Peterson faking a hand-off to Ortmann and then pitching out wide to Elliott who streaked the last 10 yards without blockers in a naked field.

Navy blunted another touchdown threat in the second quarter after Center Dan Dworsky intercepted Horne's pass on the Navy 29. Baysinger knocked down a pass by Derricote on the goal line and the threat vanished when McElroy smeared Ortmann for an 8-yard loss on fourth down.

By the margin of a yard, though, Navy barely averted a safety as the half came to a close. With the Middies penalized to their own 14 for clipping, Horne was smeared by Sickle on a passing attempt and tackled in the end zone but the officials ruled that Sickle had carried Horne across the goal line.

Baysinger invited the first Michigan touchdown of the third quarter when he fumbled the pass from center on his own 25, Dick Kempthorn recovering for Michigan. In three plays, the Wolverines scored. Koceski outsped the Navy secondary on a 20-yard slant at right end before Schiwek hauled him down on the five, and Teninga in two smashes at right tackle took it over.

Harried all day on his passes by the fierce rushing of Michigan's line, Baysinger got Navy to midfield when, trapped once more on fourth down pass, he broke away for a 14-yard gain, but at the Michigan 43 he was forced to punt.

Before yielding Michigan's fourth touchdown, Navy made a brave stand inside its own 20. Walt Tenninga snared a pass by Baysinger and ran it back 45 yards to the Navy 20, and the Wolverines reached the 4 before yielding the ball after a futile attempt to shake Van Summern loose.

Arnold punted out to Navy's 41, and from that spot the Wolverines moved again, this time all the way. Ortmann pitched a 13-yard pass over the middle to Allis. Then, going into a T-formation, Ortmann took a hand-off from Elliot and fought up the middle for 18 yards.

Then they hoodwinked Navy on a touchdown play. Peterson took the snap from center, went into a spin, pitched wide to Van Summern and it evolved as a pass to Rifenberg all by himself in the end zone while the Middies were searching for the Michigan strategy.

Coach George Sauer of Navy was infuriated when the score was allowed, declaring that Rifenberg did not have control of the ball before stepping outside the end zone. "By no stretch of the imagination could that be called anything but an incompleted pass," said Sauer.

Navy launched its strongest bid for a touchdown at the start of the fourth quarter after Marquardt took the kickoff to their 36. Baysinger unloaded a smart 18-yard pass to Wilson, and Arnold circled left end for 9 yards to the Michigan 39. Arnold picked up another yard before McNeill called a halt to Navy's advance by smearing Marquardt for a 3-yard loss on a pitch-out from Baysinger, who was forced to punt.

In five plays the Wolverines covered the 86 yards to the goal line. Ortmann tore off a 21-yard chunk to the Michigan 42, and Substitute Dufek bulled 10 more up the middle. The touchdown play was Ortmann's nicely timed pitch to Rifenberger who took the 46-yard pass on Navy's 2 and skipped over.

Eager to get a sixth touchdown a third-string Michigan team enthusiastically started a drive from the Navy 42, with Lentz and Van Summern ripping off 10-yard runs. Lentz completed a pass to Ghindia and an added penalty against Green of Navy for roughing moved the ball to the Navy 11. But the march stalled on the Navy 4 when a fourth-down pass by Lentz went harmlessly into the end zone.

and three pass interceptions kept the fans on the edge of their seats.

To add to the confusion, the game was played at Hagood Memorial Stadium, which is located on the Ashley River, and is surrounded by a county fair. Mingled with the loudspeaker announcements were shouts of the fair barker, sputing the merits of strip-teaser Georgia Southern, the bells of a merry-go-round, the clatter of a ferris wheel and the boat whistles on the Ashley.

This with the constant rattle of the drills on the still incompleted stands contributed mightily to what must be 8000 headaches in Charleston tonight.

The favored Colonials were a meek outfit for the most part of the first half. Only threatening a minute before intermission, it was The Citadel which had the first scoring opportunity.

Helped by a Davis fumble, The Citadel rolled 14 yards to the G.W. 8 before being stopped. Guard Bill Henderson stepped back and tried a 17-yard goal, but the ball hit the cross bar and bounced back.

After that G. W.'s line was in control of The Citadel's offensive moves, with Davis' running and passing all over Citadel territory. Davis' first three of 10 completions came in the midst of G. W.'s second quarter stab which penetrated to The Citadel's 6. Frank Close dropped a low fourth-down pass on the goal line to end it.

Guard Jim Regan fell on a Citadel fumble on the Bulldog 12 as the second half opened, but Davis again fumbled away the scoring opportunity.

G. W. got still another chance in the third quarter with Davis passing the Colonials to the 8th. On third down, Andy connected on a pass to End Bill Szanyi as the latter fell out of the end zone. Officials ruled the pass incomplete, and the drive faltered.

Davis, sixth-ranking nationally in total offense, accounted for 161 yards today but the most precious were the 41 he gained in five plays with time running out. They moved the ball to The Citadel 1 from where Spangler, in two cracks at the line, went over.

Davis, who completed 10 out of 19 passes, and Spangler, whose five punts averaged 44 yards, were GW's offensive stars. But they owed a lot to the fine blocking of Quarterback Stan Burak, Tackle Jim Feula and Guard Howie Diederich. Yednock, backing up the line, and Szanyi at end, were the defensive standouts for the Colonials.

Colts Once Defeated Browns, Hope to Do it Again Sunday

Cleveland, Nov. 6 (AP).—Two games between the Cleveland Browns and the San Francisco 49ers probably will decide the All-America Football Conference's Western Division championship, but the champion Browns might run into surprising difficulties before then—specifically, tomorrow night against the Baltimore Colts.

The Browns have been beaten only once in their last 29 league games, but the Colts upset them 27 to 17 in an exhibition game last August.

In that contest, Yellburton Abraham Tittle, a former Brown, turned in a passing demonstration the Browns would rather forget. He passed for two touchdowns and made another toss that set up a third.

The former Louisiana State star, drafted and signed by the Browns, was shipped to Baltimore as part of the league's "help the poor" policy.

Tittle is now a leading candidate for conference rookie of the year. Third in the league in total offense, he has passed for 1555 yards and gained 120 yards by rushing.

Tittle sprained his ankle last Sunday but it has responded to treatment and he'll be ready to go tomorrow.

The Colts have won four and lost five compared with the Browns' record of eight wins and no losses, but Coach Paul Brown doesn't regard the game as any "breather."

"We were idle last week," Brown reminded, "and when a team lays off it loses its competitive edge. It's also natural that our boys should be looking ahead to the San Francisco game the following week, although I've warned them that the game with the Colts will be no picnic."

Benefit Pin Match In Hyattsville Today

The Hyattsville club of the Prince Georges County Police Boys Club will benefit from the one-ball tournament which Manager Oscar Hiser will stage today, starting at 2 p. m. at Hyattsville Recreation Bowling Center.

There will be a guaranteed first prize of $50. Entrance fee is $2. Scratch is 130, handicap one-third and the pin limit 30.

The Prince Georges County Police Boys Club, now conducting a campaign to raise funds throughout the section, is badly in need of money, Police Chief Brown stated recently.

Janiro Sprains Back, Pellone Faces Galivan

New York, Nov. 6 (AP).—It'll be Tony Pellone instead of Tony Janiro against Kid Gavilan in Friday night's welterweight boxing headliner at Madison Square Garden.

The Twentieth Century sporting club announced late today that Janiro from Youngstown, Ohio, had sprained his back in training at Greenwood Lake, N. Y., and withdrew from the bout after examination by State boxing commissioner Dr. Vincent Nardiello.

By virtue of a writ of execution issued out of the clerk's office of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia and to me directed, I will sell BY PUBLIC AUCTION for cash, in front of the west entrance of the Courthouse on D Street between Fourth and Fifth Streets, N.W., Washington, D. C., on WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1948, AT 2 O'CLOCK P. M., all the right, title and interest of the defendant, Helen Draper Hoffman, in the following described real estate in the District of Columbia, to wit: that real estate now known for purposes of taxation as Lot 839, Square 2540, improved by Three-Story and Basement Brick Cement-faced Dwelling No. 2349 Ashmead Place, N.W., with two-car metal garage in rear, seized and levied upon as the property of the defendant, Helen Draper Hoffman, and sold to satisfy a judgment at law, Civil Action No. 35-314, in favor of Grace S. Partridge.

W. BRUCE MATTHEWS,
United States Marshal in and for the District of Columbia.

SALESMEN (6)
National organization is in a position to increase its sales force with men who are interested in making a steady living year round. Here is a partial listing of pay checks earned last week by some members of our force.

H. L.	$222.50
D. L.	$147.50
E. B.	$137.50
P. S.	$117.50
D. R.	$112.50
J. M.	$100.00

Believe it or not, none of these people have sold before, but because of our unusual method of training are able to earn these kind of salaries each and every week, 52 weeks a year. We're of the opinion that every man would like to become a salesman of some type, but just doesn't have the nerve to apply for the job because he feels he doesn't have enough experience. If you are sincere and think you have the ability, come in and meet these people we have listed here. They will show you how and why they make this kind of money and more every week.

ATTENTION

Restaurant Owners

"This Is Bob Hollander Speaking"

For the past 25 years I have specialized in the sale of the better-type restaurants and have sold many of the well-known restaurants in this city. I have been representing some of my clients for as long as 20 years, during which time they have bought and sold exclusively through me. I am now in a position to handle the sale of a few more good paying restaurant propositions. If you are thinking of selling and have a profitable business I will be pleased to appraise same for you at today's market value at no charge or obligation, and unless I feel I can sell it I will not accept your listing, so both of us will save time. Incidentally this is the first time in many years that I have requested listing through an advertisement, but while there are many places on the market for sale in Washington, I will not offer them to my clients unless they are good paying propositions and the price asked is fair.

Cooperative Association
Columbia Heights Project

We have a limited number of 1 and 2 bedroom apartments left. Low down payment; low monthly payments. Apartment homes at a price you can afford to pay. Exhibit apartment open from 10 a. m. until 9 p. m. daily and weekends. Directions are out Columbia pike one mile past the intersection of Glebe rd. and Columbia pike to sign on property, right-hand side of pike. For further information call selling agents, ALLEN-HINES-ROCKS CO., RE. 7139, Room 951, Washington Building, Washington, D. C.

Our cooperative plan requires the sale of 18,950 shares of $10.00 par-value common stock on behalf of Virginia Veterans Cooperative Association. The proceeds from the sale of these securities will be used to acquire all the common and second preferred stock of Columbia Heights Sec. 1, Incorporated, and the sales commission will be paid by the present owners of Columbia Heights stock. Because these securities are believed to be exempt from registration, they have not been registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission; but such exemption, if available, does not indicate that the securities have been either approved or disapproved by the commission or that the commission has considered the accuracy or completeness of the statements in this advertisement.

As a Dazzling Example of conservative decorative art combined with the best in modern equipment, this corner apartment marks a milestone in our experience. The five rooms and bath face a street or broad avenue, look down on the treetops through plate glass picture windows. Given the means, most of us will pay extravagant prices for scarce and beautiful things. In this case we believe the owner is more interested in giving full value. Night or Sunday call Mrs. Merilliat, CO. 5165. Other times this office.

GEORGE WASHINGTON slept here: honest he did, and it's no rumor that he concerned himself greatly with the building of the Colonial brick mansion with its 30-inch thick brick walls, beautiful wide board floors in perfect condition. There are five bedrooms, library, drawing room, dining, living, kitchen, and servants' quarters. Each room enjoys a fireplace and there are 150 acres. The formal gardens and the house are in need of repair, but think how wonderful it would be to live within 15 miles of Richmond at a place like this. Phone or write Mrs. Edna H. Bailey, 3-1839, Mayer & Bailey, Inc., 507 E. Main st., Richmond, Va.

VIRGINIA FARMS

Ranging from 50 acres to 5000 acres in size and from $20,000 to $500,000 in price. These farms are located in beautiful northern Virginia, from the Tidewater to the mountains. LITTLE arms and legs are strengthened in the occupational therapy section of the Crippled Children's Clinic at Gallinger Hospital. Junior League provisional members, on a field trip, make notes for their final paper, which they must write before becoming full-pledged members of the league. Martha Holt shows them what she can do at the jig-saw; Miss Gertrude Dorsey, chief occupational therapist, explains the operation of the machine to league members (left to right), Mrs. Hubert Mandeville, Mrs. Richard West and Miss Patricia Exton

Hessler Photo.

Junior Leaguers Study Community Needs

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE of Washington, numbering almost 800 members, does many good deeds for the benefit of community life. Provisional members, once they've been invited to join, are put through a course designed to show the needs in public welfare work, social service, housing, education, recreation and health. They visit hospitals, the juvenile court, settlement houses, homes for the aged, and when they qualify as regular members they can volunteer for whatever work has the most appeal. This year the provisional member group is so large the league has established a night class as well as a day class. The girls are required to attend the dozen lectures as well as make field trips.

Hungarian Princess, New World Edition, Will Join Legation

By Marie McNair

AN HUNGARIAN PRINCESS will arrive in Washington soon, the first woman member of the Hungarian Legation staff.

This is no story book princess with long golden hair, of kind and gentle mien, waiting for her Prince Charming to come and claim her as his bride.

This Princess, of one of Hungary's oldest and most aristocratic families, is a new world edition, a leader of Hungary's modern women.

Her name? Princess Odescalchi, or Mme. Odescalchi as she now prefers to be called.

The new Counselor of the Hungarian Legation renounced her title when she became active in the anti-Nazi movement in her country, joined the underground and secretly became a member of the Communist party.

Until now president of the Democratic Federation of Hungarian Women, Mme. Odescalchi once led rioting women in the suburbs of Budapest; was active in the division and distribution of large estates which were given to the peasants, and two years ago she toiled as an ordinary laborer in the Ganz shipbuilding yards in Budapest. The "Red Princess" helped to found the Democratic Federation of Hungarian Women and before becoming its head was assistant press chief in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Of Italian extraction, Hungary's feminist diplomat is a descendant of the family to which also belonged one of the Seventeenth Century Popes. The family crusaded against the ferocious Turks then occupying Hungary, remained there when the Turks were driven out. She's been married once—to Count Gyorgy Apponyi—also a member of one of Hungary's distinguished families—and was shortly afterward divorced.

THE WEATHER BUREAU with its maze of complicated machines devised through science to predict what the elements will do, sometimes must turn to old Mother Nature for the answer.

Mrs. Daniel Knowlton, who raises turtles and writes about them, is frequently called by the weatherman to find out what the turtles are doing. If the animals leave their garden pool and head for the one indoors, it's a sure sign that colder weather is on the way.

Mrs. Knowlton stopped in the middle of one book to write another, "The Innocent Cause," which has only recently been put on sale. "One Hundred Years at Longfield," which Josephine Knowlton will finish for its centennial in 1950, deals with her family's ancestral home at Bristol, R. I. Her grandmother was born there in 1812 and the stories have come down from mother to daughter over the years.

A sister of the late Charles Dana Gibson, Mrs. Knowlton had adorned the cover of "The Innocent Cause" with an heretofore unpublished sketch of the artist's famous "Gibson Girl." And not at all incidentally, Mrs. Knowlton is quite excited that Joan Fontaine's husband has sent for the book, with a view to turning it into a movie.

TOWN TOPICS: All hands in the domestic department of the White House have been asked to be on deck for the party on the evening of November 22.

CARL SILVERMAN, medical director of the Crippled Children's Clinic at Gallinger Hospital, demonstrates to a group of provisional members of the Junior League the progress being made by 2-year-old Billy Fague, who is a patient at the Crippled Children's Clinic at Gallinger. The six weeks field trips for the league girls is for the purpose of studying the overall picture of community needs and how they are being met

Democrats Score With Post-Election Quotes and Quips

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

ECHOES FROM A PAST ERA. The Washington hostess, noted for expansive parties who, a mere five days ago, was busied spreading the good word, "Only Republicans are socially acceptable!" . . . The elaborate barbecues given about three weeks ago deep in the heart of Ole Virginy by Dewey Manager Herbert Brownell, jr. All hotshot Republicans in town gathered to celebrate sure victory, signal a delicious period of preelection relaxation.

Former OPA Chief Paul Porter, whose bright sayings rate him masculine equivalent of Dorothy Parker, made a nice and also preelection summary of Dewey campaign tactics: "You can't hope to be a tenant at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue by getting to base on balls."

SADDEST MISHAP! The young Republican slated to be Assistant Secretary of the Treasury under Dewey-man Elliot Bell, got himself married last Friday. With true Republican forethought and efficiency the bridegroom bought himself a charming Georgetown house a scant month ago, timing his honeymoon homecoming to mid-January. Now he's fully equipped with bride and house but no job.

MRS. THAYER

HIGH GESTURE. Former Minister to Norway and present District of Columbia Democratic National Committeewoman Mrs. J. Borden Harriman campaigned effectively, long, hard hours for Truman. Once the victory was won she offered to hand over the National Committeewoman distinction to her alternate, Mrs. Ernest Lindley. Naturally, Betty Lindley refused. Mrs. L., who, incidentally, added a domestic touch to the Democratic Convention in Philadelphia by knitting determinedly on some unidentified article, is still at it. Her handiwork is to date unfinished—and to date unidentified.

FIRST 1952 CAMPAIGN WARWHOOP. A round-robin letter from Women for Wallace National Chairwoman Elinor S. Gimbel, rallying her sex to the Progressive Party cause and a National Committee meeting in Chicago November 13. Interesting claims by Mrs. Gimbel, who popped up at every Wallace fund-raising with a thousand smacker donation, are: "We have staved off war with Henry Wallace's open letter to Premier Stalin, unfreezing the cold war and starting the Moscow peace talks. We forced President Truman to come out with a civil rights program. . . . We have given women their rightful place in a political party, making it possible for the American woman to be a first-class citizen."

NOTES FROM ALL OVER. ART DEPARTMENT. Radio tycoon Bill Paley and his beautiful second wife, Barbara, a sister of Mrs. Jock Whitney and Mrs. Vincent Astor, go in for modern art in handsome fashion. Recently they agreed to lend a very fine nude statue to a Modern Museum of Art exhibition . . . the undraped lady was carefully packed and transported to the museum from the Paleys' Long Island residence. Respectful experts gathered to unwrap the precious object, take a private gander. As protective cloths were unwound, the lady's nether sections exposed, experts gasped, reached figuratively for restoratives. In black pencil straggling across her tummy was the familiar slogan "Kilroy was here!" . . .

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt quite unconsciously started preparing for the Democratic deluge a few weeks ago. Having a spare maroon Rolls-Royce limousine, she wisely decided to dispose of it. Instead of advertising or turning it in, Mrs. "Neely" evolved a less expensive, effortless plan. She had one of her chauffeurs, maroon livery and all, park in front of the Colony Club, New York's wealthiest and most rarified women's club. Tucked onto the windshield was a neatly lettered sign "FOR SALE." . . .

Clare Boothe Luce is going in for lecturing these days. Out in San Francisco she packed them in solid. Her subject was "Religion in the Atomic Age."

Pre-Christmas Benefit Bazaars Fill Calendar

This is the season when Washingtonians begin to ponder over their Christmas gift problems and the church guilds have their benefit bazaars.

Mrs. William L. Beale, Mrs. Cornelius Engert and Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman are among those who will assist Mrs. B. L. Hardin at the tea table of St. Thomas' Episcopal Parish Guild Bazaar on November 13. The bazaar, which is an annual event, will be held at the parish house, 1772 Church st. from 2 to 6 in the afternoon.

Others who will assist at pouring tea are Mrs. Loyal B. Aldrich, Mrs. G. Bowie Chipman, Mrs. T. Nelson Conrad, Miss Margaret Frazer, Miss Lucy Hammett, Mrs. John Emory Henderson, Miss Jean Kincaid, Mrs. Francis Moore, Mrs. Minot C. Mulligan, Mrs. Albert Niblack, Mrs. T. N. Sandifer, Mrs. Luther Sheldon and Miss Barbara Van Vliet.

Mrs. Albert T. Cousins reports that lovely jewel boxes from Italy, France and the Philippines have been promised for her antique table. African violet enthusiasts can buy specimens from Miss Eva P. Cox at the flower table, and Christmas shoppers can solve their problems at Mrs. Tolbert Lanston's household and gift table.

Homemade candies will be sold by Miss Lois White, and a selection of Christmas cards will be sold by Miss Florence Hyde.

Women's Auxiliary Guild of Grace Episcopal Church will have its pre-Christmas bazaar and food sale on Saturday, November 13, 10 a.m.-10 p.m., at the parish hall, North Fillmore st. and Lorcom Lane, Arlington, Va.

Among the items offered for sale will be aprons, dolls, leather work, stuffed toys, earrings and white elephants. There'll also be jeep and hayrides, grab bags, fish ponds and a fortune teller for the youngsters.

Mrs. Ernest S. Hendry is chairman of the bazaar and Mrs. Ellsworth Miner, cochairman. Proceeds will be added to the church's building fund.

The annual bazaar for the benefit of the building fund of St. Paul's Episcopal Church on K st. near 24th st., will be held Saturday, November 20.

The sale of attractive and practical articles is set for the choir and guild room of the new church which has been occupied since June.

Patrons of the bazaar not only will have the opportunity to obtain excellent Christmas gifts but also will see the new church.

Mrs. Earle R. Closson is chairman of the bazaar this year and has assisting her members of all the organizations of the church. An additional attraction at the bazaar will be a buffet supper from 5 to 7 o'clock, including Boston baked beans and apple pie.

The bazaar last year was held in the parish hall of St. Thomas' Church, and Mrs. Truman was one of the early patrons. She has been invited to attend again this year and see the new church.

The Annual Bazaar, sponsored by the Rector's Aid Society of All Souls Memorial Church, will be held in the parish hall on Wednesday, November 17, starting at 2 p. m.

Mrs. Wayne Wirgman, Mrs. Frank Braisted, Mrs. John Shafroth, Mrs. Dion Birney, Mrs. William Quinter, Mrs. George Worthington, Mrs. Harry Grove and their assistants will be in charge of the booths.

There will be a variety of fancy articles for sale, such as cakes, candy, aprons, books and dolls. There will also be a country store and a white elephant table.

Mrs. H. Lawrence Shreve and Mrs. George D. Riley will be in charge of the buffet supper to be served from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Hospitalized One Hundred Miles From Wife, Tuberculous Patient Is So Homesick That He Can't Rest; Fears He Is Losing Ground

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a tuberculosis patient hospitalized in a sanitarium that is located about 100 miles from my wife and children; and in order to get well I must have plenty of rest while in the hospital, and take it easy for a year or two after I get back on my feet.

My problem is that I am so much in love with my wife and so devoted to my children that I can't rest because I miss them so much, and this is doing me a lot of harm. It wasn't so bad when I first entered the sanitarium, but I am getting worse every day. Can you explain this reaction?

Judy cannot afford to make the trip here every week, so she comes once or twice a month; and I just can't go that long without seeing her. On the other hand, I cannot ask her to move nearby, as she has just started office work back home—her first venture at wage-earning.

Feels He'd Thrive If Wife Were Near

AFTER she learns the routine of office work, she will have training and experience to qualify her for a good job anywhere, and we are going to need that when I am released from the sanitarium, because as I've said, I won't be able to work for another year or two.

There is another sanitarium nearer home that I didn't know about when I came here. Would I be doing right to press for a transfer back there? Maybe I wouldn't get the transfer; but should I try? If I were there, Judy could visit me three or four times a week; and if I were near her, I could rest and relax as I should.

At present Judy is living with friends of hers and we are boarding the children out in a boarding home; and although I trust Judy and know she has good morals and good judgment, I just can't stop thinking about her. I don't want to lose grip on myself; so please advise me what to do. E. D.

Man Should Report Anxiety to Doctor

DEAR E. D.: It is to be hoped that the sanitarium is adequately staffed to treat the patients' neurotic anxieties along with their tuberculous infections, because in many—or perhaps the majority—of cases, the two afflictions go hand-in-hand. And from what I glean of advanced diagnostic comment on the subject, there is evidence to indicate that chronic neurotic "fear of the worst" tends to predispose the constitution to tuberculosis illness.

So here are my advices: 1. Have the good sense to discuss your doldrums about separation from wife and children with a staff doctor, nurse, or any other medical attache on the premises who is responsive and intelligent, for the purpose (a) of explaining why you can't rest, and (b) learning whether there is a psychiatrist or psychiatric social worker available to explore the problem with you,

Congressional Capers:

House's Distaff Side Gains Two New Members Plus One Repeater

By Genevieve Reynolds

WHEN THE Eighty-first Congress swings into session, there'll be two new petticoat Representatives—former Police Judge Reva Beck Bosone of Utah and Mrs. Cecil M. Harden of Indiana. In addition, Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse of Connecticut will return for a repeat performance after a four-year absence. Only Republican in the trio is the Hoosier winner.

The feminine politicos from the Beehive State and Indiana have at least one point in common with erudite Mrs. Woodhouse—all are former school marms. Another similarity amongst the three was campaign technique—none took a vote for granted but plugged scrappily with their male opponents for the last ballot.

Fifty-three-year-old Mrs. Harden of Covington is no political tyro but a seasoned vet in the fickle game. On Capitol Hill, she will succeed Representative Nobel Johnson. The Representative, deemed one of the most popular men in the State and one of the most difficult to defeat, decided not to run for reelection and to accept a judgeship instead. So Mrs. H. decided to try her luck and emerged with a narrow victory over her Democratic opponent, Jack J. O'Grady, despite the Democratic trend.

A talented and effective speaker, Mrs. Harden conducted a vigorous, out-in-the-open-issue campaign. She didn't dodge knotty, controversial subjects but met them head on.

MRS. HARDEN

From 1944 to 1948, she served as GOP National Committeewoman from Indiana, and in 1948 was a member of the powerful arrangements committee as well as serving as a delegate-at-large to the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia last summer. But it was back in 1932 that she started on the political road by serving as precinct vice committee woman. Since 1938 she has been a continuous GOP vice chairman for Fountain County, plus a District Vice Chairman and member of the State Central Committee.

After graduating from the public schools in her home town, Covington, she attended Indiana University. Then she taught school until her marriage to Frost P. Harden in 1914. They have one son, Dr. Murray E. Harden of Indianapolis, and two grandchildren.

Affable, Mrs. Harden, who wears her slightly graying hair pompadour style, is one petticoat politico admired and listened to by her male cohorts. They consider her a "regular fellow and one of the gang." One of her penchants is a flair for wearing flowers unobtrusively so that the posies seem a part of her costume rather than an added decoration. Tailored clothes are her first preference.

OUT IN UTAH the jokesters vow that the speeders—especially inebriated ones—ganged up to get Judge Bosone off the bench in Salt Lake City to avoid her innumerable must-pay traffic tickets. So they decided to send her to Capitol Hill for a stint in the House of Representatives. And never, never have men worked so doggedly for a woman candidate as did the town's tipplers for the pretty red-haired judge, or so the tales go from the Beehive State.

One of the judge's most intensive activities is working for Alcoholics Anonymous, in which she firmly believes. A stickler for law enforcement, she doesn't spare the drinkers when they are caught violating the speed laws or any other law, for that matter.

For the record, the former University of Utah English instructor is known as a champion of progressive, sound legislation in her State. While serving from 1933 to 1935 in the State Legislature, she battled through bills on the Child Labor Amendment Law, authored the Wage and Hour Law for Women and Children, and an Unemployment Insurance Law. Perhaps she gained her understanding of workmen's needs when she and her husband practiced law in the small, but rich mining town of Helper. The feminine barrister helped the miners collect compensation for injuries received and gained their devotion which showed up in her sweeping election returns.

Incidentally, O. N. Malmquist, political editor of the Salt Lake Tribune, predicted to within a fraction of 1 per cent, the exact number of ballots Mrs. Bosone would poll in the primary as well as the general election.

Colorful as well as popular, the police court judge is one of the most publicized figures in that part of the West. Around 45 birthdays, of medium build, 5 feet, 6 inches and slender, she goes in strictly for tailored clothes.

Like Mrs. Harden and Mrs. Woodhouse, Mrs. Bosone is an untiring believer and participant in women's organizations. And all these organizations piled up heavy votes from their feminine followers.

Betty J. Harrell Will Entertain

Miss Betty Jeanne Harrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph T. Harrell, will give a luncheon for 1947 and 1948 debutantes on December 22, the anniversary of her debut last year. The luncheon will be held in the Palladian Room of the Shoreham Hotel.

Miss Harrell and her mother are now on a South American cruise and will return to Washington on December 12 in time for the Christmas season. While in Rio, Miss Harrell will look up her friends, Miss Margo Leao and Miss Susie Leao, with whom she graduated last June from Mount Vernon Junior College.

. . . married yesterday

Gordon Cole, Miss Hillary Are Married

Rosecroft, the home of Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, USMC, retired, in Maryland, was the scene of the marriage yesterday of Miss Lucy Hillary to Gordon E. Cole, jr. The general, former commandant of the Marine Corps, gave the bride in marriage and a reception followed.

The bride, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. C. A. Hillary of Cape Town, South Africa, was gowned in ivory satin with an antique veil of handmade lace. Miss Jane Davis, daughter of the late Senator James Davis of Pennsylvania, was maid of honor and the bridesmaids included Miss Madeline Cole and Miss Barbara Cole.

Mr. Cole, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Cole of Pasadena, Calif., formerly of New York, had as his best man, Jim Ammon. The ushers were Harry Treichell and Tale Seelye.

On return from their honeymoon in Williamsburg, Va., the newlyweds will reside in New York.

Mrs. Cole, a well known South African singer, has appeared in several Broadway productions. She studied at the American Academy of Dramatic Art. Her husband attended Williams College and Columbia University and was graduated from Amherst College. He served during the war as a Navy lieutenant on the destroyer Stembel.

Feldmans to Receive Supply Corps Officers

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Herman Feldman will be at home to officers of the supply division of the Quartermaster Corps, and their wives, this afternoon from 3 to 5:30 in their apartment at the Westchester. Col. and Mrs. Aaron Beeman will assist.

General and Mrs. Feldman will be at home again to others in the same division on December 5.

The Service Set

Pretty Arnold Sisters to Be Brides

By Norma Lanum

THAT popular sister team—Emily and Elizabeth Arnold—shared the service society spotlight again last night at their surprise engagement party given by their parents, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William H. Arnold at Fort McNair.

The strikingly pretty service juniors, who made their debut together at a garden party in the spring of '37 and worked together in the Junior League, have decided to have separate weddings so each can be the honor attendant for her sister.

Elizabeth will be married to Lieut. James Howard Dallman, USA, now stationed with the Third Infantry at McNair, in April, and her sister will become the bride in February of Parkman Joseph Halsey Clancy, who is studying for his doctorate in international relations at Georgetown University.

Lieutenant Dallman, a West Point graduate, class of '45, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Dallman of Minneapolis, Minn. A former Merchant Marine lieutenant, Mr. Clancy is the son of Mrs. Helen Johnson Clancy of Asheville, N. C., and Washington, and the late Ernest Irving Clancy of Atlanta, Ga., and Asheville. He attended the University of Mexico and the University of Sao Paulo in Brazil and was graduated from the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service.

The brides-elect were graduated from Villa Duchesne and attended Maryville College and the Georgetown Visitation Junior College. Emily is now studying at the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore.

As soon as all the guests had arrived the Arnolds' 6-year-old son Joseph Coleman raced into the living room holding pairs of gas-filled balloons inscribed with the names of the engaged couples. And later in the evening a large candle-bedecked cake was brought in in celebration of Mr. Clancy's birthday.

THE Arnold girls are descended from John Lober Welsh, Ambassador to the Court of St. James's during Grant's Administration, and Dr. Williams Edmunds Horner, noted Warrenton, Va., and Philadelphia surgeon. Their great uncle, Gen. William Horner Cocke of St. Louis, Mo., and Claremont Manor, Va., was a former superintendent of the Virginia Military Institute. They are the granddaughters of Luther Coleman Arnold of Mobile, Ala., and of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mullen of St. Louis.

The Mullens were here for the party and among the other guests were Mrs. John Hull, Miss Virginia Timberman, Misses Gladys and Nancy Collins, Miss Sheila Baish, Miss Sarah Kornegay, Miss Joan Nichol, Miss Lillian Cougle, Miss Edwina Pou Wadden, Miss Ann Gillespie, Miss Frances Dear, Miss Barbara Matlack, Miss Helen Guest, Miss Jane Lingo, Miss Joan Boyle and Mrs. Charles Williamson.

And then there were Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Frank Mears, Capt. and Mrs. Donald Becker, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. John C. Theys, Lieut. and Mrs. Ward Dworshak, Dr. and Mrs. Hugh L. C. Stevens 3d, Capt. James Shanahan, Eugene McElwee, Richard Davis, Taylor Peck, Victor Storey, Henry Watts, Lieut. Fred J. Archibald, Lieut. Edward Saxby, Lieut. Erwin Brigham, Lieut. Henry Hughes, Lieut. Kyam Murphy, Barry Freer, Peter Gaillard, John Palmeter, Thomas Wadden and Lieut. James F. Holcomb.

IN Marine outposts all over the globe Wednesday leathernecks will be celebrating their 173d anniversary. And at the Shoreham Hotel's terrace banquet room festivities will probably reach their peak. That's where Washington area Marine officers and their wives will gather for their annual birthday dance.

Highlight of the evening will be the slicing of the tiered birthday cake by Commandant Clifton B. Cates. The program will also include a pageant tracing the corps' history all the way from its incorporation in 1775 by the Continental Congress in Philadelphia.

JUST Jottings: The retired Air Force Chief of Staff and Mrs. Carl Spaatz are preparing to move into their new 7-room Georgetown house in 10 days "after what seems like years of waiting," reports Mrs. S. . . . Quartermaster General of the Marine Corps and Mrs. W. P. T. Hill left the other day for a vacation in the West. The general will go as far as Tulsa, Okla., and then return to his duties here in Washington, but Mrs. Hill will go on to spend several weeks with Dr. and Mrs. Robert Travis Canon in Lubbock, Tex. . . . Brig. Gen and Mrs. James Taylor—he retired August 1—left Thursday for several weeks of cruising in Florida waters. They were given a send-off party Wednesday evening by Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Harry Thompson and Col. and Mrs. Russell Skinner.

Jean Alice Williams Becomes Bride of Robert Louis Bassett

Miss Jean Alice Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Williams of Washington, became the bride of Robert Louis Bassett, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Bassett of Seymour, Conn., at Grace Lutheran Church yesterday, the Rev. G. E. Lenski officiating.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore an egg-shell-colored gown with a full length veil held by a headpiece of imported Chantilly lace. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and a white orchid.

Mrs. Sherman Fortner was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor R. Bassett, Miss Betty Friedli, and Mrs. Gordon Rudd. Jack Hinkley served as best man and the ushers were Harold C. Peterson, jr., Richard S. Ohrback and Richard F. Julius.

Following the reception the couple left for a wedding trip to Florida, and to Minneapolis and Seattle. On their return they will reside in Washington.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Maryland. Her husband served in the Army Air Forces during the war.

Loudoun Women's Club Hears Talk on 'Interior Decoration'

Leesburg, Va., No. 6.—Miss Harriet Garreles, assistant superintendent of art in the Washington public schools was the guest speaker at the Woman's Club of Loudoun Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Coleman C. Gore, chairman of the American Home Department, was hostess to the group at her home, Chestnut Hill, near Leesburg.

Miss Garreles, in addition to her work in the public schools, conducts three classes in home decoration at the graduate school of the Department of Agriculture. Her subject was "Interior Decorating." Following the meeting, Mrs. Gore served refreshments to the group. The president, Mrs. Arthur S. Jenkins, presided at the business session.

Mrs. E. W. Clark, who will sail on November 9 for Oslo, Norway, was the guest of honor at a tea given on Wednesday afternoon by the Rev. and Mrs. J. Armstead Welbourn at their home in Leesburg. More than 150 people were guests. The Welbourns have been in California for more than a year. Mrs. Clark is going to Norway for the marriage of her son, Alfred Pearce Dennis, and Miss Ida Sissener on December 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Jenkins spent the weekend in Blacksburg visiting their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Jenkins, jr. Mrs. Frank Mason is spending 10 days in New York.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Welbourn are spending the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. E. Hambleton Welbourn att Catonsville, Md. While there, Mrs. Welbourn spoke before the Catonsville Garden Club on "Church Flower Arrangements."

Mrs. Urcell Bradfield was hostess on Tuesday evening to the Faculty Bridge Club.

Dr. and Mrs. G. Winthrop Sands of New York spent the weekend with the latter's mother, Mrs. John A. Gibson. Mrs. Harry Gibson has returned from Racine, Wis., where she visited her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Howell. Mr. and Mrs. Berkley Cox of Hartford, Conn., visited relatives here this week. Mrs. Alfred Gawthrop of Wilmington, Del., is the guest of Miss Lilias Janney. Mrs. Louise King arrived this week to spend several months with Miss Janney. Miss Clarence Snowden of Alexandria was the weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. David N. Rust.

Dr. and Mrs. S. Carroll Brooks entertained at a family dinner party on Sunday at their home in Winchester honoring the former's mother, Mrs. S. W. Brooks, of Purcellville, on her birthday. Others present included Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Cannon, of Purcellville; Mrs. G. B. Popkins, of Leesburg, and Capt. James W. Brooks, USA, and Mrs. Brooks, of Silver Spring, Md.

French Bazaar To Aid With Yule Gifts

With only 33 shopping days until Christmas the annual Bazaar of American Aid to France at the French Embassy on Wednesday, November 17, will come as a great boon to shoppers. Appealing gifts to fit all ages and all pocketbooks will be attractively displayed . . . from 11 to 7 p. m. and Marlene Dietrich, the film actress, will be on hand all day to assist at the tables.

Of special interest to those who have a junior or junior miss to remember will be the toy table run by Mme. Raymond Cann, Mme. Gaston Ponsard, Mme. George St. Pol and Mme. Christian de Marjorie. Featured will be a creche from Marseilles famous for its "Saintons" or tiny carved peasant figures which are placed under Christmas trees in France. Dolls in authentic French peasant csotumes, doll beds from Brittany, gayly colored knitted balls, and plush and wooden animals will tempt the buyer.

The child's sartorial needs will be taken over by a table manned by Mrs. DeWitt Crampton, Miss Nina Crampton, Mrs. Eugene Demont, and Mrs. Edmond R. Purves. Dresses and sweaters for the older child will vie with lacey pillows, satin crib covers, baby shoes and layettes (similar to those which are sent to France by American Aid to France). Mrs. Garrett H. Payne and her assistants will feature knitted baby sets, children's sweaters and hand smocked dresses from France.

Ambassador Claude Corea Here To Head Ceylon's Embassy

By Elizabeth Maguire

CLAUDE COREA of Ceylon is the new Ambassador of the newest embassy in town. He is living at the Wardman Park Hotel, waiting for the arrival of Mrs. Corea in January before moving into the embassy recently purchased at 2503 30th st. nw.

Ambassador Corea has served as a lawyer, a member of Parliament, minister of labor, industry and commerce, and High Commissioner in London. His three boys, age 11, 12, and 14, are attending St. Paul's School in London.

Ceylon, which has never been a part of India, lost its independence in 1815 to the British. For 2500 years Ceylon was an independent country. The first outsiders were the Portuguese, who, in 1600 gained a toehold on a coastal stretch of land. In 1750 the Dutch succeeded the Portuguese, and in 1800 the British came in. About 15 years later the Ceylonese deposed their king, inviting the British to come into the rest of the territory. And Ceylon became a British colony. It was in February 4, 1948, that Ceylon became completely independent again, but the country is still a part of the British Commonwealth, like Australia and Canada.

The majority of Ceylonese are Buddhists; many are Christians. There are also Burghers, descendants of the Dutch, Tamils and Mohammedans.

ARRIVALS in Washington include a new First Secretary at the Greek Embassy, John Phrantzes (pronounced Francis). He is a bachelor addition to the embassy staff which is entirely stag except for the Ambassador, Vassili G. Dendramis, and the Counselor, Paul Economou-Gouras. Another bachelor who has just arrived in town is the new Italian Counselor, Mario Luciollo. He is living at the Shoreham, looking earnestly for a house. Other arrivals are Signora Ortona, wife of the First Secretary, and Signora de Martino, wife of the Military Attache.

The new Ambassador of Uruguay, Dr. Alberto Dominguez Campora, and Senora de Dominguez Compora, are expected in Washington on the seventeenth. They will be accompanied by Dr. Jorge Barreiro, new Secretary of the Embassy.

An Ambassador-at-large, Charles te Water of the Union of South Africa, and Mrs. te Water will arrive in New York on the 12th on the Mauretania. They will make an official visit to Washington. Ambassador te Water was High Commissioner in London for many years.

THE Second Secretary of the Norwegian Embassy and Mrs. Mangor entertained Friday evening at a dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Wynward Pasley of New York City, who are spending the weekend with the Mangors. Mrs. Pasley is a niece of Dr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Bayne, who were at the dinner. Other dinner guests were Mr. and Mrs. Drew Pearson and Gen. and Mrs. Conger Pratt. Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim entertained at a dinner last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Pasley.

There will be a party in honor of the new Swedish Ambassador, Erik Boheman, on Tuesday, from 6 to 8, at the home of the Swedish First Secretary and Mme Rydbeck.

NOTE on saris: The pastel shades of saris worn by the ladies at the Indian Embassy are the modern dress of India. Old fashioned saris come in rich mixtures, such as purple, gold and red. The Ambassador's wife, Lady Rama Rau, can remember playing tennis in saris as a girl, and she says many Indian women still play tennis in saris. Ballet is out, however. Srimati Rukmini Devi, famous Indian dancer who was here a week ago, was inspired by her friend Pavlova to study dancing, but the sari is the reason she didn't study ballet.

Men's Club Sponsors Christmas Bazaar

The Men's Club of Truro Episcopal Church, Fairfax Court House, Va., is sponsoring a Christmas Bazaar to be held in the parish hall of the church on November 13, from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Bennett W. King, chairman of the committee members for the bazaar, will be assisted by Mr. and Mrs. J. Garrett Patteson, C. G. Gilbertson, M. T. Paris, John H. Rust, Henry Butler, John C. Wood, Paul Peter, F. Tyler Swetnam, Mrs. Harold F. Weiler, J. J. Mathy and Paul Kincheloe.

Among the many attractions at the bazaar will be a white elephant table, a snack bar, a fortune teller, grab bags, jeep rides, pony rides, fancywork booths and infants' and children's clothing.

TYPICAL young English Beauty dress of pink tulle. By Dennis Glenny

Pink Cheeks, Tweeds . . . Bombed Brick, Flowers

By Jean Spadea

LONDON.

FLOWERS really are brighter in English dooryards than any place else in the world. I arrived at the Northolt Airport, which was the Polish flyers' base during the war. It was a grey day and nothing can prepare you for the shock of bombed houses all the way to London. But the flowers were blazingly beautiful and they were everywhere.

London is a highly polished city, though I have not yet gone two blocks in any direction without seeing the effects of bombing. The oldest taxis have been rubbed to a patine, and 25 year old cars have great style. Men, women and children have astonishingly pink cheeks.

English women grouse about No Nylons and envy us our delicate slim shoes. Yet they look charming. They wear brighter, stronger colors than we do and can get away with them because of their pink cheeks and prevailing grey skies. The new light colors which are such a sensation with us for winter afternoons are taken for granted here.

Just as in Paris, they tie up the most difficult shades. A cornflower-blue dress will have its hat matching exactly. This uniformity of color makes the women look taller. And on the subject of hats. many copy the queen's.

Having heard so much about clothes rationing, I never can figure out how so many millions of people have so completely adopted the new look. Good clothes in London are the same as good clothes in Paris, are the same as good clothes in New York. The only difference is in the waistline, which is more tightly pinched in Paris. In London it's more moderately shaped, like ours.

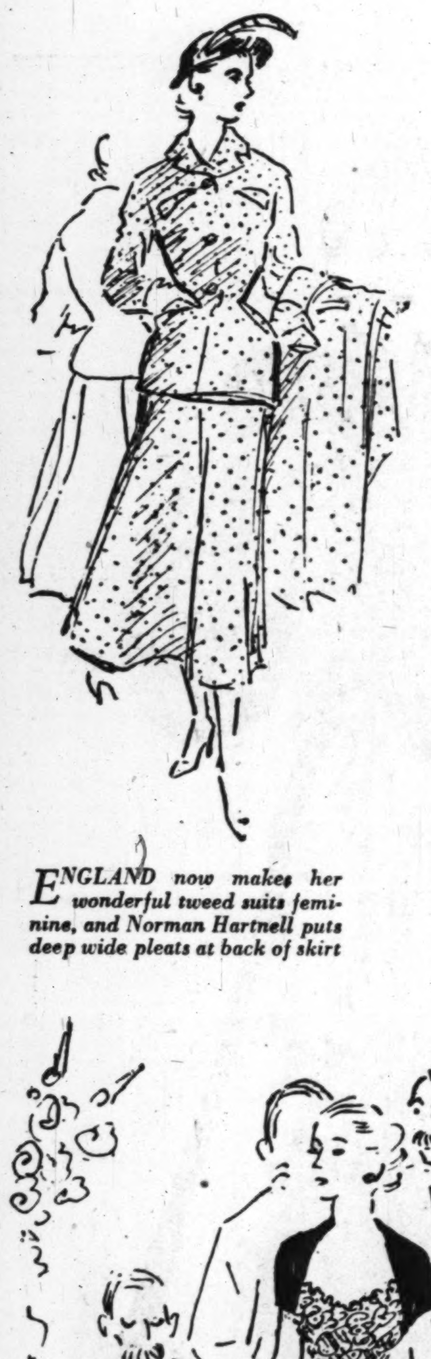
THE ENGLISH have the most wonderful woolens to work with and money's no object when you're sinking your coupons into a suit which you will wear at least two years. And it isn't something you wear and then put aside. It may be the only thing, except party clothes, that you can appear in. The English have always been famous for their suits, but with the concentration on such few items they've lifted suits to a high art form.

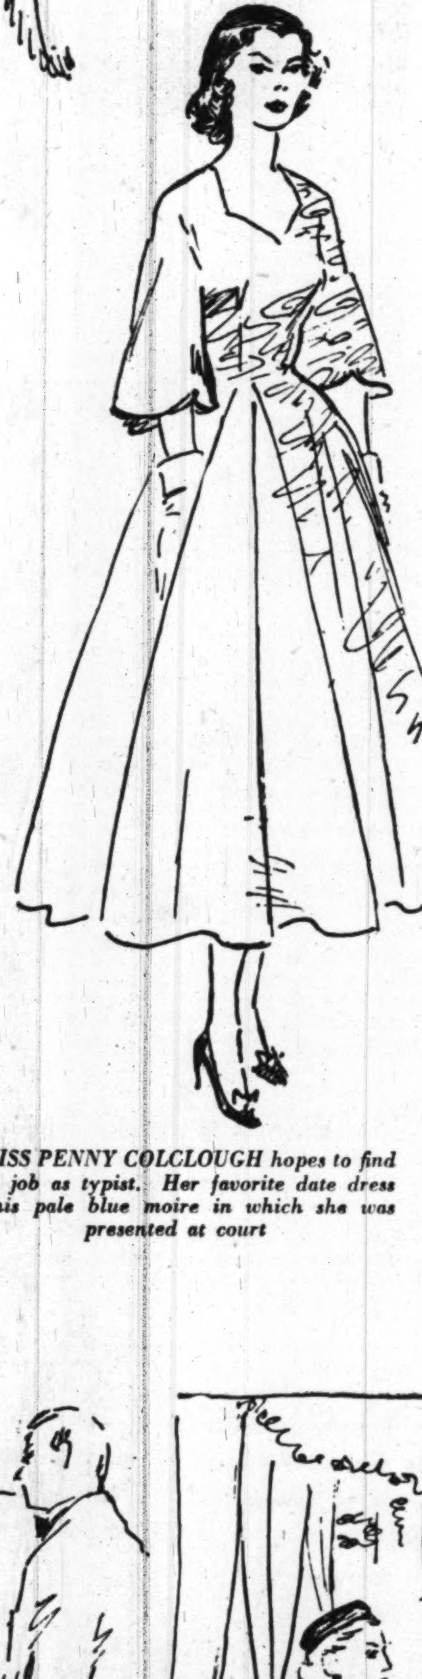
Skirt lengths are identical with Paris, and in London they joke about the youngsters who wore hems flapping around their ankles last summer. There are no shoulder pads shown at the great dressmaking houses but they put them in if the customer insists, just as in America.

Clothes at the big dressmakers are as sophisticated as those you'll find anywhere. Norman Hartnell's beautiful salon is in the palest imaginable green and the salesgirls wear woolen frocks in identical green, but in different styles to suit their individual figures. The directrice wears a lavender wool dress to match her lavender hair—and the mannequins all wear green eye shadow.

It's attention to details like this that gives the English their great style.



ENGLAND now makes her wonderful tweed suits feminine, and Norman Hartnell puts deep wide pleats at back of skirt



MISS PENNY COLCLOUGH hopes to find job as typist. Her favorite date dress is this pale blue moire in which she was presented at court

Estelle Hess Becomes Bride Of Dr. Sullivan

Miss Estelle Marie Hess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hess of Capitol Heights, Md., became the bride of Dr. James George Sullivan at St. Martin's Church yesterday. She was given in marriage by her father and the Rev. Louis F. Miltenberger officiated.

For her wedding, Mrs. Sullivan wore white satin with a veil of French illusion held by a tiara of seed pearls and orange blossoms. Miss Jeanne Hess was her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Misses Dorothy Kuras, Juliet Peets, Ruth Woody and Margaret Onks.

Dr. Sullivan, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Sullivan of South Amboy, N. J., was attended by Bernard Triggs with George Kress, Dr. Anthony Passaretti, George Hess and Dr. Edward O'Malley as ushers.

After a trip to the Pocono Mountains, the couple will reside in Brooklyn, N. Y.

The bride was graduated from Capitol City School of Nursing and the bridegroom, who had a premedical course at Seaton Hall and at Rutgers College, received his medical degree at Georgetown University.

Paris in the Fall—

Washington Secretaries Find Life Pleasant on ECA Mission

THREE young women from Washington, members of the secretarial staff of ECA, in Paris, manage to get some sightseeing done in free time from their desks in offices at the American Embassy. Posing at the Place de la Concorde are, left to right, Miss Letitia K. Baldridge, Miss Margaret Caton and Miss Patricia H. Tilton

By Michael Harris

PARIS, FRANCE.—They work between 48 and 60 hours a week, but three Washington women who came here as secretaries in the Economic Cooperation Administration's special mission to France agree that they don't mind the extra hours—"for a while, anyway"—if that's the price for living in Paris.

One of them, Letitia K. Baldridge, 22, has been told that she was the first applicant for a job in the European Recovery Program. She applied one year ago, immediately after returning from a year's study in Europe and several months before the Marshall Plan was enacted. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Malcolm Baldridge, 1222 16th st. nw.

"They laughed at me at the State Department and told me to go away when I asked for the job," Miss Baldridge said. "But I persuaded them to accept my application anyhow, and then I went to secretarial school to learn shorthand."

The others in the group are Margaret Caton, formerly of 5320 1st st. nw., and Patricia H. Tilton, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher S. Tilton, 1843 Mintwood pl. nw.

Miss Caton is working in Paris for the third time. She was a clerk in the United States Embassy from 1929 to 1934 and acted as a translator in 1944 and 1945 while she was stationed here in the Wac. She is the sister of J. Randall Caton of Belle Haven and Harry B. Caton of Alexandria.

Life Is Easier

"Life still isn't what it was in prewar days, but I was pleasantly surprised to see that things had improved a lot since the war," Miss Caton said. "My old friends here seem to be doing pretty well, I'm happy to say."

Even so, Miss Caton has decided that she will have to live in a hotel with central heating until spring rather than risk a cold winter in a French home. She lived with a family during her first stay in Paris and found it much pleasanter than hotel life.

Miss Tilton, a Red Cross worker in New Guinea, Leyte, Manila, Tokyo, and China from 1944 to 1947, decided after a few months with the Office of Price Administration in Washington and the British Broadcasting Corp. at Lake Success, that she would like to see Europe. She is the only one of the three who cannot speak French fluently, but she is taking lessons.

"My biggest impression is that there is practically no similarity between overseas during the war and after the war," Miss Tilton said. "Paris is even lovelier and more interesting than I had expected. It does not remind me of Washington."

Work Day Is Long

The three women have a little trouble seeing the city. They are supposed to be done with work at 8 p. m. each weekday and at noon Saturday, but most of the offices in the special mission to France in the American Embassy stay open until late at night. They seldom plan dates for before 9 p. m. and then their plans are tentative. They are not paid for overtime.

"It's a good thing most of us are here because we believe in the importance of the European Recovery Program," Miss Baldridge commented. "But we'll get to see more of Paris later, and we know it's important to work now."

Because of the high value of American dollars, the women live quite well on their wages as secretaries. Misses Caton and Tilton live in good hotels, and Miss Baldridge occupies a few rooms in the apartment of a count and countess. All live in one of the most expensive neighborhoods in the city.

Prices Not Dear

Prices are low in American terms. Although food prices are very high for the French, it is possible for the women to eat good dinners for little more than $1, including wine. Miss Tilton found that she was able to have a pair of nylon stockings with two bad runs rewoven in two days for the equivalent of 26 cents. A ride in the subway costs about two cents, and the movies cost less than 40 cents. Scarce items, such as American cigarettes, are available through the embassy.

"I hope to stay here for several years," Miss Baldridge said. "Washington may be the most beautiful city in the United States, but Paris is the most beautiful one in the world. I want to settle down in America, of course, but this is the greatest place of all when you're young."

Nancy Creech Is Bride of Frank M. Bell

Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church was the scene of the wedding last evening of Miss Nancy Poole Creech, daughter of Capt. Fulton Hunter Creech, Ret., USN, and Mrs. Creech, and Frank Meade Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank John Bell.

The bride's father gave her in marriage and Dr. J. Hillman Hollister officiated. For her wedding Mrs. Bell wore ivory brocaded satin with a veil of illusion caught with orange blossoms and she carried white roses and orchids.

Mrs. Roy Preston Sandidge, jr., was matron of honor and Miss Mary Anne Bell, maid of honor, with Mrs. Paul Leider Havenstein, sister of the bride, and Mrs. David Pratt Bell, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids. David Pratt Bell was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Midshipman Fulton Hunter Creech, jr., brother of the bride; Lieut. Paul Leider Havenstein, jr., USN; Roy Preston Sandidge, jr., and Benjamin Jackson Fisher.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Bradmoor dr. The couple will reside in Chevy Chase, Md.

The bride received her degree from Meredith College. Mr. Bell attended Virginia Military Institute and, after three years in the armed service, attended George Washington University.

Miss Galloway, R. De Burgos Wed

Letitia Towery Galloway and Ralph De Burgos were married yesterday afternoon by the Rev. Alton B. Altfather at the Georgetown home of the bride. She is the daughter of Maj. Forrest Lee Towery of Houston, Tex., and Mr. De Burgos is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth De Burgos of New York, N. Y.

Dr. Olaf Rove gave the bride in marriage. She was gowned in iridescent shantung. Mrs. W. Osborn Webb was matron of honor and Mr. Webb was best man. A reception followed the ceremony. The couple will reside at 1661 Wisconsin ave. nw.

The bride attended Paris College in Paris, Tex., and the Museum School of Art in Houston. Mr. De Burgos attended Art Students League and National Academy of Design in New York. He was an official combat artist with the United States Coast Guard in the Pacific Theater during the war.

Relax to Keep Well

Good Health Gets Top Billing From Film Star, Jane Wyman

By Ida Jean Kain

WHAT happens when a woman walks into a room depends on how she walks in. If she's hunched or slumped—nothing much happens. But if she stands straight and tall, self-confident and poised, she immediately commands attention—and things begin to happen.

That's Jane Wyman's analysis of what posture can do for a gal, and Jane learned the hard way—she has been tall since the age of 8.

"I always slumped when I was a child," she explained ruefully. "I tried to hunch down to the other children's level. And it wasn't until much later when I started training for the movies that I became conscious of the tremendous importance of posture and poise. Now when my 8-year-old daughter complains she is the tallest girl in her class, I assure her it's something to be proud of."

Miss Wyman's one posture rule: "Stand tall! A girl 5 feet 5 inches should aim to be 5 feet 5¾ inches." And that's the best posture tip to date.

Although this actress has definitely graduated from cheesecake to top dramatic roles, her legs were recently named the prettiest in Hollywood by a hosiery artist who designs for the movie stars. Jane's figure is one of the best in filmland, too—bust 36 inches, waist 25 inches, hips 36 inches.

Ballet for Figure

How does she keep her figure perfect? Ballet. Her early training was in ballet and she still takes an hour every day before lunch to keep slim, firm and trim.

"Ballet is wonderful," she declared enthusiastically. "It brings poise and confidence . . . but with humility, for the emphasis is on the beauty of the movement, not the person. As Buddy Eason, my ballet instructor, says, confidence and humility must go hand in hand—otherwise a person can become obnoxious."

It's a delight to interview Jane Wyman. She's friendly and natural and relaxed, and her ideas are unusually sound.

"Of all the pleasures anyone can have," she said earnestly, "there is nothing to be enjoyed more than good health. To keep healthy, there are certain things you like to do and certain things you have to do."

Golf is her favorite sport, she doesn't diet, and she believes in eating—but she never touches desserts.

Jane thinks everyone should have a hobby for relaxation—any hobby as long as it takes you out of yourself for a part of each day. She's carried away with interior decorating.

"But my greatest hobby is people," she declared. "I'm keenly interested in everything that makes up individual personalities. When I meet people to whom I am attracted, I always write a synopsis of their good qualities . . . sometimes I study these qualities in working out film characterizations. When you learn the signs, you can detect what a person is really like . . . and you can always recognize sincerity."

To Jane Wyman, sincerity is the first requirement for success in any career. "That quality carries you over a lot of hurdles that you have to take. You must jump your hurdles clean—else you're never really over them."

Jane Wyman believes in standing tall—for health and beauty

Fashion News From Paris

Paris, Nov. 5 (AP).—Schiaparelli and Marcel Rochas are showing midseason collections which stress tight waists, hip interest and skirt length at around 12 inches from the ground.

Both French fashion houses exploit a silhouette which is gradually gaining in popularity. It comprises a tight-fitting sheath, reaching to just above the knees, with a deep flounce attached to the hemline.

Hip interest is evoked with kangaroo pouch pockets, double peplums and double pocket flaps. Schiap's shows a clerical gray worsted suit with a basque which bulges in front to reveal an underbasque of dove gray velvet. Rochas, on a rose satin evening dress, uses curved godets finishing in pocket flaps at midhips level.

The tubular silhouette is used by Schiaparelli for a crimson satin evening dress. It comes strapless, fitted skin-tight, and has three deep-tiered flounces wired at the hems to make them flute out.

Rochas uses this silhouette, with one flounce only, on a black velvet midcalf length cocktail dress. A luscious silver fox is laid around the bottom of the sheath and looks as though it were attached to the hem of an accompanying three-quarter-length fitted coat.

We Are Mink Specialists Our entire background has been devoted to the creation of fine furs, especially Mink. We are often referred to as the "Mink Store of Washington" . . . a record which we have earned by creating and selling more and better mink garments.

We Are Mink Manufacturers We maintain a large and fully equipped workroom on our premises, staffed with talented craftsmen who work only on the finest custom orders. This policy of manufacturer-to-consumer direct selling is a great source of saving for you.

We Buy Mink Direct from Primary Sources We attend the important fur auction sales no matter how distant. Last May, we were present at the London Mink Sale of Canadian pelts and purchased a considerable quantity at very advantageous prices. These savings, too, are realized by you, the consumer.

We Are Mink Designers Our stylists have traveled the European continent observing the important showings from London to the South of France. In Paris, we purchased exclusive models from famous couturiers like Christian Dior and Balenciaga. From all this we have been greatly inspired. This is evident in the original styles which we are now showing.

Ways to Use Chopped Nuts

Chopped nuts may be added to any favorite recipe for bread, muffins, biscuits, waffles, cookies and cakes, home economists of the United States Department of Agriculture remind housewives this fall when nut crops are so large and supplies so abundant. The quantity suggested is one fourth to one half cup of nuts to each cup of flour the recipe calls for.

When adding to a cake mixture, have the nuts finely chopped and put them in last of all ingredients so that they will remain suspended in the batter during baking and not sink to the bottom.

About Finish On Mahogany

How can raw mahogany be finished to retain its light pinkish-tan color? If it cannot be done, how can it be bleached? M. S.

Applying a coat or two of clear varnish or shellac to the raw wood will darken it only very slightly. If you wish to cut the high gloss of the varnish, you could rub the well dried surface with powered pumice and linseed oil. This will give it a soft gleam.

Should the leatherette trim on an automobile be waxed, and if so which type of wax should be used? M. S.

Yes, waxing the leatherette trim will give it protection against moisture and soil. To wax it, use a paste or cream wax.

Attention B. G. R.: We have received a letter from S. C. Johnson & Son, Inc., telling us that Drax, a "wax rinse for washables which gives them invisible protection from dirt and soil" is their product but that it is not yet available in retail outlets in the East. It, however, can be obtained by writing to this company at Racine, Wis.

How can one refinish a walnut finished dining room suite so that it will be gray? H. N. R.

Remove all the finish with a good commercial varnish and paint remover. When the finish is gone go over the entire piece with benzine to clean the surface thoroughly. (Be sure to work with benzine away from open flames and with plenty of ventilation to avoid fire.) When the wood is dry, thoroughly sand to smooth and wipe away all dust.

Now, if you wish a silvery-gray, limed-oak finish, apply one coat of gray paint. When it has been on the wood only a few minutes, wipe with a coarse cloth. The idea is to leave the paint only in the pores of the wood. When it has dried several days, you can give it several coats of wax, rubbing well after each coat.

If you wish a gray painted surface instead of the limed oak finish it will not be necessary to remove the old finish completely. If the old finish has a gloss, this should be reduced before painting by rubbing with sandpaper and then wiping the surface with turpentine. When thoroughly dry, apply two or three coats of paint. The first two should be base coats and the last a flat drying paint, if you wish no gloss; or enamel, if you want the shiny finish.

Attention L. W.: Four different readers have sent in suggestions about where to send clothing for American Indians.

V. H. writes that all the Baptist churches in Washington are making "Indian Bags" and filling them with articles of clothing to be sent to the Indians for Christmas as part of their mission work. The Congress Heights Baptist Church, Esther and Brothers Place se., would be more than delighted to receive this clothing, she says, as it is needed very much. The telephone number is Trinidad 2115.

H. L. suggests sending the clothing to a community project among the Mandau, Gros Ventres, and Rees, on the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation in North Dakota. She says if you will call her at Chestnut 6742, she will be glad to give you the address or ship the clothing for you.

R. C. J. says that the American Friends Service Committee, 20 S. 12th st., Philadelphia, 7, Pa., has a project among the Navajo Indians, and suggests that L. W. write them. This is the national Quaker (Friends) organization. (The Washington group does not collect clothes for the Indians, but for overseas relief, hence the need for writing Philadelphia.)

M. V. M. suggests the following "worthy organizations in Oklahoma" which would appreciate clothing contributions, especially for school age children up to 18: Goodland Indian Orphanage, Hugo, Okla., and Wheelock Academy, Valliant, Okla. A letter to the secretary of the Business and Professional Women's Club, Idabel, Okla., would give L. W. assurance that her contribution would find a welcome among needy Choctaw people of all ages, writes M. V. M. The girls at the schools are taught to make and alter clothing, she says, and really appreciate gay colors.

I have a royal blue dress which I had dry cleaned. When I got it back I discovered the dress had turned pink in spots which the dry cleaner says was due to perspiration. Now, I would like to know if you can tell me of anything which will remove the pink spots, and, if not, would it be advisable to have it dyed royal blue again. J. D.

It is possible that if you will dampen the discolored spots with water and hold them over the fumes from an open bottle of ammonia, the color will be restored. If that isn't successful, try sponging it with vinegar. Colors cannot always be restored when changed by perspiration, particularly if the stains are old. If the pink spots are very light, they may not be completely covered by redying it the same color. If you wish it a royal blue, I would suggest you first remove all the color from the dress by using a commercial color remover sold where dyes are sold. If you do not wish to remove the color before redying, I would suggest a darker blue.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest O. Osborne

The 'Setting Hen' Club

Do you have trouble getting baby-sitters you feel you can trust? Do you often have to stay home because there's no one to look after the children in the evening? And do your neighbors have the same problem?

If so, here's a plan that worked very well for one group of neighbors and friends. They all had children of about the same age who were not old enough to be left at home alone. Their plan will work best with a group of from 6 to 10 families. One mother (or father) who is willing to do a little extra work, acts as secretary. If the Browns want to go "a'gadding" they call the secretary, tell her when they want to leave and when they will be back. She calls one of the co-operating families to see whether husband or wife can sit for the evening. If so, the "sitting" family is credited with so many hours and when they in turn want to go out for the evening, the secretary will find a "setting hen" from the group for them.

It may sound complicated, but among friendly and cooperative people it seems to work well, and it provides, in a relatively painless and inexpensive way, a very much needed service.

It's New

By Lucia Brown

RICH-LOOKING, yet not ornate, is a new silver pattern which is gladdening the hearts of this fall's brides. Called "Melrose," it took its inspiration from the Melrose mansion in Natchez, Miss., an ante-bellum home which has long been a symbol of gracious living.

The new design in sterling was created, says its makers, in harmony with the "simple-yet-elegant" trend in home furnishings today. In the last few years, sales of more elaborate silver patterns have been heavier than those of plain design. So here's Melrose to bring a touch of elegance to the table for a formal dinner or simple luncheon.

NEWEST item in the cozy comfort department is the twin electric blanket, designed for use on twin beds. It consists of two blankets, controlled by a single switch which sets on the table between the beds. The switch is automatic, turns on the blankets all by itself if a cold wave comes in the dark of the night.

This light, fluffy pair has all the advantages of other electric blankets. They offer warmth without weight, allow you to "preheat" the bed before you hop in, make extra covers unnecessary even on the coldest nights, and can be laundered in the electric washer.

YOU'LL find a novel new tea-and-toast set nice for afternoon entertaining. The plates are over-sized leaves and the cups set in grooves upon them. The fat teapot and the sugar and creamer also carry a leaf design. Made of glazed pottery, the sets come in several pretty colors—seafoam blue, chartreuse, grey or coral.

HAVE you seen the new plastic bowls that keep cold foods cold for 18 hours, hot foods hot for quite a time, too? They're double-walled with a colored plastic exterior and a white inner bowl that is practically unbreakable. They hold three quarts, have a transparent cover. Fine for buffet entertaining, for picnics, or for saving food when one of the family is late for a meal.

COOKIE cutter counters are picking up in interest these days. One of them here has just gotten in Blondie-and-Dagwood sets. The cutters are made of plastic, represent Alexander, Daisy, and the five pups (all in a row), as well as the two stars of the strip. Hansel-and-Gretel sets are back for Christmas, too. These cutters give you the old witch, the gingerbread house, a fir tree, and the unlucky sister and brother.

"Round-the-clock" freshness is promised by a fragrant toilet soap just introduced here. It's a deodorant soap, delightfully sweet-scented but guaranteed to kill bacteria on the surface of the skin. Since these are the invisible but insidious cause of body odors, the soap gives you all-over protection for hours after you bathe. It's a rich-lathering, mild soap, too, safe for sensitive skins.

Panocha Surprise

Want to make a hit with your family? One of the surest ways we know to rate ace-high with the clan is to surprise 'em every so often with a batch of homemade candy, such as this "Panocha."

PANOCHA

2 cups brown sugar
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup nut meats

Cook the sugar and milk in a saucepan to the soft-ball stage (238°F.). Remove from fire, add butter and vanilla, and cool without stirring. When lukewarm, beat until creamy. Stir in chopped nut meats. Pour into a buttered pan and when it hardens mark into squares.

Slow Cooking Is Best

Slow and steady is the rule to remember when cooking bacon and sausage for best flavor, tender texture and least waste. By keeping the heat low these meat products can be cooked thoroughly without drying, hardening or scorching. Slow cooking has another advantage. It saves the fat in these meats from reaching the smoking point where it becomes less digestible and changes in flavor.

"MELROSE," one of the newest sterling patterns, was used in this modern buffet setting. Though inspired by the old Melrose mansion in Natchez, Miss., this gracious design fits into any style of living, from modern to traditional

BIG ENOUGH to hold cake or toast is the plate-sized saucer in an attractive pottery set. Designed for entertaining, the set includes a teapot, sugar, and creamer, as well as the cups and leaf-shaped plates

Plan to Exhibit Dolls of All Nations

Mrs. Morris Gewirz entertained at tea Monday for a group of ladies who are planning a permanent exhibition of "Authentic Dolls of All Nations" for the City of Washington. Senora de Corominas, wife of the Argentine Ambassador to the Pan American Union and Senora de Abello, wife of the Philippine Minister, were among those who poured.

Other guests of the afternoon included Senora de Acosta of Paraguay, Mme. Trboyjevic of Yugoslavia, Senora de Garcia of Ecuador, Senora de Osuna of Cuba, Senora de Benitez of the Philippines and Mme. Valadimir Rybar, wife of the late Yugoslav Ambassador to Norway.

Cooking Lore . . .

Flavoring should be added to custards, boiled frosting, candies, and so forth, when they are cold, otherwise part of the essence may evaporate.

Home-made soups made with meat or fish stock should be simmered, rather than boiled. Barley, rice and noodles, if used, should be added toward the end of the cooking. Use the tops of celery and a few sprigs of parsley for good flavor.

Sandwich loaves for parties may be frosted on the outside with mayonnaise or softened cream cheese. The filling for the loaves may be varied: egg salad for one layer, chopped ripe olives for another, and watercress and salad dressing for a third, for example.

In using an electric range, place saucepans, skillets and other utensils on units that most nearly match their size.

Kidneys that are to be broiled may be marinated in a French dressing first; be sure that the dressing is a tangy one with plenty of seasoning.

In cutting waxed paper to fit the bottom of cake pans, place the pan on the paper and trace around it with a pencil, then cut out. Or trace around with a small sharp knife and it will not be necessary to use a scissors. Grease the pan before putting in the paper.

Wrap cheese well in waxed paper, put in a container with a tightly fitting cover, and store in the refrigerator.

Grooming Tips

Don't try to lengthen an old fur coat, advise experts. Wear it as is. All lengths from jackets to three quarter styles, are fashionable.

To freshen a veil, press it between sheets of wax paper.

Lady Welsh Completes Plan For Style Show

Lady Welsh, president of the women's board of Emergency Hospital, back in town and working out final plans for the fashion show and luncheon which the board is sponsoring next Tuesday, November 9, at the Mayflower, has just arranged for an amusing skit as an interlude in the parade of fashions.

An attractive model, wearing one of Omar Kiam's creations, a smart traveling suit, will be followed down the ramp by a Pullman porter carrying a smart dress suitcase, an overnight case and stunning fur coat. Designed to show what the well-dressed traveler wears.

The purpose of the fashion show is to raise funds for the board's "special needs," and Lady Welsh explains these needs. Funds for special nurses for the desperately ill whose lives depend on special care; blood transfusions, crutches and wheel chairs; food for the families of patients through the home service; occupational therapy; the supplying of materials for patients to work with; the financing of a nurse's training for three years; books for the nurses' libraries.

A distinguished audience will be on hand for the luncheon and fashion show on Tuesday. Mrs. Pearsons Rust and others working with her on table reservations are planning for a packed ballroom with tables on the mezzanine in addition to those on the main floor.

get to the bottom of it and help you decide what action to take, if any seems necessary after you've talked things out.

Worries From Habit, So Sleep on That

3. SWITCH your thoughts from their one-track groove of worry about being "the forgotten man" in Judy's life, and go back over the past, year by year, to recollect the things you formerly worried about. See if it's true—as I think it is—that you've always been more or less afraid of life, in the sense of expecting loss, disappointment betrayal, a run of bad luck. See if this pessimist streak has always been there, issuing from a miserably hard or unhappy childhood, maybe.

If such is the case, then realize that you're not so much worried by separation from Judy as you are worrying from habit. Having grasped that fact, go to sleep, resolved to work more on the problem later.

4. Have Judy bring you on her next visit a copy of Joshua Loth Liebman's "Peace of Mind" (Simon & Schuster, publishers) also Emmet Fox's "Make Your Life Worthwhile" (Harper & Brothers, publishers), and after studying these books for several days, if you still want to press for a transfer, by all means do so. It may come through or it may not; but if it don't, you'll be much better able to "grin and bear it."

Pinhoe Bazaar To Be Dec. 1 At Embassy

When the British Ambassador and Lady Franks open their stately embassy on Massachusetts ave. to the public on Wednesday, December 1, for the third annual Pinhoe Bazaar, guests will walk into a vertiable fairyland. The rooms on the second floor are to be transformed into a mart featuring articles that might well carry Bond st. labels.

Everything from handsome leather goods and silks, toys and books, smoking accessories, scarves and prints will be for sale.

Mrs. William Mason Wright, known affectionately as the "field marshal" by her legion of friends, will be in charge of the antique booth where fine silver, china, glass and other priceless articles will be featured. On her committee are Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, Mrs. Corcoran Thom, Mrs. Eldridge Jordan, Mrs. Jerauld Wright and Mrs. Thomas Clagett.

For weeks they have been soliciting rare finds for their booth which will be reminiscent of London's famous Caledonian Market.

Proceeds from the mart will go to the fund being raised in this country for the community center and child health clinic established in Pinhoe, Devonshire, England. A trust fund from Americans has made possible this flourishing center in the historic town where many of our soldiers were quartered during the last war.

Family Portrait

Most of Capital Transit's 2500 streetcar and bus operators are family men, substantial, respected citizens. They appreciate the security and real satisfaction of an essential service to over a million people a day who depend on public transportation. A typical family is that of Theodore Hile, Streetcar Operator, Navy Yard Division.

Mrs. Theodore Hile says:

"My husband has the responsibility of getting others to work and back home on time. That affects his working hours, but he has enough leisure time to take Douglas and me out whenever we want to go and still do the man's chores around the house. I'm happy that Ted likes his job and the fellows he works with—and because it's a secure job we've been able to completely pay for our home. We're all happy. Capital Transit is a good place to work."

Additional good men like Theodore Hile are needed to enable us to constantly improve the service. If you are such a man, and would like training, with pay, as a professional driver, visit us today at 3132 M Street, N. W. for complete details. Routes 10, 20 and 30 direct to door.

Dr. Harry Stack Sullivan, psychiatrist of Bethesda, was the speaker at the Sunday evening meeting at St. John's College. His topic was "Your Future and the Newer Psychiatry."

Members of the Naval Academy Alumni Association met in Annapolis last Friday. The group lunched with the midshipmen in the mess hall and later, with their wives, attended a reception at the quarters of the Superintendent of the Naval Academy, Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., and Mss. Holloway.

Comdr. and Mrs. C. L. Clark of Carmel Country Club, Carmel, N. Y., are here for a visit with their son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. William M. Hodges, of Revell.

Miss Sybil Godfrey, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Vincent H. Godfrey of Pittsburgh, Pa., spent last weekend here with her grandmother, Mrs. Arthur Burneston Owens, of 29 Southgate ave., and attended the Navy-Notre Dame football game in Baltimore last Saturday. Mrs. Owens also has had as her house guest Ensign Robert K. Geiger, who is stationed at Bainbridge, Md.

Miss Elizabeth Jordan Wilburn, sister of Raymond Wilburn, dean of St. John's College, whose marriage to Samuel Bancroft Bird, jr., took place on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock in St. Mary's Church here, had Miss Pat Polyette of Annapolis, formerly of Crisfield, Md., as her maid of honor. The Rev. Stephen O'Connor officiated at the nuptials, which were attended by a large group of the young couple's relatives and friends.

Henry Bird of Wilmington, Del., was best man for his brother, and the ushers included John G. Mack, Christian Hoyde, Gerald Atterbury and Peter Clark. The bride, who is the daughter of Mrs. Louis Jordan Wilburn of Roanoke, Va., and the late Mr. Wilburn, has been secretary in her brother's office at St. John's.

Wives of members of the Naval Academy Department of Mathematics held their first luncheon of the year on Thursday at the North Severn Officers' Club. In charge of arrangements for the party, at which future plans for the group were discussed, were: Mrs. H. H. Caldwell, Mrs. Reid P. Fiala, Mrs. George Lyle, Mrs. A. E. Currier and Mrs. C. E. Thomson.

Returns to Annapolis

Mrs. James Kelleher, who spent the past summer in Sandwich, Mass., has returned to Annapolis to be with her daughter, Lieut. Marie Kelleher, of the office of public information at the Naval Academy. Lieutenant Kelleher also has with her for a visit her aunt, Mrs. Daniel Kelleher of New Bedford, Mass.

Mrs. Slayton, wife of Capt. Charles Churchill Slayton, USN (retired), has just returned from a week's trip to Savannah, Ga., where she attended the eighteenth convention of the American Society of Travel Agents. Mrs. Slayton is the manager of the Annapolis Travel Service. During her trip, she also visited Havana, Jamaica and Bermuda.

Reside in Alexandria

Mr. and Mrs. William Vernon Foley are residing at 2700 Ridge rd. dr., Alexandria. Before her marriage, Mrs. Foley was Miss Julia Bedell Adams, daughter of Mrs. Ordway Samuel Adams. Mr. Foley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Foley of Tampa, Fla.

Epiphany Church's Bazaar To Have Country Store Air

If you have a nostalgic yen for the old country store atmosphere and the aroma of freshly baked breads and cakes, visit the holiday fair in the parish hall of the Church of the Epiphany, November 18, anytime between 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. The gala benefit is being sponsored by all groups of the church including various chapters of the woman's auxiliary.

On the country store shelves you'll find an assortment of apple cider, spicy gingerbread, home canned vegetables, jellies, cakes, pies and candy plus fine handmade cotton and linen articles. And of course, there will be a white elephant table and fortune tellers. Those who have a penchant for autographed books and a look-see at the authors will find Maria Williams Sheerin on hand to sign her new tome," The Parson Takes a Wife." Well known in church circles, Mrs. Sheerin long has been identified with the local groups in the Nation's Capital, which she called home for several years.

Participating for the first time in the annual affair will be the Chinese Youth Club, headed by James Wong, which will serve a Chinese supper from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. under the chairmanship of Mrs. Woodrow Chan. In addition, there'll be a cafeteria luncheon from noon to 2 p. m.

One of the entertainment highlights will be a musical program by the Epiphany Junior Choir at 5 p. m. and the Quartet of Senior Choir at 7 p. m., Mary Llewelyln will direct the juniors and Adolf Trovosky will direct the seniors.

Mrs. J. Pervis Milnor is general chairman of the fair.

The Rev. Leland Stark, rector, and the Rev. Richard Williams, associate rector, will be on hand to greet the guests and shoppers.

Peggy

In Autumn Bridal Procession

Miss Ruth Hager, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter E. Hager of Washington, was married on October 30 at the Union Presbyterian Church in Schenectady, N. Y., to Marion Bert Petcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd H. Petcher of Mobile, Ala.

Dr. Hager, who is president of Wilson Teachers College, gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of starched chiffon with a finger-tip veil and carried white roses and pompons. Mrs. Mary Streney was matron of honor and Misses Emily Voorhis and Joyce Hill were bridesmaids. The best man was Richard Palla and ushering were Lee Rademaker and Richard Ball. A reception followed.

Bishop—Mitchell

Miss Flora Mitchell, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Mitchell of Providence, Ky., became the bride on October 30 of James Morris Bishop, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James M. Bishop of Dawson Springs, Ky. The Rev. John Bailey Kelly performed the ceremony.

The bride is public relations secretary of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation. She attended Western State College in Bowling Green, Ky. Her husband attended Kentucky Wesleyan College and the University of Louisville and was graduated from the Cumberland University Law School, Lebanon, Tenn.

Jones—Hopkins

The marriage of Miss Mary Ella Hopkins to Charles Frederick Jones took place October 26 at the Falls Church, Va., home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Joshua Brooks. The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of Foundry Methodist Church, officiated. Mr. Jones is the son of Dr. Joseph W. L. Jones and the late Mrs. Jones of Tiffin, Ohio.

Given in marriage by her brother, Clark Hopkins of Chicago, Ill., the bride wore an afternoon gown of silver lame with a matching hat. She carried purple orchids.

Low-Cost Housing Fight Lies Ahead For Administration

By Conrad P. Harness

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S new lease on the White House is expected to mean extension of rent control for at least one year, and a battle royal in Congress over a Federally subsidized public housing program.

The people's choice for President will have all major veterans' organizations behind him on these proposed housing measures.

The Nation's organized real estate men and home builders will again furnish the major opposition. They will attempt to prove to Congress that any public housing measure should be shelved because:

1. The current record-breaking building rate of nearly one million units this year has scraped the barrel for building materials and construction crews. From where, they ask, would materials and manpower come to build additional thousands of public housing units?

2. Builders are stepping up production of low-cost "economy" homes. Several projects over the Nation are selling five-room bungalows at $4000 to $8000, with scores more planned for erection during 1949. (Washington Home Builders Association is participating in the drive for lower-cost, better-built homes with a "guinea pig" project of two model homes now under way in District Heights, Md. Both will sell for under $8000—Ed.'s note.)

3. The 1948 survey of consumer finances by the Federal Reserve Board shows home builders are erecting homes for all income groups, not just the rich. The report reveals that 40 per cent of all house purchases last year were made by families with annual incomes of $3000 or less, with the median price paid for new houses in 1947 at between $7500 and $8500. The median price for used homes was between $5000 and $6000. About 40 per cent of home buyers in 1947 were veterans.

Veterans Are Vocal

THE American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Amvets will spearhead any presidential drive for rent control and Federally subsidized public housing. All veterans groups have housing as "No. 1" on their legislative programs. The three named have adopted resolutions calling for an extension of rent control for one year from its present March 31, 1949, expiration date.

Their public housing resolutions are similar, calling for construction under Federal auspices of 100,000 units per year for the next five years. The VFW wants the 500,000 units to be made available for sale to veterans or veteran non-profit cooperatives not more than 10 years after completion.

Resolutions passed at the different 1948 conventions of the veterans groups ask for passage of such a public measure so that low-income groups, which cannot compete economically for standard housing, can be given decent shelter.

Officially, veterans groups are strictly non-partisan in regard to political activities. However, unofficially the staffs of the national headquarters of the larger veteran groups say their housing legislative program stands a far greater chance of passage with Truman as President than had Governor Dewey been elected.

Truman has long been an ardent supporter of rent control, where needed, and construction of public housing. The Republican-dominated Eightieth Congress succeeded in eliminating the public housing features from the housing act passed by the special summer session of Congress. This measure, the Housing Act of 1948, provided financing incentives, among other things, to the building industry.

Senators Robert Taft (R., Ohio), Ralph Flanders (R., Vt.), and Allen J. Ellender (D., La.), plus Representative T. Hale Boggs (D., La.) are known to be working on bills covering slum clearance and public housing which will presumably be introduced before the Eighty-first Congress.

Situation Urgent

THE home building industry is expected to ask Congress to do something about the critical lack of financing funds which is threatening to bankrupt many builders, while curtailing construction programs of others.

The financing situation may also jeopardize the drive for "economy houses" now under way by the National Association of Home Builders. "Economy" does not mean a smaller or stripped down house. It is a lower cost home produced by better planning, more efficient methods and use of lower cost materials.

One local builder, R. H. Best, reported yesterday that he had indefinitely postponed construction of a proposed subdivision in College Park, Md., with homes to sell for $7800.

"I can't get loans from any lending institution," Best reported. "Here is a case where I have a fine plan, plenty of potential buyers with money for down payments and I can get neither the land to build on or construction money. FHA is too demanding in its site requirements. I originally had planned a project of low-cost homes for Negroes, but no one will lend a nickel on such units."

Best said he was now building at Rockville the same type of Cape Cod style two-bedroom, expansible attic home he had planned to erect at College Park. The latter, if built, could have been paid for at $50 per month over a 20 year period. The Rockville home, on more expensive land, is selling for $8,250.

Any attempt to "legislate" housing into existence through a program of Federal subsidies will meet stiff resistance from the Nation's organized realtors, it was indicated yesterday.

Hobart C. Brady, of Wichita, Kans., president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said that the "efforts of realtors to provide better housing and point out the evils of rent control and public housing are nonpartisan in character and hence unaltered by the shifting tides of political thought or outcome of elections.

"Public housing produces houses no quicker, better or cheaper than existing processes which have made us the best housed nation in the world," he added. "Public housing benefits the politically influential rather than the needy, furnishes a vast new source of political patronage to entrench the political machines of great cities, fattens the large Government contractors at the expense of the local home builder and subsidizes the few at the expense of the many. It is the beachhead from which the forces of collectivism hope to launch their attack against our entire system of individual enterprise and initiative."

Builders Want Time

SPEAKING for the National Association of Home Builders, Frank Cortright, executive vice president, commented: "The building industry is utilizing all available manpower and materials. Government construction of housing now would seriously increase the building costs by bidding up already scarce skilled craftsmen and materials.

"As additional steel and other metals are sent to Europe and are required for our $15 million armament program, steel pipe, bathtubs, furnaces, nails and other items may be insufficient for the private enterprise goal of one million houses in 1949."

Cortright said Congress would be urged to give industry "time to catch up with the unprecedented housing demand, with full limit of materials and manpower."

Special Kitchen Is Easy on the Heart

It takes more energy to stand than to sit

Note wheels on ironing board, narrow shelves on wall

By Harriet Morrison

WE LIKE the kitchen shown here because it is frankly a workshop and to us that is the highest compliment that can be paid a kitchen.

One does not do any high or low hunting in this kitchen. Whether it is a mixing bowl or saucepan you are after, chances are you will find it right in front of you. Space near the floor and ceiling is purposely disregarded. The designers do not want the person working here to stoop, reach, lift, climb or stand up any more than is absolutely necessary.

The reason for this is simply that the kitchen was designed primarily for those with heart disease. The New York Heart Association sponsored the kitchen and Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, kitchen engineer, headed the committee that planned it.

This is not a luxury kitchen, but it demonstrates some of the easiest, quickest and most pleasant ways to do everyday kitchen jobs. Every effort has been made to conserve energy.

There are ideas here that may seem unusual but they make sense whether or not you have a heart condition. The sink, for example, has nothing under it. Soaps and strainers ordinarily found under sinks are placed over this one. So are saucepans, knives and other utensils. This keeps you from bending. Food scraps go through an opening in the counter to the right of the sink and into a high metal container.

Between the sink and refrigerator is the mixing center. This work surface is 32 inches high, or 4 inches lower than the sink counter. Utensils are hung within reach. There are vertical files for cake pans and pie tins. Revolving shelves in the corner to the right of the mixing counter hold the cheese grater, sifters and bowls.

If dust is a problem, cabinet doors can be put on any of the wall storage areas or the revolving shelves.

The use of a wheeled table cuts down the number of trips you make from the dish cabinet to the dining table and from the table to the sink. It does the carrying for you. This kitchen includes a small table on wheels. The high work chair also rolls on wheels when tipped.

Dishes, silverware and linens used every day are stored in a cabinet between the sink and dining area. Shelves are open on both sides.

Inexpensive Idea

AN IDEA that could be adopted inexpensively in any kitchen is to have shelves over the dining table to hold mustard, meat sauces, napkins and salt and pepper shakers. This saves much of the jumping up and down that takes place during many family meals.

Opposite the dining table in this kitchen is a low bookcase and table with a combination record player and radio plus a rocking chair. Here is a chance for relaxation while the potatoes cook and here is a place for children to play.

Beside the range is a base cabinet where chop platters, vegetable serving dishes, frying pans and utensils needed at the range are kept. Shelves are cut back.

Adjustable Shelves

SHALLOW shelves on the wall to the right of the range are wide enough for a single row of cans or packaged cereals—no doubling up here.

If you really want to save time and energy in the kitchen you can; but it takes planning. Borrow ideas explained here.

Try adjusting shelf heights and depths to fit what you place on shelves. If your shelves are all deep and high, insert half shelves, put in wood vertical dividers in which to file pie pans or cake tins or consider step shelves.

The kitchen shown here is installed in Dodge Hall, Teachers College, Columbia University, New York City. It is being used in connection with Assistant Prof. Orpha Mae Thomas' Time and Motion Study course.

If you wish more information on easier ways to do housework, write to the New York Heart Association, 2 East 103rd st., New York 29, N. Y., for a copy of "The Heart of the Home."

Realty Roundup

INSPECTING new homes and new subdivisions is still a popular weekend past time with prospective Washington home buyers, a number of builders have reported. Those empty seats at last Sunday's Redskin-Boston Yank football game may have been caused by the exodus to local construction sites.

Westbriar Corp., sponsors of a proposed 400-home development of steel houses near Vienna, Va., reported over 5000 people inspected their sample home last weekend. The project is on Chain Bridge rd., between Tyson's Corner and Vienna.

Leon Horowitz, Westbriar vice president, said the entire staff of the Tyler Corp., contractors for Westbriar, has been turned into salesmen to accommodate the rush of visitors. Over 100 homes have been sold, at $9800 to $10,000 each, it was reported.

At the opposite side of the metropolitan area, at Chevy Chase Manor, off Western ave., Camalier and Crosby reported a crowd estimated at 5400 viewed a rambler advertised for sale at $15,500. James N. Heaney, sales manager, said 20 contracts were closed. The rambler will be fully completed within two weeks and furnished by Woodward and Lothrop.

Over 600 people inspected the Lustron home on Rock Creek Parkway, Charles Prins, head of Carlton Construction Co., Lustron dealers, reported. The unconventional enameled steel house will be kept open indefinitely. Proceeds of the 25-cent admission fee will go to the Dorothy Kilmer fund, sponsored by District Liner Bill Gold.

Other projects at which large turnouts were reported included Bellevue Forest in North Arlington, Va., and Arnold Perry's project in Bradmoor, Bethesda, Md. The latter gained national attention when David Wallace, broker, announced he would present each buyer with a new Crosley station wagon free of charge.

Gilbert S. Underwood, consulting architect, Public Buildings Administration, will be the speaker at the Monday luncheon of the Washington Building Congress at the Hotel Mayflower. His subject will be "Construction in Europe." Underwood has just returned from Europe where he studied the leading hospitals in 12 countries, in addition to observations of other types of construction.

New members of the Building Congress include Victor R. Beauchamp, Davis J. DeSouza, L. G. Humphrey, James Plumbing & Heating Co., Inc., Charles F. King, E. L. Peters and Morton Silverberg.

Joke in the Building Congress Bulletin: "I believe a burglar is trying to open the living room window."

"Good, I haven't been able to move it since the painter was here."

KING UNDERWOOD

The American Institute of Architects will seek to determine whether man can design buildings to withstand the blasts of atomic bombs or the deadly radiation which might result from conversion of atomic power to industrial use. A committee of leading architects, under James R. Edmunds, jr., of Baltimore, has been charged with the task. They will cooperate fully with the Atomic Energy Commission and the armed forces.

The AIA commented: "Architects must consider protective measures from such dangers as they draw plans for homes, offices, factories, schools and hospitals, research and science teaching laboratories."

W. L. King, president of Boss & Phelps Mortgage Co., of Washington, has been elected president of the Mortgage Bankers Legion, honorary organization of present and former members of the board of governors of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, it was announced yesterday.

The election to the Presidency of Dr. Gallup's nemesis is expected to bring joy and happiness to manufacturers of steel homes. It is reasonable to expect a rise in allocations of steel for such purposes. Under a Republican Congress and President, steel makers would have brushed aside requests for further voluntary allocations of steel for steel homes. However,

Lack of realistic cooperation between lending institutions and government agencies has resulted in many veterans being denied benefits intended for them under the law, according to a report prepared by the Mortgage Finance Committee of the National Association of Home Builders.

During 1946, 1947 and the first quarter of 1948, the report said, veterans' housing loans were approved at the rate of more than half a million per year. The second quarter of 1948 saw a drop as 75,000 veterans obtained housing loans. In the month ending September 25 only 22,000 loans were approved, NAREB reported.

Construction Under Way At Northwest Park Apts.

A story in last Sunday's real estate section, concerning apartment construction, said erection of Northwest Park Apartments, New Hampshire ave. at Piney Branch rd., Md., had not yet started. The builders, Jeffress-Dyer, Inc., report that construction was started August 9. Foundations for 12 out of 19 proposed buildings have been completed. The Washington Post regrets the error.

Plans for erection of an additional 48 one-story and basement bungalows in the Carroll Knolls section of Silver Spring have been disclosed by Hamilton Development Corp., owners. Colonial Construction Corp. is the builder.

A permit application has been filed and sub-bids are being taken by the builder. The homes will be of brick construction.

Steel Industry Seems to Like F. O. B. Prices

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP).—No matter what the outcome of the fight over the basing point price system, the steel industry seems to like it. In July they voluntarily abandoned the old practice of quoting prices delivered at designated basing points in the belief that the method in itself was illegal. It now appears the steel companies will stick by their decision no matter what others do.

Since July there has been wide discussion of the effects on American economy of the steel companies' action. A special Congressional committee under Sen. Capehart (R. Ind.) starting Tuesday in Washington will hear all sides and findings will be presented to the new Congress so it may, as Capehart says, "determine what is best for the Nation and put it into law."

But regardless of what Congress does, a large segment of industry presents many reasons for the belief that the old basing point system is doomed.

Steel companies themselves appear to like F. O. B. pricing. It saves them from something less than $1 a ton to around $1.25 in freight charges they formerly absorbed. Some customers pay more and some less than formerly.

Irving S. Olds, chairman of U. S. Steel, says he is in favor of any system that will maintain competition among steel companies.

Companies favorably situated to benefit by F. O. B. pricing have not so far been very vocal, but their voice is expected to grow. Those industries that stand to lose most have been the loudest objectors, but they may be forced to move their plants closer to their sources of supplies or make other revisions in marketing.

And in the present era of high demand, even at continued peak steel production, price has been secondary to getting steel itself at almost any price. The end of that high demand has not yet been sighted by steel industry leaders.

Construction Volume Drops in Arlington

Construction volume in Arlington County last month, determined from building permits issued, amounted to $1,018,373, a large drop from September's total of $3,008,112.

A breakdown of permits issued shows proposed erection of 39 detached dwellings, 2 duplex homes, 2 apartments of 58 units, 1 school and 6 stores.

Sales Off Due to Financing, Appraiser Says

Housing sales have been tapering off since last April and bid fair to continue unless interest rates on financing are raised, real estate appraisers were told here last week.

J. Harold Sparkman, president of the International Society of Residential Appraisers, told members of that organization, in assembly at the Mayflower Hotel on Friday, it is now "practically impossible to finance the purchase of a house" within reasonable limits.

He said the demand for low-cost housing continues to be great, but without GI loans from banks, the "market is just coasting along."

Maximum Rate

If interest rates could be raised one half of 1 per cent, he added, the turnover of houses for sale would increase immediately.

Federal law requires that GI home loans carry a maximum interest rate of 4 per cent.

The demand for three-bedroom houses below $8000 is still great, Sparkman said, but the supply is best in the $8000-$15,000 class. Many homes in the later range are standing unsold because of difficulty in arranging loans, he said.

Avalon Heights Church Asks Building Permit

Avalon Heights Church of Christ plans construction of a two-story brick addition to its Sunday school and pastor's quarters at 2800 Douglas st. ne. E. P. Pierce is the builder. A building permit application has been filed.

Small Builders Adopting Cost Saving Ideas

SMALLER home builders are rapidly adopting the advantages of various production-line techniques used by larger builders, Melvin H. Baker, chairman of the Construction Industry Information Committee, reported this week.

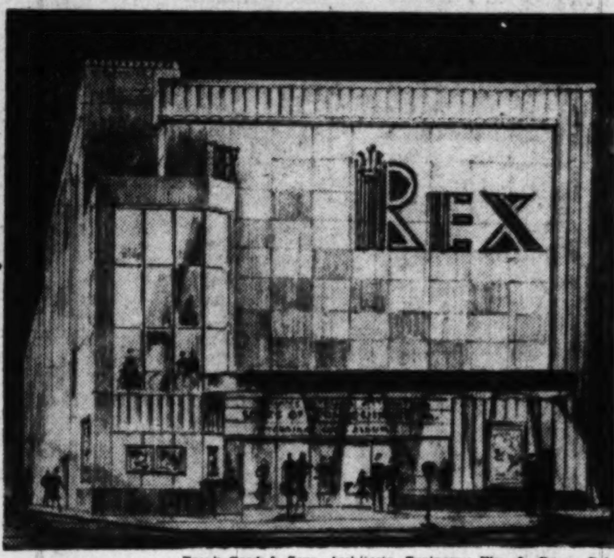
"Although large-scale home building and prefabrication will contribute importantly to greater efficiency and economy in housing construction in the future, a study by the committee's economists indicates that at least an equal gain should be made through new time-saving methods which are being used on a broader scale every day by thousands of smaller builders," Baker said.

"Prefabrication promises to be one important solution to lower-cost housing production, but it still is in the developmental stage. The study states also that there is a growing volume of large-scale home building, but points out that there are relatively few communities in which enormous single developments can be marketed annually over a period of years.

"While smaller home builders can not use the specialized work crews which figure prominently in the mass production savings attained by larger operators, and usually can not afford the expensive machinery and large shops from which larger builders often obtain substantial savings, they can take full advantage of other mass production techniques.

"These techniques include standardization of house parts, use of power tools, precutting and preassembly of various parts of the house, careful planning of storage facilities, reduction in the amount of work done out in the open during bad weather, care in design, better production planning, and skillful scheduling of deliveries so that needed materials will be available at the right time in the right places."

New Downtown Theater



Frank Grad & Sons, Architects, Engineers; Wm. L. Drevo, Del.

New Rex movie house to be erected at 1012 14th st. nw.

CONSTRUCTION of the Rex Theater, a 650-seat first run movie house to be erected at 1012 14th st. nw., just off K st., will start soon, according to Morris Cafritz, owner and builder. The theater has been leased to a New York syndicate.

"The selection of this location for the site of the theater by the operator," Cafritz stated, "was decided by an extensive survey which revealed that this location being the center of both east, west and north, south transportation arteries as well as a business and hotel center, made it ideally suited for this type of enterprise.

"Although Washington needs a new legitimate theater to replace the National," Cafritz added, "the site on which the new cinema house is to be erected is too small to provide the facilities required by a modern playhouse."

Cafritz added that the erection of a large, first-class, legitimate theater was being considered for the Temple Heights tract at Connecticut and Florida aves. and since ample ground is available on that site, parking facilities for patrons will also be provided.

Postwar Building Record Smashed

A record volume of new housing was put under construction during the first nine months of the year, according to the National Association of Home Builders. More than 729,500 family units were begun.

Citing Bureau of Labor Statistics data, the association points out that in nine months builders produced more residential housing than was produced in any entire year before the war with the exception of the boom years of the mid-twenties. This production pace is 18 per cent ahead of last year's smashing totals.

Big Windows Effect Trend In Room Color

Because 20 to 30 per cent more window area is used in the average home built today than in that of 20 years ago, the modern decorative trend is toward dark-colored walls, reports the Construction Research Bureau of New York, clearing house for building information.

Oversized windows admit so much more light that homes are no longer limited to light-toned walls, bureau experts say. Darker wall treatment stems from the trend of the popular picture window, which in some homes is 16 feet long and 8 feet high. Picture windows are not confined to the living-room, now being used also in bedroom, kitchen and children's room.

With the trend to darker walls has also come the use of color schemes employing combinations of warm colors and cool colors in the same room instead of a single color for all four walls.

Complementary colors should be used judiciously. A small dash of vibrant orange counteracts a much larger portion of cool color such as green. Colors should be balanced so that stimulating warm colors do not overpower soothing cool colors.

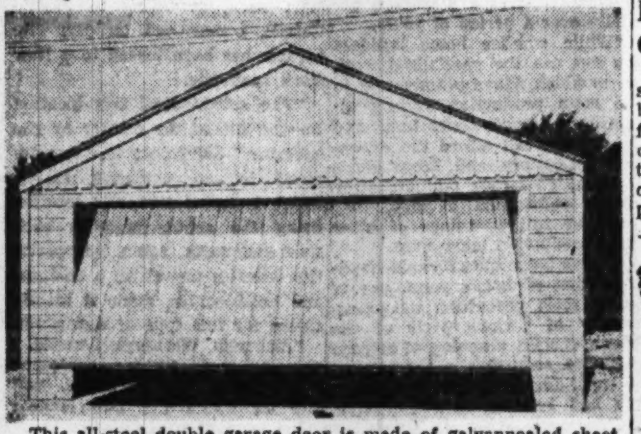
Folding glass, to eliminate the narrow rear vision strip formerly necessary in convertible automobile top construction has been developed by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. Used for the first time on the new Hudson convertible brougham, the development permits the same full-vision rear view as in stock model cars. Formed of a special plate glass-plastic sandwich, the glass folds just like an accordion on a ¾-inch plastic joint connection, when the top is lowered.



This all-steel double garage door is made of galvannealed sheet steel for rust protection, providing a uniformly coated surface as a clinging base for paint. It is an overhead receding (track) type, manufactured by the Detroit Steel Products Co., and available through the firm's local branch in the Tower Building.

GRIME-HUNGRY is the way a compact little dry cleaner pencil is described. This looks like nothing more than a piece of chalk with one finished end. All you do is rub Johnny-On-the Spot on the grease or grime stain—both sides of the fabric—smooth the chalk-like cleaner in with the hard-finished end, leave it for a few minutes, brush off the excess powder—and zingo, the spot has vanished. You'll find it handy to put in your purse, desk drawer or glove compartment of the car because it's in a tiny tin container no larger than a lipstick.

EVERYTHING for breakfast and tea is found on the new toaster tray set called Toastess. On the hand-rubbed walnut tray is an automatic pop-up toaster, a brown and yellow pottery bell to keep the toast hot, three plates, divided jam jar, sugar shaker and cinnamon shaker. A smaller version called Toastette has the toaster, tray, toast bell and two plates.

GERMS are killed, it is claimed, and unpleasant odors removed with an electronic air sanitizer called Air-Tron. The unit has a self-contained transformer that changes 110 volts, 60-cycle alternating current to the correct voltage to operate a special tube and germ killing ultra-ray light. It also has a small controlled amount of ozone to rid the air of unpleasant odors. Air-Tron serves as a soothing night light while it is busy with its germ-killing. Operation costs for 24 hours is said to be only ½-cent at average electric rates.

FOGGING of bathroom mirrors, kitchen windows and windshields can be prevented with a chemically treated cloth called Clearsite. One application is effective up to a month and one cloth will last for a year or more.

SOMEONE is always leaving the water bottle in the refrigerator half empty. Answer to the thirsty is a gallon glass jug that fits on its side in the refrigerator and doesn't need to be removed when you fill your glass. Take it out only when you are refilling it. Gay red plastic has been used in the cap and faucet of the Cold Katy Jug.

GOOD GIFT is a chunky note block of 500 sheets fitted in a green or red leather cover with a gold mechanical pencil attached. Left by the telephone, it will be mighty convenient to jot down notes. You can get these monogrammed.

DRAINBOARD that doesn't live up to its name is a nuisance with water collecting in puddles. If yours is that obstinate, substitute it with Drain-A-Tray gracefully surved to carry the water down to a lip that hangs over the edge of the sink. This lip is designed to hold the tray level if you want an even surface for cutting fruit and mixing drinks or a catch-all for the waffle batter drip. The ebony plastic is resistant to acids and stains.

Hospital, College Groups To Meet Here

Conventions scheduled for this week in Washington include a meeting of the Maryland, District, Delaware Hospital Association and the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities.

About 600 hospital administrators are expected at the eighth annual meeting of the three-State hospital association, to be held Monday and Tuesday in the Hotel Statler.

Guest speakers at the meeting will include Joseph G. Norby of Milwaukee, president of the American Hospital Association; the Rev. Edmond A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, and Dr. William G. Torpey, personnel consultant with the Navy Department here.

The Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities will meet Tuesday through Thursday, with headquarters at the Willard Hotel.

About 600 delegates, including deans and presidents of schools all over the country, are expected at the convention, whose theme will be, "The Report of the President's Commission on Higher Education."

General sessions of the convention will meet at 10 a. m. each day in the Washington Hotel. Speakers Tuesday will be J. L. Morrill, president of the University of Minnesota; Lewis W. Jones, president of Arkansas University, and General Omar Bradley.

Speakers Wednesday will be Robert Huse, director of the Overseas Information Bureau of ECA; David Meeker, director of education for the Dearborn Motors Corporation; Dr. Francis J. Brown, of the American Council on Education.

Speakers Thursday will be: James O'Brien, manpower director of the National Security Resources Board; Marquis Childs, newspaper columnist; Thomas Cooper, dean of Agriculture at the University of Kentucky.

The National Catholic Educational Association will hold a business meeting Wednesday and Thursday at the Mayflower Hotel, with about 100 superintendents of Catholic elementary and high schools participating.

Extension to Aid New Subdivisions Along Parkway

Opening of the extension of the George Washington Memorial Parkway between Key Bridge and Lorcom lane in North Arlington, expected next spring, will hasten development of several new subdivisions in the area, it was indicated yesterday.

Grading of the new parkway is nearly completed. It runs nearly parallel between Lee Highway and the Potomac River to Lorcom Lane, which crosses Military rd. and Old Dominion rd. about 1 mile to the west.

The extension will give such subdivisions as Bellevue Forest, Riverwood, Woodmont, Beechwood Hills and the country club area of North Arlington an express highway to Memorial Bridge via Lorcom Lane and the Parkway. Motor traffic along these highways will greatly relieve the heavy traffic on Lee Highway.

Bellevue Forest is typical of the subdivisions of new homes rising in that area. More than 50 better-type homes have already been erected in the 200-acre wooded tract, with another 100 sites available.

Baltimore Firm Gets Capitol Remodeling

A Baltimore building firm, Consolidated Engineering Co., has been awarded a cost-plus contract for remodeling at the Capitol. The contract calls for reconstruction of the roof over the Senate wing of the Capitol and remodeling of portions of the Senate Chamber.

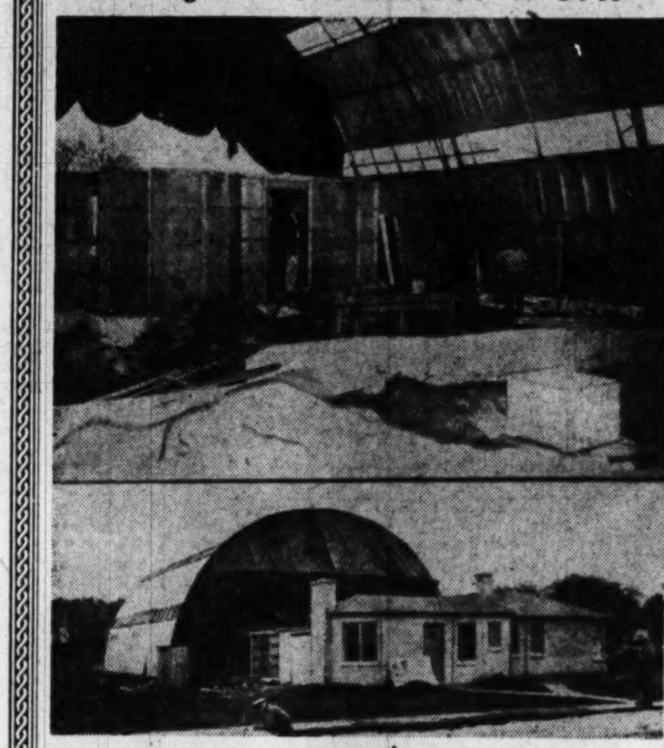
Home Building Hangar Makes Inside Job of Outdoor Work



This home builder hangar, a huge, mobile canopy made of metal and glass, was devised by Contractor Caesar Marconi of Chicago so his workmen could continue building houses despite bad weather. The shelter, 100 feet long, 60 feet wide at the base and 30 feet high, is large enough to cover two home sites. It is mounted on eight solid steel wheels, so tractors can move it to the next stop. on the assembly line.

By William J. Conway
Associated Press Newsfeatures

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—A cold rain fell all day—but it didn't stop work on two houses.

Members of the construction crew went to work at the usual hour and worked until the regular quitting time. Their materials, tools and clothing were dry. To them it was just another eight hours of productive effort.

The workmen were protected by a home building hangar, a huge, mobile canopy made of metal and glass. The structure is the brain child of Caesar Marconi, a contractor. He devised it because he got fed up with delays caused by bad weather.

The arch-roofed hangar is 100 feet long, 60 feet wide at the base and 30 feet high. The steel frame is covered with sheets of aluminum. Long windows admit light. Curtains of canvas cover both ends.

The shelter is large enough to cover two home sites. It is mounted on eight solid steel wheels. When the outside work on two houses is done, two tractors pull the hangar to the next stop on the housing assembly line.

Marconi plans to increase the length of the hangar to 200 feet to cover four adjacent sites at one time. He also plans to use heaters to keep the inside temperature at 40 degrees during the winter.

Marconi, 38, a former G. I., regards the hangar as insurance against the loss of three months of working time in the cold, wet Northern winter.

"The workers like it," he says. "They're out of the wind, rain and snow. It's just like working in a factory."

6.5 Acre Site Will Be Sold At Auction

A 6½-acre building site at Virginia ave., F st., New Hampshire ave. and Rock Creek Parkway nw., one of the last remaining undeveloped properties in the downtown Washington area, will be sold at auction Tuesday at 2 p.m., in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel, according to an announcement by Joseph P. Day, Inc., agents.

The property is owned by the Washington Gas Light Co. and was used until May of last year for a manufacturing plant. As agents for the power company, the Day organization has designated Adam A. Weschler & Son, of Washington, as auctioneers for the sale.

The property is considered to be ripe for development. It is within walking distance of land the Government has acquired for construction of a new Navy Department Building; the Federal Reserve Building, Public Health Service Building and many other Government projects.

The property consists of six tracts of various shapes, traversed by 26th and 27th sts. and H and G sts. While it is zoned to permit industrial construction, it could be developed for residential or other purposes without requiring rezoning.

Tile Production Reaches All-Time High Figure

New York, Nov. 6.—Output of clay floor and wall tile reached an all-time high in August, A. R. McMannis, chairman of the Tile Council of America, announced today.

Production during August totaled 9,051,000 square feet, 20 per cent greater than in the preceding month and 18 per cent greater than in August, 1947, he said.

Exhibit to Aid 'Kilmer Fund'

Folks who inspect the new Lustron home in downtown Washington will be doing Dorothy Kilmer a favor. Miss Kilmer, you'll remember, is the young hat check girl accidently shot by two rookie policemen playing with a pistol in their off-duty hours. It is feared she will need hospitalization for years to come.

Carlton Construction Co., Lustron dealers in this area, will give the proceeds of the 25-cent admission charge to view the Lustron home to District Liner Bill Gold's "Dorothy Kilmer Fund."

The unique prefab is located at New Hampshire ave. and Rock Creek Parkway, near Watergate Inn.

California Votes Against Low-Rent State Housing

Sacramento, Calif., Nov. 6.—California voters have soundly rejected a proposed amendment to the State constitution which would have created a State housing agency and permitted financing of low-rent housing units built by the State.

The opposition to the public housing measure garnered 1,507,008 votes against 786,449 for the program, with returns complete from most of California's 16,801 precincts.

The proposal, had it passed, would have resulted in the erection of 100,000 low-rent homes. Opposing the measure were builders, realtors, several veterans' organizations and several political groups.

U. S. Aids Prefab Concerns

Government aid to manufacturers of prefabricated homes, enacted by the special summer session of Congress, has found its first recipient. Reliance Homes, Inc., of Philadelphia, will produce 230 homes, with a short-term loan insured by the Federal Housing Administration under Section 609 of the Housing Act of 1948.

The loan covers approximately 90 per cent of the manufacturer's cost, less profit. The 230 homes will be purchased by two builders, each of whom will erect 115 of the structures at separate subdivisions on the outskirts of Philadelphia.

It is estimated that the 230 houses can be produced in the factory in approximately three months. They will be one-story, of light gauge steel, and with five rooms, consisting of three bedrooms, a bath, kitchen and dinette and living-room combined. Each will have a utility storage room and will be heated with a gas, forced air system. All inside walls will be either papered or painted, and the houses when erected on the sites will be furnished with all utilities, streets and sidewalks.

Use Lamp to Find Short Circuits

When an electric fuse blows out, the cause can be found by screwing a 15 or 25 watt light bulb into the socket which held the fuse. If the bulb fails to light, it means that too many appliances are on that circuit; rewiring is needed.

If the bulb does light, it indicates a potential short-circuit and fire hazard. With someone watching the bulb in the fuse box, turn on all lights and appliances. Then turn them off one by one. When the bulb goes out, it is safe to replace the fuse. The short-circuit is in the last appliance disconnected. Remove this for repair. If the bulb in the fuse box will not go out, an electrician is needed immediately to find the short-circuit.

Revolving Post Keeps Pans Handy

Where space permits, a unique idea for storing kitchen pots and pans in easy reach is to hang them on a revolving post housed in an 18-inch-square floor-to-ceiling cabinet near the kitchen stove.

A round wooden column or post, 6 inches in diameter and 4 inches shorter than the distance from floor to ceiling, is used. Steel spindles are driven into the center of each end of the post, projecting about 1½ inches. This provids an axle on which the post will revolve. The spindles are inserted in holes bored in 2-inch wooden blocks attached to floor and ceiling. Utensils are hung on hooks screwed into the post.

Further convenience is added if the inside of the cabinet door is equipped with racks for pan lids.

This storage idea is especially practical when converting an unequipped room into a kitchen, as it obviates the need for spacious cabinets.

Accurate World Map Needed

Philadelphia, Nov. 6 (AP). — A State Department adviser on geography said today that no accurate map of the world ever has been made and that none is yet possible.

S. Whittemore Boggs told the American Philosophical Society:

"World maps and encyclopedias gloss over vast areas of ignorance because in every field of mappable knowledge there are millions of square miles concerning which information is a complete blank or extremely inadequate.

"We dare no longer regard this situation complacently. For the first time in history there are world problems and the aggregate of the world's knowledge is insufficient even for present operations.

"Unless there is honest, intelligent effort to fill in the principal gaps in encyclopedic regional data about the world and its resources and peoples, each nation will continue to formulate policy on the basis of its own fraction of the adequate sum total of world knowledge."

To remedy thesituation, Boggs advocated the immediate compilation of an "Atlas of Ignorance" in which each map would disclose the area in which the world's total knowledge in one subject is most deficient. Accompanying text would indicate the unsolved problems.

500 Miles Long

Yes, There Is U. S. 'City' of 25 Million

HOW would you like to live in a city 500 miles long, up to 60 miles wide, containing more than 25 million inhabitants?

There ain't no such city, you say?

Yes there is!

It hasn't a name and it never will have one. But if you live on or adjacent to the north Atlantic seaboard you probably are unconsciously a part of this vast municipality.

To end the mystery, this "city" stretches through a virtually unbroken built-up territory from north of Boston to south of Washington. It is in nine States and the District of Columbia and it constantly is growing.

This super-metropolis includes Boston, Fall River, New Bedford, Lowell, Lawrence, Springfield, Worcester, Providence, Bridgeport, Hartford, Waterbury, New Haven, New York, Newark, Jersey City, Paterson, the Oranges, Elizabeth, Trenton, Philadelphia, Camden, Wilmington, Baltimore and Washington, in addition to scores of smaller cities and towns.

Here's why: Most American cities have restrictive city limits, sometimes almost to the point of strangulation. In some instances, as many persons live outside the limits as within, although the lives and destinies of all are bound up with the same territorial, business and economic unit.

Many suburban areas decline to consolidate with their big city neighbors for a variety of reasons—schools, taxes, politics, etc.

The Census Bureau, however, acknowledges that territories bigger than cities exist by establishing "Metropolitan Districts" with definitely defined borders for scores of communities.

So, if you start north of Boston and roll for 500 miles through Massachuetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, the District of Columbia and Virginia, you will be traveling through a dozen Metropolitan Districts whose borders are contiguous.

The Census Bureau has just announced new population estimates for the 48 States. A highlight revealed was the tremendous growth of the Pacific Coast States since 1940. The bureau didn't say anything about the super-city in the East, but a commentator, in checking figures on growths and shifts, suddenly discovered that such a place really existed.

With traffic conditions what they are, it would take you two or possibly three days to go through it in an automobile.

Hollywood Short Tells 'How Not To Build a House'

A motion picture short entitled "How Not to Build a House" is now being produced in Hollywood. An estimated 36 million persons will view the film after its release in the early part of 1949, according to the National Association of Home Builders, sponsors.

Stressing the pitfalls awaiting the amateur builder who tries to erect his own home without professional help, the short subject will show that methods used by reputable builders are streamlined, up-to-date and keyed for economical production.

A number of well-known developments in Los Angeles will be used in making the picture and regular mechanics on the job will be seen performing the tasks in the background.

8000 Prizes to Spur Czech Building

Prague, Nov. 6 (AP).—The Czechoslovak Construction Corporation, newly nationalized center of the building industry, is promising 8000 prizes to its 150,000 employes in an attempt to speed up house building.

The corporation said the building industry failed to meet its objectives in the two-year-plan because it was directed by private enterprise.

The biggest problem was to eliminate absenteeism, the corporation said.

It promised among its prizes an automobile, 62 motorcycles and 50 bicycles.

Bringing Your Home Up-to-Date:

Vapor Barrier Stops 'Sweating'

By David G. Bareuther

Associated Press Real Estate Reporter

NEW YORK, . . —Modern heating plants, humidifying the air in tightly insulated homes, have brought forth a new problem of condensation.

Installing insulation to produce a vapor barrier

Excessive condensation has been known to cause paint to peel—inside and outside a house—timbers to rot, and ceilings to fall.

Many studies of this problem have been made by Government agencies and university engineering departments.

Architects and builders now combat condensation with vapor barriers in walls, ceilings and floors. Insulation batts today commonly come fitted with a vapor barrier surface on one side—the side to face the inside of a house. Frequently this is a sheet of aluminum foil, which gives the insulating batt not only an airtight surface, but adds the advantage of reflective insulation to the blanket of fibrous material.

A vapor barrier should always be on or near the inside wall. This prevents the moist warm air of the interior of a home from reaching the cold surface of an outer wall where vapor will condense to water and begin serious damage.

The United States Department of Commerce last year published a report by Richard S. Dill on this problem of condensation. It said:

"Metal sheet or foil is practically a perfect vapor barrier if the joints between sheets are tight. Other vapor barriers, like paper specially treated with bituminous material, are adequate for most practical purposes."

However, it is important to put any vapor barrier in the right place. The Commerce Department report observes that "the impermeability of metal sheet is likely to cause condensation when that material is used as external sheathing on building walls. It constitutes a vapor barrier in the wrong place—on the outside."

Ventilation of the stud spaces of such walls has been found to be the most practicable expedient.

It is because of the cold outer wall problem that ordinary building paper, which allows moisture to pass through, has been found superior to tar or asphalt coated papers between sheathing and siding. If vapor has already penetrated a wall, cannot pass through, condenses to moisture and cannot be evaporated by ventilation, then the vapor barrier on the exterior is to blame.

Even without artificial humidification in a house, considerable water vapor is generated naturally. Cooking, laundry and bathing increase the humidity in a house to a high degree. This vapor spreads in all directions, creates a pressure of its own, and passes through wallpaper and plaster.

Combined with properly insulated walls to prevent a cold plaster, and with a weathertight exterior, such a complete vapor barrier could insure lasting durability. Wood that is kept perfectly dry decays slowly, if at all.

There is a popular belief that if a home is properly humidified in cold weather, slight clouds or frost should form on windows. This theory has been challenged by experts who contend that humidification often has been overdone.

Local Builders Plan Economy Home Tests

CONSTRUCTION was started here this week on two experimental "economy houses" under auspices of the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington.

The project is to demonstrate what can be done locally in the low-cost housing field. The actual ground breaking followed months of study and research as to the most economical and efficient building methods.

The two dwellings will be built at 7103-05 Cabot st., District Heights, Md., by Miller & Miller.

If the houses meet with public approval, the building group hopes to stimulate similar construction on a mass basis. The two main obstacles to such a program previously has been lack of moderatelly priced suitable land and public apathy to many low cost housing schemes.

A detailed cost of construction will be made available to other builders to serve as a guide for future construction of similar homes.

One of the model homes will be a one-bedroom home, the other a two-bedroom. Sale prices will not be determined until construction has been completed. The association expects to open the homes by January, 1949, weather permitting.

Warehouse To Be Erected

Final plans for construction of a warehouse at Chillum, Md., are nearing completion by L. P. Steuart, Inc., owner. The architectural firm of Rinaudot & Mead has been retained.

Two Veterans Parlay Shoestring Into $4,500,000 Housing Project

By Lynne Brannen

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 6—Ever try to parlay a shoestring into a $4,500,000 housing project?

A couple of young Air Force veterans have done just that. They are James M. Folmar, 31, and Henry I. Flinn, 29, engineer-architects and jacks of all trades.

Not content with one near-miracle, they're now working on a formula which Folmar predicts will mean prewar quality homes at prewar prices. But right now their main interest is a rising suburban city here which they have named "Cloverland."

When finished this 200-acre development will contain 539 housing units with accommodations for 3000 persons and a complete business district.

It started two years ago when the two college fraternity brothers—"Flormat" and "Flint," as they call each other—decided to team up and help lick the housing shortage.

They didn't have much experience in this line or even enough green stuff to build their own homes, much less a project such as they were talking about. What they lacked in cash, they made up for in audacity.

"Flint" sat down and drafted the basic plans. Then "Flormat," who majored in civil engineering in college, got out his slide rule and started translating them into figures.

Ready to tackle the financing, they bundled up their papers and went to see Lamar Kelly, former State Senator and head of the All-State Life Insurance Co.'s loan division.

The biggest shock came after they mentioned the $4,500,000 loan and Kelly nonchalantly replied, "Why not?"

"That's when trouble really caught up with us," Folmar confided. "There we were, practically unknown in the contracting business with no equipment, no office, no telephone and no trade accounts.

Folmar and Flinn didn't let that bother them, however. Instead they started dogging the trail of War Assets Administration sales over the country to line up surplus heavy equipment.

The Cloverland project is more than half finished with approximately 200 apartment units and 30 homes already occupied. Another 94 homes are being completed at the rate of about one a day.

"We're beginning to look to the future," Flinn said. "There's not too much competition now, but we want to be ready when it does come."

To that end he and his partner have their sights on a three-bedroom house of prewar quality for $7500. Folmar predicts they will have such a home on the market within a year despite high costs.

Life in a Day

There are insects which hatch and die of old age within a single day.

Let's Talk About Flowers

Plant Lily Bulbs Before Soil Freezes

By Alfred Putz

FOR BEST results plant lily bulbs in the fall. The one exception to this rule is the madonna lily (Lilium candidum), which should be planted in August or early September.

All the others usually are put in the ground just before the soil freezes for the winter, but this period is dictated by the late arrival of imported bulbs and not by any cultural requirement. In fact, the earlier they are planted in the fall the better for them so that they will have a chance to become fully settled in their new location before the arrival of continuous cold weather.

Coral Lily First to Bloom

Careful selection of the species will provide flowers in an almost continuous procession from early June until October. The coral lily (Lilium pumilum or tenuifolium) heads the parade, carrying early in June graceful red flowers like an inverted chandelier on plants standing 2 feet all. It is excellent in the foreground of the border or in the rock garden, but should be planted in little groups for best effect. It likes sun and a good soil, with the bulbs covered 4 inches deep. Although it is not a long-lived lily, gardeners can easily provide for a continuous presentation by sowing seeds which will flower the second year.

Late June contributes the showy Canadian or meadow lily (L. canadense), of which there is a yellow and a red-flowered strain, both spotted lightly with brown. It resents lime, prefers a quite moist soil and a little shade. The creeping bulbs are covered 5 inches deep.

Late June and early July present several forms belonging to the upright flowering type offered under the name umbellatum. Their colors vary from soft gold through orange and red to rich crimson and most of them are spotted with a darker color. This type is especially easy to grow. Give it full sun and cover the bulbs 5 inches deep.

With the arrival of July the regal lily (L. regale) makes its debut. Its large trumpet-shaped blooms, yellow at the base and tinted rosy purple on the outside, except in the pure white form, have a delightful rich fragrance. It grows from 3 to 5 feet tall, is impartial to sun or shade and does not object to lime. It is easy to grow from seed, blooming the second year, but does not reach perfection until the bulbs are about 4 years old.

The sunset lily (L. pardalinum giganteum) shares its blooming season with the regal. It likes a loamy soil with plenty of leafmold and should have its bulbs covered 4 inches deep. The flowers with their gracefully reflexed petals are rich scarlet on the upper third of the petals, with a bright gold ground spotted liberally with crimson making up the lower two thirds. It grows from 5 to 6 feet tall.

Mid-July ushers in the glorious display of the swamp or American Turk's cap lily (L. superbum). This resembles the preceding in many ways, but the flowers shade from red-orange at the tips to golden orange toward the center, with rich brown spots adding an interesting touch. The flowers want sun, but the base prefers to be shaded and a mulch of leafmold or a living ground cover over the soil favors good growth. Cover the bulbs with from 6 to 8 inches of soil.

July and August Types

The yellow show lily (L. Henryi) follows in late July and makes a good show for several weeks. The orange-yellow petals have a green stripe through the center of each and there are a few chocolate brown spots. It likes a rich and rather heavy soil with the very large bulbs covered from 8 to 10 inches deep.

Willmottiae (Davidi var. Willmottiae to botanists) reigns from late July into August, although some commercial strains bloom earlier. It is a slender, graceful plant for sandy loam soil and prefers full sun. It stands from 3 to 6 feet tall and has showy orange-scarlet flowers, with small black spots. Cover the bulbs 8 inches deep.

The tiger lily (L. tigrinum) is an August bloomer well known for its nodding orange-red flowers densely spotted with purplish black. Cover the bulbs 10 inches deep.

Formosanum, sometimes called dream or new wonder lily, finishes the season with its 4 to 6-foot stalks, each bearing a large crown of big, trumpet-shaped white flowers shaded faint chocolate on the outside. One of the easiest to grow from seed, it has become very popular. Cover the bulbs 10 inches deep.

Prefabricated House And Lot for $5750

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 6.—National Homes Corporation, prefabricated home manufacturing firm, has opened for inspection a two-bedroom, no-basement bungalow selling, with lot, for $5750. A spokesman said anyone making $40 per week can finance the $35 per month payments, after a down payment of $300.

The house is approximately 29 by 24 feet. Heating is by oil heaters. The house is erected on a concrete slab. Bedrooms are 8 by 12 feet and 10 by 12 feet. Living room of the Thrift House is 12 by 16 feet. The floor plan includes a combination kitchen-dinette, large utility room and complete bath.

Drafts Prevented

By filling exterior walls with mineral wool insulation, the inside surface is kept warmer and this tends to prevent drafts caused by warm air flowing rapidly to cold wall surfaces.

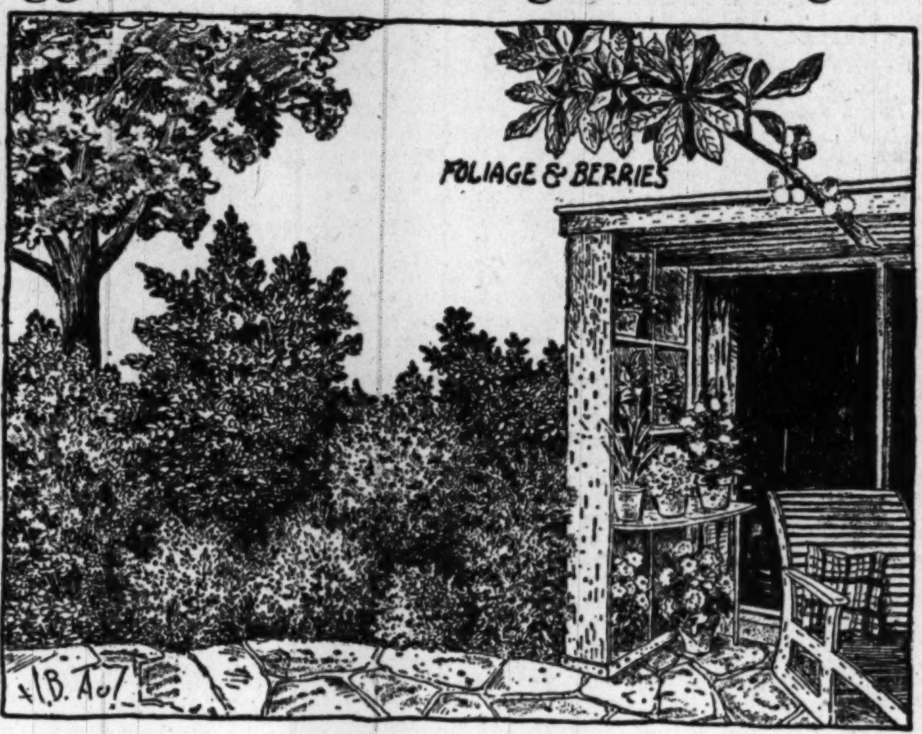
Bayberry Suggested For Foliage Planting

By Henry B. Aul

THE NORTHERN bayberry (Myrica penslyvanica) is a shrub worthy of greater use in both seashore and inland gardens. It associates as naturally with the sweet fern, wild rose and viburnum of the juniper hillside as it does with the blueberry, inkberry, bearberry and pitch pine of the sand barrens.

Bayberry is at home with ferns in the light shade of the gray birch grove along a slow moving stream, in low meadow land and on gentle slopes. The moundlike growth of the plant is as attractive against outcropping rocks as it is behind dunes.

The northern bayberry is sometimes listed as Myrica caroliniensis but pensylvanica is the more recently and correctly applied generic name. It should not be confused with Myrica ceritera, the southern waxmyrtle. The latter grows naturally to New Jersey but no farther north. It has evergreen leaves, lance-shaped and narrower than the northern bayberry and without the slight waxy bloom which gives the bayberry foliage an attractive gray-green color. The gray, waxy fruits of waxmyrtle are smaller than the better-known bayberries.



Northern bayberry grouped with other deciduous and evergreen shrubs in a terrace planting

Leaves Closely Packed

LEAVES of the northern bayberry are obovate—broader toward the tip than at the base. They grow two to four inches long and a half to one and a half inches across. An alternate arrangement along the stiff, erect branches appears to give way to a whorled arrangement toward the tips of the branches, and a well foliaged plant displays these closely packed whorls of leaves right down to the soil level.

The summer color is a dark, dull green and it is this color, with the good substance of the leaves, that makes the bayberry a handsome foliage plant to use alone or in combination with other shrubs, trees or herbacious materials in garden and home ground plantings.

The foliage persists until late fall or early winter, and when it drops, the waxy gray bayberries, crowded close along the dark stems, contribute their full ornamental quality to the plant. They appear in September and October and persist through the winter. They also last well when cut for indoor arrangements.

The berries have the aromatic fragrance which they contribute to bayberry candles. The leaves when crushed give the same aromatic scent. As with the hollies which combine so well with bayberry, it is necessary to plant both male and female plants to be assured of an annual crop of berries.

In the wind and sunswept seashore garden and on the dry hillsides, bayberry seldom grows more than six feet high, and frequently plants only two to three feet in height quickly attain the mature, well finished appearance characteristic of the plant. Planted in the light shade of a birch grove and at the margin of the more heavily shaded woods, it may reach for light and extend its height to 8 feet.

Regardless of the height it grows, bayberry generally develops a good quality of foliage right to the bottom of the plant. This means that the plant faces down, attractively, rather than becoming leggy. The foliage is neither coarse nor fine but of medium texture, suitable for combining with other shrubs and trees.

IT IS a particularly appropriate choice to use as a transition plant between deciduous flowering shrubs and evergreen shrubs and trees that are grouped around the garden terrace or garden shelter at the house entrance and in the foundation planting and other locations that receive close inspection at all times of the year.

Plants to group effectively with the bayberry can include those having good flowers and autumn foliage coloration. The high bush blueberry, beach plum, sand myrtle, amelanchier, chokeberry and hawthorn associate naturally with it in seashore plantings. Rhododendron, azaleas, mountain laurel and the andromedos are flowering evergreen shrubs to consider using as companion plants.

Both the large and small-leaved hollies, the evergreen and deciduous barberries, shrub roses, viburnums, the flowering quinces, and sweet pepper bush are in keeping with the substantial character of the bayberry. The upright and spreading types of juniper and yew and the dwarf forms of pine are evergreen trees to complete a large planting.

New Model Building Codes Promise Big Cost Slash

AS MUCH as 15 per cent can be lashed from present building costs in every community that adopts the new model building codes developed after four years of work by the Building Officials Conference of America, sponsors claim.

Two codes have been prepared by the conference, composed of 350 municipal officials representing 80 per cent of the U. S. population. The basic code is a huge 445-page document designed for big cities. The other is an abridgement of 114 pages for use in cities under 35,000 population, and applies only to buildings less than 40 feet high.

Construction costs can be cut through use of new codes because they permit new materials and construction techniques barred by many existing regulations, conference officials maintain.

Excessive and unnecessary requirements for structural strength which add to costs are eliminated; however, the codes do set up minimum strength and fire-resistance requirements.

Particular attention is given to wall construction in the new codes which state that walls in one?and two- family houses must resist fire for 45 minutes; those in multi-family buildings for 90 minutes. Although some cities require an outside wall to be 12 inches thick, the model codes state that 8 inches is sufficient for homes. The codes permit spacing wall studs as much as 4 feet apart in some types of construction, instead of the 16 inches now generally required. Use of thinner sheathing is permitted. Where some codes rule out any wall finish except plaster, the model codes allow any type of construction which meets the fire-resistance requirements.

Other cost-saving provisions allowed are: flexible insulated electrical wiring instead of expensive metal conduit; smaller sizes of copper and brass and water pipe; elimination of plumbing traps between house and sewer; lighter-weight roofs and floors.

Since the model codes contain performance rather than specification requirements, they would be up-to-date at all times and recognize new materials developed to meet the performance standards. This would eliminate costly code revision now necessary to allow use of new materials.

New products would be tested in recognized independent laboratories at the expense of the manufacturer, instead of at municipal expense.

Ladies' Aid

Keep 'Em Shining

By Vivian Brown
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WAX has a multitude of uses in the home. It is used on everything from lamp shades to woodwork.

In order to get the most out of waxes—paste, liquid and cream—you should understand how they can best serve you.

While the paste or liquid buffing waxes give wood a lovely finish, usually they cannot be used successfully on asphalt base floors, rubber tile floors, rubber stair treads or anything else made of rubber. The solvent may affect such surfaces.

Most self-polishing waxes will dry to a shine without rubbing. Housewives often prefer this no-rub wax on kitchens and bathroom floors where frequent cleaning is required. This wax can be used on varnished or painted wood floors, but it is not recommended for furniture or woodwork.

Furniture, woodwork and enameled surfaces take to cream wax, usually because it contains special cleansing agents which quickly remove dirt and finger marks. This film of wax can be brought to a luster by rubbing slightly.

A single coat of wax often will add immeasurably to the life of a varnish or lacquer finish on floors. Linoleum manufacturers say that waxed linoleum lasts from six to ten times longer than unwaxed linoleum.

Those beautiful shining tables you've noticed in antique windows are kept lustrous with wax. You can secure the same high-gloss finish on your furniture at home if you will wax it often. Besides you will protect it from stains and water spots.

Leather desk sets, books, picture frames, radiator covers, brass or copper, wall brackets or ornaments all can be spruced up and protected with wax.

HOME HINTS

Don't open windows too wide at night. Fresh air while sleeping is important, but too low a temperature is no longer thought desirable for health. A well-ventilated room at 50 or 60 degrees F. is cold enough.

Be careful about the design of your radiator covers; if radiators are too well hidden, they will not give good service. There must be sufficient openings to allow air circulation. Indeed, any radiator enclosure cuts down efficiency of the radiator, since it reduces the surface directly exposed to the air.

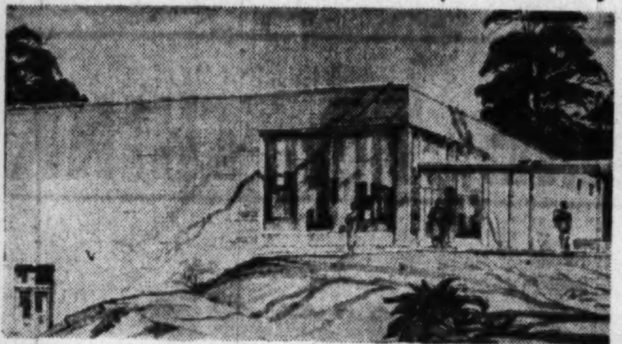
But don't confuse radiators in enclosures with convector units. Any standard radiator may be concealed in a cabinet permitting the greater percentage of heat to be conveyed to the room by convection (air wiping over its surfaces), which means the cabinet must provide enough open spaces for air to move in. But better results usually are obtained with specially designed units called convectors, which permit a free circulation of a larger volume of air at moderate temperatures.

Convectors are always enclosed, and the heating element, with a large percentage of surface, usually is shallow in depth and placed low in the enclosure—to create a sort of chimney effect therein. The air enters the enclosure near the floor line just below the heating element, is heated moderately in passing through the core, and is delivered to the room through an opening near the top of the enclosure. Since air can enter only at the floor line where the cooler air of the room lies, it is constantly withdrawn and replaced by warmer air.

The way you paint your radiators counts. Not the color; oil paint in any shade will give about the same results. But a finish coat of metallic paint (which fashion has wrongheadedly decreed for radiators) changes the character of the surface and tends to reduce the amount to heat emitted by radiation. Use flat paint. No paint has a noticeable effect on the heat given off by convection.

Put door seals on bedroom doors so cold air from open windows at night will not penetrate the halls and other rooms. Shut off radiators or close warm-air grilles where heat is not desired.

New Food Market Opens Wednesday



New $250,000 addition to Greenbelt, Md., shopping center

A new $250,000 food market will open for business Wednesday at Greenbelt, Md., located in the shopping center, on land leased from the Public Housing Administration.

As with other Greenbelt commercial ventures, the new food store is cooperative, with townspeople buying shares to furnish capital to build and operate the project.

Ross & Walton of Hyattsville, Md., were architects; George C. Martin, contractor, and R. E. Robertson, with Greenbelt Consumer Services, aided in designing the interior.

The modern food market has been planned for efficiency and convenience of shoppers. It will be completely self-service, with packaged meats and other goods. A spokesman for Greenbelt Consumer Services, which will operate the market, said it had 8000 potential customers in its immediate trading area, plus others from surrounding regions.

More Salt in a Raw Wound

Gallup Ribbed for Film Pre-Test, Too

By Richard L. Coe

I AM GOING to give myself, this morning, the vast pleasure of rubbing salt into the bleeding wounds of Dr. George Gallup.

I have used this same salt before on Dr Gallup, but never have I had so fertile an opportunity.

One of the real hates of my life (which is, I admit, fraught with prejudices) is Dr. Gallup's gadget in his Profile Preview theater in Hollywood where his Audience Research, Inc., protests movies, as the "scientific" term has it.

This diabolical contraption is worked by willing guinea pigs whose manipulations of a small dial to "neutral," "dull," "very dull," "like" and "like very much" decide what movies and parts of same will be released to paying guinea pigs. The movie makers have fallen for this gadget and other ARI means of determining what the public will buy in the way of movies.

The result, of course, is that the movie moguls only invest in The Sure Thing. If the guinea pigs decide that a title is dull, that a description of a projected picture is uninteresting, said title or story is, Q. E. D., worthless junk. The result is that the film makers try novelty very seldom, lift bits and pieces which have always worked before, follow trends and then wonder—particularly recently—why the public doesn't ante up.

What Are They Like?

ONLY this week Dr. Gallup elaborated on a criticism he has made before and in this I am certain he's quite right. The film people, he said to a Variety reporter, overlook a great source of revenue in not working on the over-30 age bracket. A survey of his disclosed that 25 per cent or less of the people over 30 go to the movies once a week or more. "Relatively few persons attend the movies with any regularity after the age of 35."

But I hardly think the movie makers need any fancy statistics to tell them this, unless, of course, they're blind.

DR. GALLUP
. . . his gadget indicates 'The Sure Thing'

The point is that the whole method of testing story appeal on people before a picture is made and the notion of simply cutting when the guinea pigs get bored is patently constricting and lifeless.

What are these story outlines like? Here's one:

"When a wealthy society doctor is murdered, the police know a beautiful girl, easily identified, murdered him. But when the girl turns out to have an identical twin sister, the police don't know which one is guilty and which to arrest. A young doctor analyzes their personalities, falls in love with one and discovers which is the murderess."

This story wound up as "The Dark Mirror" for Olivia de Havilland because the guinea pigs said they'd like to see such a film.

How About This?

BUT, as Writer Robert Shaw once pointed out, how about the chances of this outline?

"An unglamorous housewife meets by chance a middle-aged doctor while on a shopping tour in the city. They are attracted to each other. They arrange to meet again and they innocently enjoy talking, lunching and seeing movies together. Falling deeply in love, she agrees to a night rendezvous. When a coincidence prevents this, he leaves for another country and she returns to her dull and very decent husband."

You can imagine what the guinea pigs would say about such a yarn. Who cares?

Yet, if you saw "Brief Encounter," you know that it made a splendid film and that its modest cost paid its way, though most theaters in this country didn't ever show it.

Dr. Gallup isn't the only one in the business. Metro calls on Dr. Leo Handel's Motion Picture Research Bureau, which discovered that "The Three Musketeers" would get "a rousing welcome" and that "Green Dolphin Street" would make money. No one with bat sense would pay to be told that.

Can't Be Measured

SO I can't help hoping that the thrilling events of Tuesday night will be pondered long in Hollywood, that the executives recognize that thought, emotion and feeling are imponderables which simply cannot be measured.

As the history books will be telling our children, there is such a thing as honesty and determination which not even the slickest cynicism and mechanical perfection can overcome.

And it is this very cynicism and scientific dabbling in an art which is not a science that is losing those movie audiences of mature minds. Dr. Gallup's marvelous machines may measure the movie masses as dopes, but there are some things machines can't measure. Making a good movie is one of them and may Hollywood remember what happened to the man who built a better mousetrap.

Music in the Air

Good Turn for Children

By Paul Hume

NEXT Wednesday the children of Madison School, Falls Church, will enjoy a musical treat, made possible by the Washington local of the American Federation of Musicians.

Out of a fund known as the royalty and transcription fund of the federation, a woodwind quintet will be paid to play, and illustrate, the clarinet, bassoon, oboe, flute and French horn. These players are first chair members of the National Gallery Orchestra, and will play this highly unusual concert under the leadership of Rex Hinshaw, the clarinetist.

Until the Taft-Hartley Law made it illegal for record companies to pay royalties to the musicians' union, a large fund was built up as a result of James C. Petrillo's contracting with the manufacturers of recordings and transcriptions.

Out of this fund, Washington, like many other large communities, has benefited in free concerts. Union musicians have been paid regular union fees for engagements, and music has been sent to hospitals, institutions whose residents cannot attend concerts, and to many other places where live music had not previously penetrated.

Concert Here

LAST spring the royalty and transcription fund provided a concert in Constitution Hall, with an orchestra of over a hundred, and Gladys Swarthout as soloist. A gala band concert was given at the Watergate, and concerts at the National Gallery were subsidized out of the fund.

In addition to the woodwind concert this week at Madison School in Falls Church, Washingtonians will be given another free concert.

A large string orchestra, numbering about 40 players, will play in Washington' Cathedral on Thanksgiving evening. There, with Richard Dirksen as organist, Paul Callaway, organist of the cathedral and a member of the local union, will direct a superb program, free to the public, courtesy of the musicians' union.

Since the passage of the Taft-Hartley Law, no such royalty payments have been possible. Furthermore, the current ban on recordings cut into employment of musicians and eliminated any possible payments. But Petrillo and the major recording companies have recently reached a new agreement, which, if approved by the necessary Washington legal whizzes, will permit resumption of some form of royalty payments.

This is a thoroughly just arrangement. It is both fair and logical that a musician whose playing is perpetuated on a record should receive some benefit from continued sales and use of that record. Royalties so secured can now be spent to engage union musicians for the specific purpose of providing the public with further free concerts.

Repeal Possible

THE situation will be eased still further if, as seems probable, the new Congress repeals the Taft-Hartley Law. But in any case the way is clear for a resumption of recording on its former broad scale—the broadest in the history of the business—and for a corresponding accumulation of continuing royalties.

We commend the Federation of Musicians for its excellent record to date in providing music for veterans' and other hospitals, for open air programs and concerts of the finest kind of music. This week's program in Madison School is still another field, and one in which the musicians ought to lead strongly.

BONNY TWICE—YEARS APART: One of the sensations of the theater world 21 years ago was a play called "Burlesque" by George Manker Watters and Arthur Hopkins. In the principal roles of Bonny and Skid two players made the hits of the season, Ruby Stevens and Hal Skelly. Skelly died not many years later and the girl went on to Hollywood as Barbara Stanwyck. Filmed several times, "Burlesque" reappears Thursday on the Palace screen as a musical, "When My Baby Smiles At Me," with Betty Grable and Dan Dailey, jr., in the leads. Here are Betty as the latest Bonny and Barbara—a greater star now than ever—as the original

She Hit With 'Where's Charley?'

It's Still a Dream World for Slim Allyn

By George Tucker

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP).—A slim girl with long legs that swing straight from her hips is this season's most promising new star-in-the-making on Broadway.

She is Allyn McLerie, 21-year-old youngster pla ing opposite Dancer Ray Bolger in "Where's Cha ley?" a musical comedy based on Brandon Thom "Charley's Aunt."

For her singing, acting and dancing, the fir night critics gave Miss McLerie a daisy chain poetic valentines. The town's professionals, hea ed by Robert Morley (star and co-author of "E ward, My Son") poured into her dressing room.

"My Dear," cried Morley, "you were magnifice How I wished you were sitting with me so could have seen how lovely you were."

Very near to tears, she could only stare at celebrated actor and writer.

Dancing for 10 Years

A SUPPLE girl with dark hair and eyes change with her costume, Miss McLerie been dancing ballet since she was 11.

"I was born in Quebec, but that didn't make much of a Canadian. I came to Brooklyn wher was 4 months old and have grown there ever sin Like the tree."

She still studies ballet. She made her ba debut with the San Carlo Opera Company.

"Keeps me in trim."

How does a ballet dancer approach near-stard in a Broadway musical?

Four years ago she was an obscure nonentity the line of "On the Town," hit musical of 19 Sono Osato, the star, left the cast to go on a tran continental tour. The authors and the produc ran their eyes up and down the line, and plucke Miss McLerie as a possible substitute.

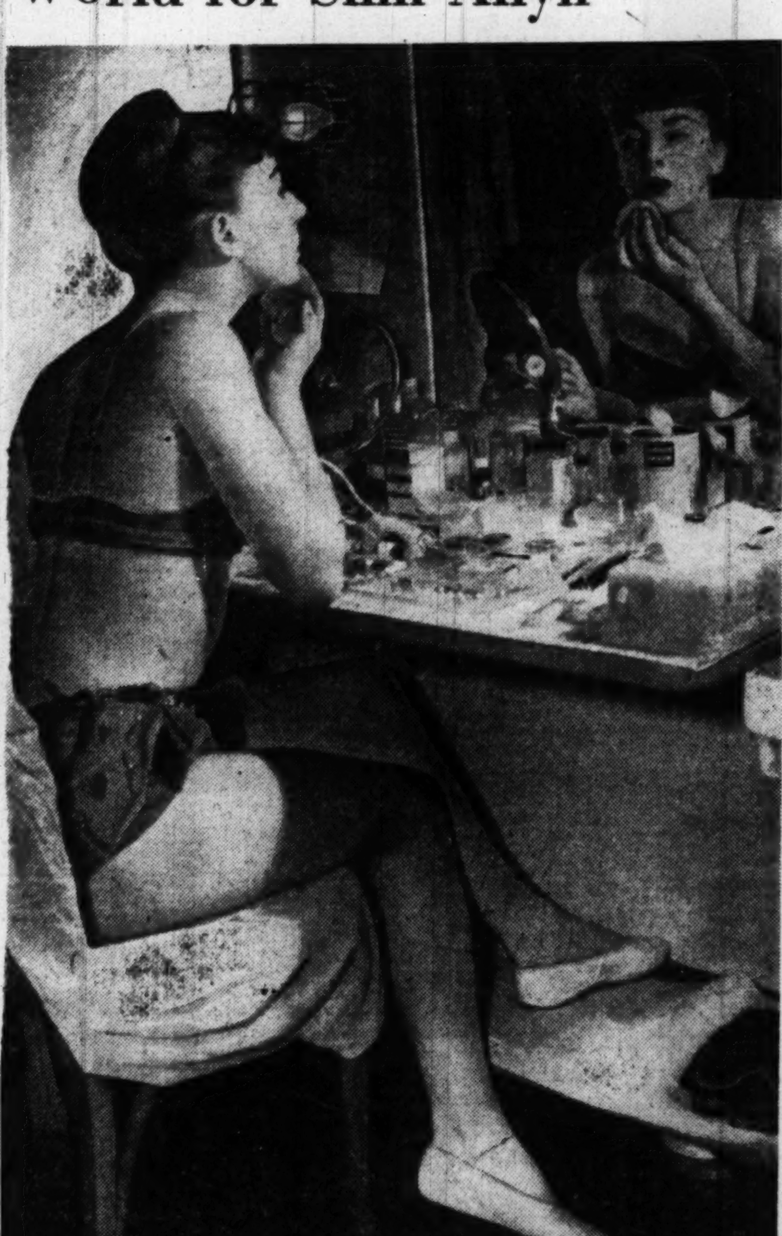
Among those impressed with her talents wa Adolph Green, a co-author of the play. Green's pleasure was so real that shortly afterward he and Miss McLerie went shopping together for a ring. They live in a three-room apartment in East 57th st.

There have been several minor roles since her 1944 break (she was the mute in Finian's Rainbow), but not until "Where's Charley?" was she given a name opening.

'Dream World'

SHE says she has been living "in a kind of dream world" since the musical opened a couple of weeks ago.

There are many who claim Broadway is a hard, stony road, but it would be difficult to convince Allyn McLerie that this is true.



Here is Allyn McLerie making up for her first turn in "Where's Charley?" at the St. James Theater in New York. Four years ago she was playing in the line of "On the Town." Now she's carrying the ball

Dewey Idea Had Analysts In Its Grip

By John Crosby

IT ILL behooves anyone in the newspaper business to point out the comic aspects in radio's coverage of the greatest upset in history. We were just as wrong, probably wronger, just as comic and maybe a little more so. Nevertheless, because it's my job to talk about radio, not newspapers, and—to crib a phrase from the victorious candidate—in the spirit of deepest humility—let's get on with the job.

I listened and looked at radio and television election coverage for roughly 12 hours, heard the rich, nourishing chomp of H. V. Kaltenborn and Fulton Lewis, jr., eating crow, and finally switched off the radio, possibly forever, at noon the next day after Kate Smith explained just why every one had been so dead wrong. (She wasn't sure exactly but she suspected it was because the President had invoked the help of God.)

Clung to Motions

A MIASMA of astonishment b gan to emanate like vapor, a most visibly, from Walter Winche to James A. Farley, starting abou 9, and increasing in density unti 11:15 a. m. the next day when Dewey conceded defeat. Nevertheless with due allowance for the genera surprise, the commentators—presumably experts—clung stubbornl to preconceived notions whic were being proved by the hour t be disastrously wrong.

This is somewhat understandable. These commentators without exception had crammed themselves for weeks with comment which began, or words to this effect: "Now that Dewey has been elected and a Republican Administration has taken power, we may confidently expect . . ."—and on and on. These comments—rich persuasive, thoroughly documented—lay on top of their minds and they couldn't appear to abandon them in face of the facts.

Gallup Again

THE WORDS "early and highly inconclusive returns" were bandied about until around 11 p. m. when they were supplanted by "fairly complete but still inconclusive" and about 2 a. m. that phrase was thrown out for "Truman leads in so-and-so but the race is so close there that it may go in either direction."

Wolff Practically Idle Today, Only Two Broadcasts to Do

By Sonia Stein

IF YOU'VE made an appointment with your psychoanalyst because you've got the feeling that Bob Wolff is on the radio all the time, cancel it. That's no delusion—it's practically gospel truth.

Finding time—although I can't think how—to tally up his 1948 broadcasting schedule, Wolff finds himself to be contender for the Organized Conversation laurels.

The 850 separate programs that Sportscaster Wolff estimates he will have made by the end of the year, range from 15 minutes to 3 hours. This should bring his actual time-gabbing-into-microphone total to 600 hours.

If you want to translate that into a 40-hour working week for Wolff to talk it, or for you to take it, it'd be close to four months before it would be over.

If Bob's output was recorded on standard discs, it would take 6000 discs used on both sides. Stacked groove to groove, the records would tower 50 feet high.

A young and ambitious sportscaster, Wolff broadcasts for WINX, telecasts for WWTG and WMAL-TV, and has done a transcribed series for the Marines which will be distributed all over the country.

None of the figures Wolff has gathered together include rehearsal time, preparation of cripts or gathering the statistics and anec lotes on players which spice up a play-by-play roadcast.

As you read this, Wolff will be getting ady for a very light day in his fall schedle—only two broadcasts.

Saturday's he's a little busy. Starting with play-by-play description of a nearby college ootball game at 1:30, Wolff finishes about :30. Just in time to scramble to WINX and repare his 6:15 sports roundup. He's not lue at Uline Arena to cover the basketball ame for WTTG until two hours later. Plenty f time for a leisurely meal!

Others may wonder how Wolff gets so much mileage out of his larynx; I'm astonished that anybody can get that much mileage out of that one subject of sports. Gad! What if they ever turn Wolff loose on two subjects at the same time?

ROVING around town election night in the CBS mobile unit, Newsman Gunnar Back tried desperately to find a big crowd gathered somewhere in the Nation's Capital. The biggest he could find numbered only 50. An unenthusiastic town, this.

If the political polls could slip up so badly, I wonder where that leaves the Hooperatings on radio listenership? Although Hooper's methods are not exactly the same as those employed by Gallup and Roper, they're close.

THE ultra fact about Ultrafax is that it may turn around and help television, which has done so much to pave the way for this latest development in communications.

When RCA gave the first public demonstration of Ultrafax (which transmits written or printed material, pictures, graphs, chemical formulae or fingerprints with the speed of light) the relationship between the new communications system and TV was explained by David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America.

Television had already solved the "hard facts of life: housing, equipment and transportation" for itself according to Sarnoff, and in doing so, simultaneously solved some of the Ultrafax problems.

TV had moved into upper portions of the broadcasting spectrum in order to find living space, since the lower bands were already occupied by standard radio and couldn't accommodate a sufficient number of wide TV channels. New equipment needed for this upper frequency living was developed for TV but can now be used for Ultrafax, which lives in the same neighborhood.

The microwave relay stations set up to accommodate TV's needs are also capable of handling Ultrafax's needs.

So, TV did indeed give Ultrafax a leg up.

In turn, Ultrafax may eventually assist television by easing its financial burden. Since Ultrafax can use established TV relay stations (although it works faster if it has still wider channels than TV relay systems now provide) it could cut down operating costs for a television network by renting its microwave relay stations during the wee hours when no video shows are on the air.

And because Sarnoff promises that with the addition of a few gadgets to a regular video receiving set you may some day be able to receive Ultrafax-transmitted material in your living room, there may be a stimulation of TV set sales.

And as a final contribution, Ultrafax may make international television possible sooner. Sarnoff claims that "12 or 14 suitably equipped communication planes" flying across the Atlantic at intervals of 250 miles could provide an airborne relay system between the United States and Europe which could carry Ultrafax messages and television programs. If the airforce takes Sarnoff up on his suggestion that it might well get some peacetime practice in such a communications relay system in preparation for an emergency,

MAGAZINE TEAM: It would break a publisher to pay these names for a working staff, but Bette Davis and Robert Montgomery are laboring as reporters for a women's magazine in "June Bride," which arrives Thursday at the Warner. This comedy concerns the scribblers' assignment to cover a December wedding for the June edition and is Bette's first laugh venture in some years.

Boyer Opens Sartre Play At Baltimore on Nov. 15

CHARLES BOYER will make his first appearance on the American stage in "Red Gloves," the Jean-Paul Sartre play which will open a week's engagement at Ford's Theater, Baltimore, Monday night, November 15.

Topping the screen star's supporting cast will be John Dall and Joan Tetzel, also known to film followers, Royal Beal, Francis Compton, Jesse White and Edward Binns.

The play by the famed Parisian exponent of "existentialism" was a great success in Paris as "Les Mains Sales" and in London as "Crime Passionel." Other Sartre plays seen in America include "No Exit," "The Flies" and the current New York production of "The Respectful Prostitute."

Jean Dalrymple (who this week announced that her next offering will be a new Bernard Shaw play) is producing the play with Jed Harris as director. Harris' past successes have included "The Green Bay Tree," "The Front Page," "Our Town" and last season's "The Heiress."

Seats for plays at Baltimore's Ford's Theater are available in limited quantities at Mrs. Stabler's ticket mart in Lubar's, 1300 G st.

The theater warns that mail orders, which have been heavy for this play, should be accompanied by stamped, self-addressed return envelopes. Ford's matinee days are Wednesday and Saturday.

New Bobby Clark Show Opens Saturday in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP).—"As the Girls Go," a new musical comedy starring Bobby Clark—as the husband of the first lady president of the United States—will open next Saturday at the Winter Garden.

Mike Todd, the producer, previously planned to open the musical on election night. This proved hardly feasible when critics on the tryout circuit assured him that his product was not in correct shape for such a quick Main Stem premiere. At which point considerable rewriting was ordered and more comedy tossed into the breach. Bobby Clark, with the blessing of Todd, later decided to paint on his famous false eyeglasses.

Book of the show was Todd's own original idea and was written by William Roos. Jimmy McHugh and Harold Adamson, two talented Hollywood and Tin Pan Alley tunesmiths, provided the score. Sets are by Howard Bay, who also had a finger in the direction. Hermes Pan, another celluloid stalwart, is the dance director and costumes are by Oleg Cassini.

Supporting Clark is Irene Rich, playing the first lady president; and Kathryn Lee, Bill Callahan, Betty Lou Barto and Hobart Cavanaugh.

Guild Plans Ford's Series

The Theater Guild-American Theater Society announced this week that the first in the series of five plays for its Baltimore subscribers will be John van Druten's new comedy, "Make Way for Lucia," which is to open a week's run at Ford's Theater, Baltimore, December 6 prior to its New York opening.

Arrangements are being made for a special Theater Guild bus to take Washington subscribers to Baltimore and full details of the plan are being mailed to Washington members.

The Guild's subscription office in the National Theater, on E st. is open on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays from noon to 5 o'clock.

Many-Sided Preston Sturges

Hollywood (AP).—Preston Sturges, busy writing, directing and producing "The Beautiful Blonde from Bashful Bend," still finds time for inventing.

Sturges is responsible for several automobile, airplane and boat gadgets, a kissproof lipstick and a new photo-engraving process. He has headed for some time a company (the Sturges Engineering Co.) which develops his ideas.

His newest invention is a hearing aid which is tubeless, strapless and so light that it can be worn even while its owner sleeps.

His engineering company won't manufacture this device, however, since Sturges thinks other concerns can probably produce it more economically. He says he got to thinking about it during the days of his late lamented picture corporation, California Pictures, because he had to yell at his two partially-deaf partners, Howard Hughes and Henry Henigson.

Theater Time Table

Metropolitan—"Hollow Triumph" and "The Olympic Games of 1948;" the first a melodrama about double identity with Paul Henreid and Joan Bennett; the second a full-length Technicolor [illegible] on the London games of last summer; opens Thursday.

Ladd Gets Spot in New Review

By Jack O'Brian

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP).—Hank Ladd, recently of "Angel in the Wings," has signed as costar of a new revue, "Along Fifth Avenue," whose other stellar attractions are Willie Howard, Nancy Walker and Carole Bruce . . . Arthur Lesser, who chaperoned Maurice Chevalier in his recent American concert tour, is producer.

HARRY CLARK, one of the former ex-GI comic stars of "Call Me Mister," and Jack Diamond, who played the highly amusing bartender in "Happy Birthday," have joined the new Cole Porter musical, "Kiss Me Kate." . . . and folks who've heard the score say its Porter's best in a decade . . . "Bravo," considerably rewritten by its co-authors, Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman, will open at the Lyceum November 15.

EQUITY LIBRARY Theater, sponsored by Actors Equity, one of the brightest off-Broadway projects of the acting profession, has a splendid lineup of plays for its coming season . . . it's a production season for aspiring stage folks who can't get seen otherwise by agents, producers and talent scouts and gives the lads and ladies the experience they need . . . and incidentally affords audiences a look at plays which deserve some such revival . . . Shaw, George Kelly, Jean Cocteau, Pinero, Ibsen and other well-known playwrights are represented, as well as modern items like "Good News," and "A Bell for Adano."

THE CENTRAL role in "Summer and Smoke" is so taxing that Leslie Paul has signed to stand by in case Margaret Phillips needs a respite . . . Jack Cole has designed an entirely new dance number to heighten one of the important dramatic sequences in "Magdalena." . . . "Love Life," in case anyone wonders whether it's a hit, is filling mail orders through next June.

THE BARTER THEATER of Virginia has sent "Hamlet," starring Robert Breen, on an extensive tour with the hearty blessing of the American National Theater and Acadamy—of which Breen is executive secretary . . . Lili Darvas, in private life the wife of playwright Ferenc Molnar, replaced Rosa Stradner in the imminent Kaufman-Ferber comedy, "Bravo." . . . "Make Mine Manhattan" passed its 350th performance . . . and "Mister Roberts" passed its 300th, the biggest nonmusical money-maker in theater history, having sold more than one million dollars of tickets in its first 233 performances and still selling out, plus a maximum of standees, at the same fabulous rate . . . and despite the arrival of new hit plays "Mister Roberts," I'm informed by the ticket agents, still is the "toughest ticket" of them all.

Here's a Girl Says You Got to Be Subtle

Hollywood, Nov. 6 (AP).—Lizabeth Scott defends film acting against the sneers of Broadway.

"A screen actress has to be better than a stage actress," she remarked on the "Too Late for Tears" set. "On the stage, your characterization can be broader; on film, you must be subtle. A sweeping gesture won't do on the screen; everything has to be in your eyes.

"You have to be more alert in film work. On the stage, you have four weeks of rehearsal and at least four weeks of tryouts on the road before you hit Broadway. In Hollywood, you have 10 days to look at the script and then about 28 days of shooting."

The Music Box

Dancers, Pianists Top List

KOPULOS

DANCING and piano playing highlight this week's concerts. Tuesday evening, thanks to the National Symphony, Washington can watch Alicia Markova and Anton Dolin in a remarkably interesting program at Constitution Hall.

Wednesday, under the same auspices, a Spanish program, danced by Pilar Gomez and Federico Rey, and assisted by Carlos Montoya, guitarist, will fill the hall. Gomez is a sister of the great Argentinita and their program is as well chosen as that of the previous evening.

Four pianists occupy spotlights during the week: Marjorie Mitchell this afternoon with the National Symphony; Maria Kopulos tonight in National Gallery; Esther Howe this afternoon in Barker Hall, and Florence Wong Saturday at American University. Note that the three solo pianists follow the same tradition in programming, with two listings of the Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue, two for Scarlatti sonatas, and all three in familiar Ravel. Howe and Kopulos draw on less familiar music for the balance of their programs.

Richard Bales, director of music of the National Gallery of Art will speak tomorrow evening at the Phillips Gallery, on, "What Is Music?"

If you are disappointed at not being able to buy a five-concert series ticket for the Philadelphia Orchestra this year, there are season tickets available for the three-concert series beginning in December. Zino Francescatti, violinist, Benno Moiseiwitch, pianist, and Gregor Piatigorsky, cellist, are soloists for the series.

OUTSTANDING programs of the week are so numerous (O happy week!) that we can merely mention them—details are found in the music calendar. This afternoon in Barker Hall, at Washington Cathedral, and tonight in the National Gallery, and National Presbyterian Church. Tuesday and Wednesday in Constitution Hall, and Tuesday's Contemporary Arts Institute program; Friday night you must choose between Maria Kurenko and the Loewenguth Quartet. Kurenko is one of the finest concert artists now singing, while the quartet program is particularly interesting, with the Wellesz quartet in a world premiere.

American University sends word that Paul Hume, critic of The Post, will appear with Agi Jambor, pianist, in a lecture recital tomorrow evening in Huyler Studio of the University. Hume will speak, Miss Jambor will play, and the audience (open to the public) is invited to participate, 7 p. m., Monday evening.

Washington Alumnae of Mu Phi Epsilon Sorority (music) holds its Founders Day Luncheon and Program next Saturday at 12:30 p. m., at the Washington Club. Margaret Tolson, pianist, Dorthlyn Smith, violinist, and Gilderoy Scott, contralto, will appear.

Music Union Rings Bell

Restricted budgets constantly work against a sufficient music program in most schools in this area. Even phonographs and records seem beyond the reach of too many schools. Here is an opportunity for the musicians' union to spread information about, and pleasure in, their whole field. Instruments can be demonstrated and played for the education and enjoyment of thousands of school children—concerts of various ensembles can be sent from school to school, and the social worth of a powerful union will be enhanced as its future is made stronger.

Careful Check

THE disbursing of money from the record and transcription fund is closely checked, as it should be. It is laudable that in the first year of operation, administrative costs for the fund were kept at less than 1 per cent; $1,444,700 was spent in 1947 from the fund for all kinds of concerts. More than 150,000 men were given employment in the program, totaling over 10,000 performances.

With the unlimited musical resources of the union across the country, and the tremendous influence of music in the lives of its younger listeners, we hope union headquarters will give serious attention to this week's experiment, and budget appropriate sums for similar teaching concerts as a regular part of their generous plan.

Poland Plans Chopin Fete

Warsaw (AP).—A special Polish committee of artists and music lovers is planning a great celebration in 1949 marking the 100th anniversary of the death of the famous composer, Frederic Chopin.

Early in the spring, a series of concerts is scheduled devoted exclusively to Chopin's music. On July 22, the biggest and most impressive ceremonies in observance of "Chopin Year" are to be held at Zelazowej Woli, where the noted composer-pianist was born.

Delegations from many foreign countries are expected. An exhibition of Chopin's works is to be opened in the national museum in Warsaw.

Bauer Writes Wittily & Well Of Musicians

By the United Press

TO ILLUSTRATE the fleeting nature of fame, Harold Bauer tells of a clerk in a music store who asked him how he spelled his name, "B-O-W . . .?" Nevertheless, there are many thousands to whom Harold Bauer is both a well remembered name and a well-remembered personality, although he hasn't touched a piano in public in years. It is for them that he has written a book of personal reminiscences which his publisher has coyly entitled, "Harold Bauer His Book" (Norton, $3.75).

Being a book about self, it is remarkable for self-effacement. You have to know the writer was one of the top virtuosos of his age. He himself gives you hardly a hint of it. There is no account of his struggles and triumphs, artistic and personal. Nor does he discuss music, and you can't help wishing he had—his candid view of Beethoven's "Appassionata" for example, which he played up and down the country for years, would have more than a little interest.

But you have to accept a book as the author has written it and Bauer has written a series of anecdotes of personal flavor built around a host of great musicians, beginning with Joachim, Clara Schumann, Liszt and de Pachmann, whom he recalls from his boyhood, through Paderewski, Ravel, Debussy, Pablo Casals, Fritz Kriesler, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, Moritz Moszkowski, John McCormack—these among many others.

It is no disparagement to note that though a fine artist in music, Bauer hardly is an artist with words. For that reason, the book is deficient in chronology. It is "His Book," however, as the title states, and those who remember the virtuoso with pleasure, wil find that genial and gentlemanly character within its covers.

WILLI APEL: Masters of the Keyboard. Harvard University Press. 306 pp. $5.

Apel is a musicologist whose literary style makes his published efforts as clear in meaning as they are sound in historical fact. As coauthor with Archibald T. Davison of Historical Anthology of Music, and as sole author of the Harvard Dictionary of Music, he is widely known to students in the art.

But the piano and the modern organ being the two most popular keyboard instruments of our day, this study is of especial interest to many, whether or not they play such instruments. The literature for the two manual music-makers is inexhaustible, in spite of the repetitiousness of current concert programs. Apel divides his commentary between mechanical matters revolving around structure and playing techniques, and the repertoire to which the instruments give rise.

Beautifully printed, the book includes 140 illustrations from the scores of such widely divergent writers as Antonio de Cabezon and Paul Hindemith. No illustration fails to clarify some point of creative or technical material. While all this goes on, Apel manages to include a reasonable outline of the history of music extending as far back as 250 B. C., when a Greek engineer named Ktesibios built a hydraulic organ.

One expects Harvard University to interest itself in publishing the finest writings in any field. They have added luster to their efforts in res musica with Professor Apel's outline of keyboard music.

Tagliavini to Give Young Singers Chance

Ferruccio Tagliavini, Metropolitan Opera tenor, has devised a program novelty for his concert tour of the country this season. He plans to give young American singers a chance to appear as assisting artists in the cities he will visit.

Locally chosen singers would replace the "assisting artist" who usually accompanies the tenor, playing one or two groups between his songs and arias. It would give local talent a "break" before large audiences and top critics, Tagliavini feels.

The Record Player

Good Disks By Choir of Howard U.

CHORAL MUSIC. Howard University A Cappella Choir, Warner Lawson, conductor. Albums available from Howard University.

Last season's choir at Howard University was one of the best balanced, blended choral groups of recent seasons. Some of its work is preserved on a new set of excellent vinylite records made in Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel. The acoustics lend themselves well to recording, and the results are thoroughly enjoyable.

The album includes standard choral repertoire and some superbly sung spirituals. Everything the choir does is informed with that keen sense of music possessed by their scholarly director.

Tschaikowsky: 1812 Overture. Amsterdam Concertgebouw under Willem Mengelberg. Mercury Classic Album. $3.75.

In performance this is one of the great readings of Tschaikowsky's "Ouverture Solennelle." But the year of its pressing was somewhat before the war, and it cannot equal the sound of the Rodzinski-Cleveland version, or for that matter, of the Fiedler-Boston Pops set. Nevertheless, for the surety with which a great conductor wends his way through this famous agglomeration of sound, Mengelberg is a stellar example.

Erna Sack in Viennese Waltzes. Mercury Classics Album. $5.

Six favorites of the Strauss and Lehar school come in this handsome package. Mercury puts its records out in some of the best looking albums on the market. If you admire Miss Sack's high whistles, and the brainless abandon she uses in tossing them in at any point, this set is for you. Her voice is all too well recorded, and the sound is good, if a bit surfacy.

SMETANA: Wallenstein's Camp. Czech Philharmonic Orchestra under Kubelik. Mercury Classic Album. $3.75.

Early Smetana, pre-Ma Vlast, pre-Bartered Bride and Dalibor, this is largely concerned with nationalistic tunes and atmosphere. Its performance by Rafael Kubelik and the great Czech orchestra is all it could be, but the music means little for us today.

Brahms Sonata No. 3 in D minor for violin and piano. Mischa Elman, violinist, with Wolfgang Rose, pianist. Victor 1323. $4.75.

There are old and new versions of this great sonata. The Menuhins, sister and brother, have done it recently in Europe; Szigeti and Petri made a set some years ago for Columbia. Recently Isaac Stern and Alexander Zador pressed it for Columbia. Now Victor enters the lists with Elman and Rose.

But above all these I will take the old set by Paul Kochanski and Artur Rubinstein. Those were the days when Rubinstein played the piano as he still should, and Kochanski, who died in the mid 30's, was a great artist. No other performance of my acquaintance has ever approached theirs.

Elman slurs badly in many spots in the sonata, and generally disregards tempo indications, and even slips in intonation. Rose does the best he can under the circumstances, but a pianist cannot make a violin-piano sonata by himself. This is really poor playing from an artist of Elman's stature. His tone is, of course, always beautiful, but how about the music?

ROSSINI: The Barber of Seville: La Calunnia: also: Puccini: La Boheme: Vecchia Zimarra. Ezio Pinza, bass, with Metropolitan Opera Orchestra. Columbia 72528-D. $1.25.

Pinza has sung Don Basilio and Colline many times in his illustrious Metropolitan career. Here he performs the only arias allotted to the bass in both operas. His voice is in fine form and his eloquence shapes itself to the widely different moods as easily as in the opera house. Pinza in Italian arias is almost always a model.

Strauss: Suite from Der Rosenkavalier. Philadelphia Orchestra under Ormandy. Columbia 742. $4.75.

Here is the composer's own orchestra version of music from his great comic opera. We have hitherto enjoyed a suite arranged by Antal Dorati, but Strauss does better with his melodic lines and in selecting excerpts than the Texas conductor. Ormandy plays this music with wonderful elan. Phrasing, particularly in the closing duet scene, is too chopped up, but the sound and effect are good throughout.

Weekend Concerts Slated in New York

A series of 24 week-end orchestral and choral concerts has been announced for the Ninth Regiment Armory in New York. They will be called Promenade Concerts.

A special stage and accoustical shell will be built in the armory and arrangements made to seat 4000 people at prices from 50 cents to $1.

It's Not Just a Gesture

Munch Means His 'Apres Vous'

By W. G. Rogers

MUNCH

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP).—Three of us waited for the elevator in the hotel lobby: Charles Munch, who next year becomes the Boston Symphony conductor, one of the most exalted music posts in the Western world; Henri Barraud, composer and director of the current United States tour of the French Orchestre National, of which Munch is guest conductor for about 40 concerts; and this reporter.

The elevator door opened. Bowing and motioning to us to go ahead, Munch said: "Apres vous." "Apres vous," said Barraud, bowing to Munch and me. "Apres vous," said I, bowing to them, while the elevator operator, used to being crushed in the rush, dropped his jaw in amazement.

At floor 14 it was repeated: "Apres vous" three times and three more bows. It was repeated at the room door, and with only slight modifications eight times more, twice at the room door, four times at the elevator and twice at the street entrance, as we went downstairs and out into daylight to take a picture and then returned to the conductor's quarters. Barraud and I usually but not always maneuvered the distinguished visitor into preceding us.

Genuine Gesture

FOR he wasn't just being polite, just making a gesture to a composer and a newsman who were unlikely ever to be in a position to do him favors. He meant it.

He is what used to be called condescendingly a gentleman of the old school. With his fine, silver hair, his sensitive and ascetic features, his unobtrusive manner, and the little red Legion of Honor circlet in his buttonhole, he looks the part. His politeness is of course typically French, but by no means typical of the music world. The valet or batman of most conductors of my acquaintance would unhesitatingly crowd ahead of a mere composer and a mere newsman.

Perhaps even more than any other creative artist, the musician is me-first; he has the best voice, best tongue for a horn, best fingers for a fiddle, and so the best right to enter ahead of everyone else.

Munch's exemplary musicianship, which won for him and the Orchestre National the most enthusiastic plaudits of the New York audience and critics, is the rarest thing about him. But his courtesy is rare, too. Since it's not superficial, it not only could be a mark of a formal social "front," but also could affect importantly his attitude toward his public, the scores he chooses to play, and his musicians. It's civilized, and cosmopolitan, and likable.

Likes Flavor

HE ENJOYS working with American orchestras, he says, and this season will guest-conduct the New York, Boston and Cleveland Symphonies. The thing which impresses him especially is the international complexion of our orchestras; he finds a special flavor in the music coming from a mixture of French, English, American, Italian, Polish, Russian players.

He likes American audiences, in particular the younger members, for he has found them receptive to new music. In Boston he hopes to play the works of young composers, both American and foreign, but on the whole expects his programs will continue Serge Koussevitzky's precedent.

The orchestra which he accompanied here sounded unlike the Boston or any other American group, however. It is due, he explained, to a difference in instruments. French flutes, trumpets, trombones are of slighter build or have a different type of mouthpiece; the strings sing less, seek rather for brilliance.

"France is perhaps the only country which has preserved its original national sonority," Munch believes.

Born in Alsace

HE WAS born in Alsace of a musical family named M-U-umlaut-N-C-H, but he prefers Munch spelling here, with the original pronunciation. He studied violin in Strasbourg and Paris. After teaching in Strasbourg and serving the local orchestra as concertmaster, he went to Leipzig to play and study under Walter, Busch and Furtwaengler.

He made his conductorial debut in 1932; became head of the Paris Societe Philharmonique in 1935 and of the Conservatoire in 1938. He and Mme. Munch will make their home in Boston.

He meant to start formal English lessons last fall but didn't find time. But after his experiences in England and the United States, he says: "I get along." He got along all right at the hotel bar. He asked me what I wanted to drink. I asked him what he was going to have. He named a soft drink, explaining that, "It picks me up, and tastes even better here than in France." I said: "What, no wine or cocktail?" "No cocktail, no," he answered, "and just a glass of wine is too expensive." But the bar tender charged 36 cents for his bottle of pop.

Allen Waxes Two Dandies For Capitol

By The Associated Press

BARCLAY ALLEN, pianist graduate of the Freddy Martin crew, has a pair of dandies on Capitol records. "Tea For Two," an insinuating bass fiddle beat woven through, and "Siboney" on the reverse . . . two more oldies on MGM's label, a fine Hoagy Carmichael ballad, "One Morning in May," and "Lover Come Back to Me," are a pair of Hal McIntyre Orchestra offerings.

Eddie Heywood's neatly executed jazz piano is available on an RCA-Victor twosome of still another brace of venerables, "The Way You Look Tonight" and "The Moon Is Yellow," the latter a vastly underrated tune which is almost perfect for such smart treatment.

Of all things, "Yes We Have No Bananas" has been taken out of the refrigerator and ripened nicely by the Pied Pipers for Capitol, the other side being "It's Whatcha Do With Whatcha Got."

Frank Loesser's ballad from "Where's Charley," "My Darling, My Darling," has been pressed by Jo Stafford and Gordon McRae for Capitol and by Jack Lathrop and Eve Young for RCA-Victor. The latter is coupled with "You're the First Cup of Coffee in the Morning," from the already buried musical, "Heaven on Earth."

Astaire Says

White Tie, Topper Are Bowing Out

By Bob Thomas

Hollywood, Nov. 6 (AP).—The world's most famous exponent of top hat, white tie and tails hints that this formal attire is disappearing from the United States scene.

Fred Astaire was hoofing through a dance number with Ginger Rogers for "Barkleys of Broadway" and he was spiffed out in his usual ultra-formal costume. As he finished, I observed that such outfits are seldom seen these days, except at occasional society weddings and Irish wakes.

Is this uniform going the way of the high button shoes and the coat with the belt in back?

"You certainly don't see this kind of dress out any more," Fred admitted. "You used to see it more in this country, but never so much as in England.

"I remember when we played in an English show, we could see nothing in the audience but white ties. When the black ties started creeping in, we knew the show was reaching the end of the run."

Fred confessed he hardly ever wears the formal dress outside movie stages these days.

Of course, there's a good reason for the general demise of the outfit. Who but Astaire can look good in top hat, white tie and tails?

there may be a government-operated relay system available for TV news coverage from abroad.

Of course, all of this is necessarily far into the future, since the October 21 demonstration at the Library of Congress was merely a "progress report" on a device which is not yet being produced commercially. But if TV still needs assistance by the time Ultrafax gets ready to operate on a large scale, Ultrafax will be in a beautiful position to pay back its debt to that industry.

Set Owners Must Watch Cost of Video Upkeep

By Wayne Oliver

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP).—Television set owners have to figure on the upkeep as well as the original cost.

For the most popular size table model set with 10-inch picture tube—most of which sell for $300 to $375—the upkeep probably will run around $5 a month. And it's payable in advance.

That's on the basis of the service policies usually offered with the set and covering installation plus all repairs, servicing and new parts for a year.

These policies range from $55 to $70 and at the end of the year usually can be renewed for a slightly lower amount, as installation is not involved this time although the set now is a year older and a little more apt to need repairs or adjustment.

Put Up Your Own

MOST SETS can be bought without the service policy and installation charge. If you're handy with tools, you can put up your own outside aerial with $15 to $25 worth of materials or else buy an indoor antenna for as little as $15 if you're in a location where one will work.

But manufacturers and service organizations alike say it's a calculated risk—and a pretty big risk. They say it wouldn't take many service calls and many repair bills to run your cost a lot higher than what you'd pay for the one-year service policy. For instance, the retail price of the picture tube in a table model RCA costs $44.50, and that doesn't cover the cost of putting it in.

The servicing problem has been one of television's biggest headaches and still is. Some manufacturers, led by RCA, set up their own service organizations. Others followed the plan set up by DuMont two years ago under which the manufacturer specified dealers and service organizations in each area to install and service his sets—with his own service experts making periodic checks to see that uniform service was being given. And most permit the purchaser to make his own arrangements if he prefers to do so.

Flat Annual Fee

HOWEVER, the Conlon Electric Corp. of Brooklyn, which claims to be the largest independent television service outfit in the world, advises its customers to pay a flat annual fee rather than paying by the job each time trouble develops.

Some manufacturers contend their own service departments operate without profit and in some cases at a loss. But they say their main objective is in seeing that their sets are properly installed and serviced so their brand will enjoy a good reputation.

Because of the rapid expansion of television and the shortage of technicians trained in servicing sets, installations and repairs fell behind badly a few months ago but the situation has improved considerably. However, there's still a lot longer delay in having a television set fixed than in getting a radio repair—at least in most cases.

As sets improve and more technicians become proficient in servicing them, industry leaders hope the situation in television eventually will approach that in radio.

Gay Time Show Returning Here

Connie B. Gay has announced that Turner's Arena will be the new home of Gay Time, the hillbilly show, which returns to Washington next Friday night.

Gay says he has signed Bill Monroe of grand ole opry fame, for opening night.

In addition to Monroe there will be Clyde Moody, Pete Cassell (the blind minstrel), Chubby Wise and Grandpa Jones and Ramona. There will also be the Radio Ranchmen and some added attractions. One of them will be Linnie Ayleshire of Springfield, Mo., who makes his music out of saws, balloons and bureau drawers.

Well-Set Plans Went All Awry

The glaring fact that President Truman's percentage of the popular vote remained almost from the outset about 3 per cent ahead of Dewey's was pointed out, to my knowledge, by only one man, a feller who certainly needs a friend today. Dr. George Gallup. Impassive, a research man to the last, without explanation or apology, at 10:20 p. m. when those "early and highly inconclusive returns" were still resounding around the air waves, Gallup stated without qualification that Truman would take 49 to 50 per cent and win a clear majority of the popular vote. (He didn't say he'd win the election though). Give Dr. Gallup a small silver star for that one anyhow.

I can't say the same for Elmo Roper, the man who counted out Truman months ago, and who was spluttering explanations all night long.

For the first time in my memory, which isn't as long as it ought to be, there appeared to be an air of bias in the presentation of news over the national networks. I'm charitable enough to ascribe much of it to the fact that the reporters were convinced of a Dewey victory and couldn't unseat it. "President Truman," said one NBC man brightly at midnight, "is making a good scrap of it." A handsome admission.

The plain fact was that the networks had laid plans which were thrown upside down. The Life-NBC television team, for example, did a superb job covering the national conventions because they figured things out in advance pretty well and prepared interviews, which highlighted and emphasized the main stream of the news.

They followed the same procedure in this one and fell flat on their faces. One example is enough. Life-NBC rounded up a man who had gone to grammar and high school with Governor Dewey and who said Dewey had an aura of the Presidency hanging about him even then.

It wasn't until 11:26 a. m. the next day that somebody scurried around and discovered an old school chum of President Truman's. This man too said he knew Truman had it in him all along.

At the Bridge Table

Play Starts Friday In 'Old Dominion'

By Marian H. Barre

ONE OF "our tournaments" will be held in Richmond, beginning Friday. The event is the fifteenth annual Old Dominion championships at the John Marshall Hotel on November 12, 13, 14; scheduled games include women's pairs, mixed, and open pairs, and a match for foursomes. Use of the possessive pronoun is fully justified since the Old Dominion was held in Alexandria for more than a decade.

Few annuals have a more-colorful history: Originating in Richmond, the tournament was moved to Alexandria by the first manager, R. E. Needham, of Greenville, Pa., one of the early promoters of contract championships; A. P. Stockvis and F. H. Tillotson used to run it for him. It was during this period that Alvin Roth, Washington's first Life Master, won a dual victory, a feat which rated headlines in those days though not rare now. (C. C. Johnson did a repeat in the recent D. C. tourney.)

Those unable to attend the Old Dominion may seek consolation at the Capital City Chess Club's Saturday evening master point monthly, where play begins at 7:45. The similar Thursday nationally awarded duplicate on October 28 was won by G. L. Dickerman and Dr. G. Wooley in the north-south position, east-west, by Col. R. H. Skinner and J. G. Stone. Mrs. J. V. Waits-C. W. Stark, David Murray-Mr. Ashby were runners-up. On November 9 the club holds its monthly stag session for members only, the board of governors having voted to change these meetings to "second Tuesdays."

THE ANNUAL open pair championship of the Walsh Club was played through two sessions last Saturday and Sunday, a surprise pair of winners emerging. They were Mrs. Minnetta Lagerquist and Miss Jean Darling, whose previous tournament experience has been confined to AAUW games. Mrs. Edith Fink and Lynn Carrier were second, with Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Dormandy in show place. Mrs. A. R. Hodgkins, one of the defending champions, was paired with Rush Buckley, codefender Dr. Emily Grewe was not in the field. Incidentally, the Hodgkins-Buckley duo won the club's October master point game the week before, awards in the other position going to Mrs. May Packard and Mrs. George King, jr. Col. and Mrs. J. G. Seabourne, Miss Clara Sternacker and David Kandel, added 50 rating points each to their master-point totals.

THE FOUR musketeers, Stone, Roberts, Dickerman, and Murray, who tripped to Pittsburg last weekend, didn't return emptyhanded, though they failed to bag a Keystone State title. All four were finalists in the opens, where awards trickled down to twelfth place. Finishing ninth, Stone and Murray won three master points each. Roberts and Dickerman were just "out of the money" as they were thirteenth. Super-experts Charles H. Goren and Mrs. A. M. Sobel added further laurels to their crowns when they won the championship in the largest field competing in any State tournament. The Cleveland team captained by Alvin Landy captured the team title.

Another master point game on the local schedule will be held Tuesday evening at the Count Club.

Certified bridge teachers of this vicinity have been invited by Wessal Stewart to attend the Karpin lectures series on Monday evenings at the Walsh Club, when the author of "The Point-Count System of Bidding in Contract Bridge" explains his method. Published by the Kaufman Press of Washington, the Karpin pamphlet is the most-discussed bidding text since Ely Culbertson's first "Blue Book" made him an international celebrity. Charles H. Goren wrote the foreword to Karpin's booklet.

The night after the election found many Washington Bridge League members too tired for their usual diversion, thus reducing the field to 38 pairs. Divided into two sections the national-award winners were—in Section A, a north-south tie between Mrs. D. E. Stephan-Mrs. Marian H. Barre, Edward Clifford-Dr. Saxon; east-west, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Rosson. Section B was led by Life Master Mrs. Frederick Eberson (here on her first visit after moving to Memphis) and R. Ashton, in the other position by Mrs. George Kathan and Simon Gerber. Halfpoints went to Captain and Mrs. Herlihy, Lewis Tubbs-W. A. Poissant, David Murray-Fred L. Karpin.

Entitled to two representatives on the ACBL's board of governors, the Washington Bridge League elected Dr. W. H. Gorton and J. G. Stone at an executive committee meeting Tuesday.

Autumn Stamp Season Gets Off to Good Start

By William M. Stuart

THE fall stamp season has opened auspiciously. Markets in New York, Boston, Chicago and Washington all report stable business. While there was a noticeable decline in the usual summer trade, business during the coming months promises to surpass recent years. Business is undoubtedly on a firm basis and despite a higher market, sales are on the increase.

Especially are the record prices in the auction field being closely followed. A large number of unusual collections of high value are listed for early fall sales and promise good results. The established dealer is asking a slight advance for choice specimens, but he reports sales nevertheless brisk and increasing.

It is said that during the past few months many of the so-called "get rick quick" small dealers have abandoned the field. Reputable dealers cannot afford to handle questionable material at any price, and a low figure, in many instances, will not serve as bait for future sales unless both stamp and dealer warrant complete investigation. With the season advancing, in spite of higher prices than usual for good material, dealer and collector are both well satisfied with conditions.

THE Collectors Club, Branch 5, S. P. A., met Tuesday evening and held its monthly auction, Ellery Denison acting as auctioneer. At the meeting on Tuesday the speaker will be Capt. William G. Shaw, president of the Pentagon Philatelic Society, who will speak on Japanese occupation stamps of the Philippines. The public is invited.

The Capital Precancel Club will meet tomorrow evening in the home of J. H. Weimer, 3150 16th st. nw. Plans for the precancel roundup to be held November 14 at the Dodge Hotel will be perfected.

The Woodridge Stamp Club met Monday evening in the Recreation Room, 1818 Rhode Island ave. ne. Under the new plans only two meetings a month will be held. Next session will be on November 15.

The Capital City Card Club met on Monday evening in the Thomson School, 12th and L sts. nw., opening the season. Meetings will be held on the first and third Monday evenings of each month.

AT THE meeting of the Collectors Club, Branch 5, S. P. A., October 26, a program in honor of the new 3-cent Rough Riders stamp was given. The stamp, showing a statue of Bucky O'Neill, was released at Prescott, Ariz., October 27, Theodore Roosevelt's birthday. The speaker was Capt. James Patrick McGovern, who has spent many years in Arizona and who knew O'Neill intimately. He closed his talk by reciting an original poem, "The Rough Riders."

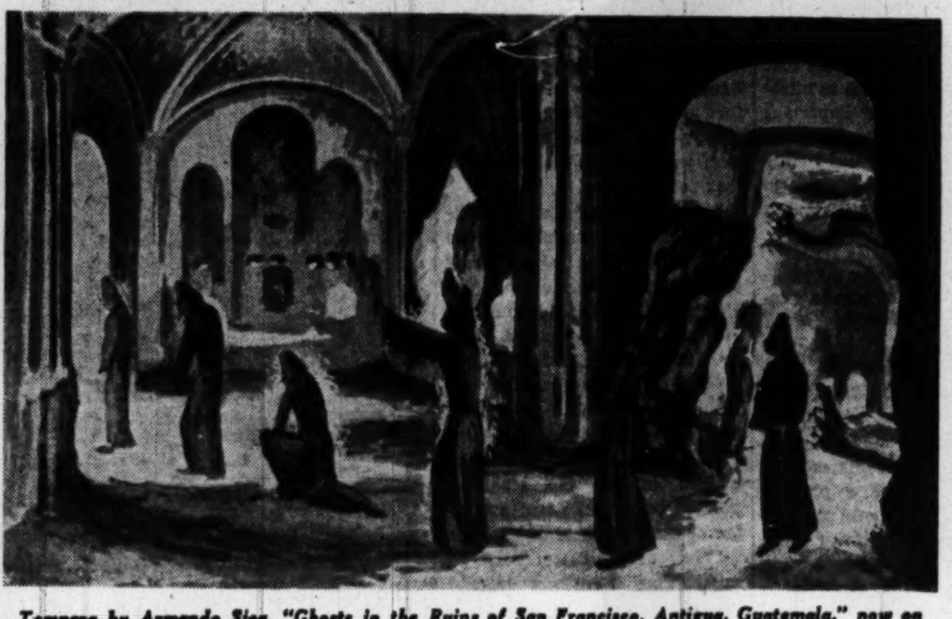
The Interior Department Stamp Club met October 25, in Room 6071, Interior Building, and adopted a constitution and by-laws. It was voted to meet the second and fourth Mondays of each month at 4:20 p. m. H. P. Jones of the Geological Survey was elected temporary chairman. Officers will be elected at the November 22 meeting.

The following commemorative stamps, all issued in 1946, were removed from the sales list of the Philatelic Agency on September 30: 5-cent Roosevelt, 3-cent Merchant Marine, 3-cent Discharge Emblem, 3-cent Tennessee, 3-cent Iowa Statehood, 3-cent Smithsonian and 3-cent Kearny Expedition.

One of the most beautiful of the new commemoratives is the 3-cent Gold Star Mothers stamp, released in Washington on September 21. The design is a palm branch on which is superimposed a star, below which is the wording, "Gold Star Mothers," in Roman. Across the top is "United States" in white Roman with uncial characteristics. The denomination is across the bottom in a dark panel, "3c Postage 3c." The color is yellow gold, printed in sheets of 50, and the initial order calls for 75 million. The star in the design is a most beautiful one.

Show at Pan American Union

Sica Work Can't Be Called Dull



Tempera by Armando Sica, "Ghosts in the Ruins of San Francisco, Antigua, Guatemala," now on exhibition at Pan American Union

By Jane Watson Crane

THE visual arts offer an excellent means for cultural interchange between countries, because there is no language barrier. Since the famous Armory show of European modern art in New York in 1914, there has been a flood of work from across the Atlantic, but in the Latin-American field the demand for good material still far exceeds the supply.

The tourist-poster type of pictorial painting has been available, and the Pan American Union has contributed a good part of it. In the past two years particularly, the monotony of this presentation has been broken by exhibits of more depth and originality, but the habit of viewing the polite and innocuous has become so ingrained that whenever anything off the beaten track is shown, the cries of protest are heard for miles around the Union.

In the present show, "Paintings of the Americas" by Armando Sica of Argentina, the Pan American Union has struck a good compromise. The paintings are highly intelligible; they will offend no one. They are also more than skin deep.

Sica has traveled widely in North and South America, and has recorded his impressions with taste and imagination. The show is not in the least sensational, but neither is it dull. This is the type of exhibition that is most welcome. It gives visitors a chance to capture some visual image of neighboring peoples and environments and also to gain an inkling of the atmosphere and psychology behind them.

Sica has been teaching at the School of Fine Arts in Buenos Aires since 1944. He is now in the United States, where he hopes to add to his collection of paintings of this country.

It is a pity that the Sica paintings will not be shown at the Union beyond this week, but they may be seen today in the Hall of the Americas. Downstairs in the regular exhibition section there is a display of paintings by Olga Mary of Brazil. These are competent, tasteful and conventional. Olga Mary reflects her European training. She studied painting technique in Florence, and the art of painting at the famous Academy Julian in Paris. Her husband is Raul Pedroza, painter and engraver, and her daughter follows in the family tradition.

SELDEN RODMAN must have had a good time writing his book on the popular painters in Haiti, and most people will enjoy seeing some of the originals which are shown now at American University. Rodman was here for the opening, well pleased with the establishment of a Haitian Art Center in New York.

When untutored painting becomes a fashionable fad, as this has, it becomes difficult to distinguish the true from the false, and there is evidence that the artists themselves are having trouble. A Haitian in a talk at Howard University last year made a clear definition of what he considered the truly primitive, i.e., the painter who paints only to please his gods. Rodman in his book makes the distinction between "simple and complex primitivism," which he attributes to De Witt Peters, originator of the movement in Haiti.

The sheep in this case are the painters untouched by outside influence, who are encouraged to work at home—"at least until such time as their styles become fixed beyond the point of confused imitation." The goats are "those," to quote from Rodman's book, "who show the slightest inclination to 'pass over the line' into an awareness of such problems as perspective, deliberate fantasy, or conscious abstraction." They are encouraged to attend lectures or work with more advanced artists.

Without getting involved in this marriage between the intellectual and the natural, one can enjoy the show as a colorful and unusual presentation. For those with curiosity the book, "Renaissance in Haiti," is fascinating reading. It sheds light not only on the origins of the painters, but of this movement, the results of which are going like hot cakes in New York. Haitian popular paintings are soon to travel further, for the Art Center has made bookings across the country.

Art Notes

Watson Talks Thursday in Kensington

DUDLEY CRAFTS WATSON, official lecturer of the Art Institute of Chicago, will lecture on "Modern Art and the Old Masters" at the Kensington (Md.), Elementary School on Thursday at 8 p. m. under the sponsorship of the Kensington Sketch Class. The lecture will be illustrated with color slides. Mr. Watson has lectured professionally for over 30 years. The Kensington Sketch Class is patterned on one he started some years ago at the Art Institute of Chicago. Admission for his lecture here will be $1, tax included. Tickets may be obtained at the door, or in advance by calling Mrs. Conzley, Olympic 9344.

Plans and models by the German architect, Mies van de Rohe, will be shown at the Institute of Contemporary Arts, 1422 New York ave. nw., from November 9 to 28. Mies van de Rohe, who directed the Bauhaus before it was closed by the Nazis, has been living in Chicago for several years. He is associated with the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Artists of the District and Virginia are eligible for the fourteenth annual New Year show of paintings at the Butler Art Institute in Youngstown, Ohio, January 1 to 30. Eighteen cash prizes are offered, with a top of $250. The jury is composed of painters Yasuo Kuniyoshi and Lily Harmon, and Edgar Richardson of the Detroit Institute of Fine Arts.

Paintings by Alice Acheson and Marcella Comes, and sculpture by Alice Decken and Maxim Elias will be shown at the Georgetown Branch of the District of Columbia Public Library until November 22. This marks the start of a newly instituted exhibition program. Located in the Peabody Room of the library, the exhibition will be open daily from 2 to 5 p. m.

Paintings by Misabel, daughter of Olga Mary who is having a show at the Pan American Union, will be shown at Chequire House in Alexandria through November 16. Her father, Raul Pedroza, will have a group of his etchings on display. The family of Brazilians has recently had shows in New York.

Complementing the exhibition of contemporary religious paintings at the Barnett Aden Gallery, the Catholic Interracial Council of Washington is sponsoring a show of contemporary religious sculpture at Catholic University art department, in the Salve Regina Building.

Howard University is featuring American paintings of the past five years in its new show in the Founders Library.

Leslie Cheek, jr., former director of the Baltimore Museum of Art, has been appointed director of the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts at Richmond. He succeeds Thomas Clot, jr., who now heads the Portland (Oreg.) Museum.

In celebration of the publication of a two-volume tome on Rembrandt by Jakob Rosenberg, curator of prints, the Fogg Museum of Harvard University is holding a special Rembrandt exhibition which includes many entries seldom seen by the public.

The Artists Cooperative of Washington is without headquarters at the moment, but it has not ceased to function as a unit. Josef Pielage is the new head. The group is having a show at 3 Hillyer ct. nw. and on December 7 will have an exhibition at the United Nations Club.

Replicas Put Sculpture in Homes

By Edward S. Kitch

Sculptress Gwen Lux examines finished duplicate of her original sculpture, "Male Torso," after it has been turned in Chicago studio devoted to making replicas of famous pieces in wood, stone and clay

CHICAGO, Nov. 6 (AP).—Sculpture, orphan of the arts in America, is getting a helping hand.

Through a program of sculpture-in-replica conducted by Maurice A. Melford, stone-like sculpture of simplified design is being made available to everyone.

Melford's brainchild is devised to put sculpture on the American map.

A practitioner of the Grecian art would like to see more of his statuettes in modern homes. So would everyone. But the rub is the high cost of months and months of chipping on a chunk of granite. The very nature of sculpturing and the product makes it tough for a genius to fill his breadbasket and still enjoy his art.

Easily Damaged

THIRTY years ago Italian vendors carried wicker baskets filled with plaster statues and peddled them from door to door. In that day most homes proudly exhibited a sentimental piece of art.

But the plaster statues were easily damaged. The paint chipped. Broken parts were sometimes used as chalk by children for marking out sidewalk games.

The plaster statue's realistic design has long since passed out of vogue.

Art lovers, who have longingly looked but not touched, now can own lasting pieces of art. New works are in keeping with modern architecture and industrial design. Modern sculptors base their figures on natural forms, but with original interpretations.

Melford says directors of leading art museums are encouraging his plan. Many outstanding artists have contributed to the collection already being marketed.

High Names

ARTISTS on sculpture-in-replica's roster are Humbert Albrizio, Alexander Archipenko, Samuel Cashwan, Chaim Gross, Robert Laurent, Gwen Lux, Laura Slobe, Pegot Waring, Heinz Warneke and Hugo Weber.

Duplicates of an original work are reproduced in wood, stone and clay. An artist is paid an initial sum when he submits his work for distribution. He receives a royalty on each "replica" sold.

Instead of a four-figure price tag, an art lover can possess eye-pleasing sculpture for $75.

A replica is made by molding. A "master" pattern is shaped from the original work. This is used to fabricate a plaster-of-paris cast. Two sections are used to create a mold for shaping the cast-stone replicas.

Mineral coloring is mixed with cement and marble dust. The mixture is patted onto the inner surface of the mold by the workmen. Each plaster mold is destroyed in the process of removing it from the stone statue.

Making a plaster statue by a similar method is less costly because the same mold is used each time a piece is cast.

The two halves of the cast-stone art piece are cemented together. The hollow interior reduces weight. Smoothed, polished and mounted, the replica is ready for market.

Because the color is cast throughout the statue and the stone is durable, the work can be exhibited outdoors as well as in the home.

Melford said one of the most popular pieces in the collection is a creation by Sculptress Gwen Lux, a former student of the Chicago Art Institute. Her work is titled "Male Torso."

Portinari Paints Brazil's Poor

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (U.P.). Candido Portinari is the son of a poor Italian farmhand. He was born in 1903 on a coffee farm in the interior of Brazil, where he grew up in misery.

He studied the works of the masters of the Paris school who pioneered into man's inner world. But he did not follow in their path. He had his own message to convey. It is the strange and sad story of the poor people of Brazil.

Portinari has painted the men and women who toil from dawn to dusk on the coffee farms, on the sugar and rubber plantations and in the tobacco fields; the gold diggers and the cattle herders, the people who produce the goods that makes life enjoyable to others.

He has painted them at their working places where the rhythm of labor gives their wretched lives some semblance of meaning. He has painted the poorest of the poor; the sick and the starving, the children weeping in pain and the mothers despairing over the death of their children. He has gone through all the gamut of misery he knew so well.

His heroes, wrapped in plastic space, have a timeless monumentality. The cubistic, shifting surfaces help emphasize the allegoric character of the story.

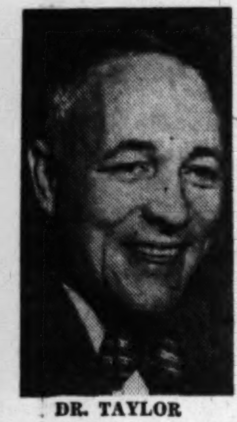
'Job of a Generation'

Teaching Germans Freedom Isn't Easy

By Horace B. Ward

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 6 (AP).—"It will take at least a generation, maybe two, to tell whether we can make democracy stick in Germany," says Dr. John W. Taylor, president of the University of Louisville.



DR. TAYLOR

Dr. Taylor, who started the program to reeducate Germans in the American occupation zone right after VE-Day in 1945, has just returned from a series of conferences with German educators. Since leaving Germany in April 1947 he has been in almost constant consultation with the military government and returned in August to evaluate the results thus far.

While the educator feels that efforts to make German schools more democratic "are progressing as rapidly as expected, which is slow enough at best," he does not think the schools alone can democratize Germany, The chief aid is education, he says, will be a balanced economy.

"People have to feel that they are going to have enough to eat to be very eager for education in the first place," he said.

Observations on his last trip convinced Taylor that "a democratic spirit really is developing in western Germany." Part of the basis for this improvement, he says, is a vastly improved economy. Part he credits to freedom of the press. Both "help to build Democratic schools."

"We must remember that Germans never knew freedom of the press before the Western Powers took over," Taylor said. "That doesn't mean just during the Hitler regime. Germany never had a free press before that, either."

Only Two 'Don'ts'

When Dr. Taylor took charge of schools in the American zone three years ago the first step was to get rid of teachers with pronounced Nazi leanings. Americans served as school superintendents in the cities. Then the schools were turned back to the Germans, but under American control.

German teachers were qualified with only two "don'ts" —don't teach Nazism and don't teach militarism. They were given a brief statement of democratic principles, chief among them the insistence upon absolute equality of educational opportunity.

"Equal education for everyone is something Germans never have known," Dr. Taylor said. "Here again the problem was not merely to eliminate Hitler's methods and principles. It meant the tearing up by the roots of a school program which forced 90 per cent of the people to end their schooling at the age of 14."

That old aristocratic double standard of education has been even harder to eradicate than the teachings of Hitlerism, Taylor said. However, he says he found a fair degree of progress in that direction had been achieved in Hesse, Wuertemberg-Baden and the city-state of Bremen in the United States zone.

Pressure In Bavaria

The fourth state, Bavaria, still couldn't bring itself to throw open secondary schools to the rank and file, despite a sharp warning when Taylor visited Munich last November.

On this last trip he got American authorities to issue a direct order to the Bavarian Ministry of Education to abolish tuition in high schools and furnish free text books.

Dr. Taylor says the German universities will be the next field where democracy must be introduced. He has given authorities in Germany his recommendations for a survey to gather facts and figures on higher education as it is fitting into the task of democratizing Germany.

"I would say they (the universities) form the area of education in which there has been the least progress," he said, "but that's a horseback opinion from brief observation."

Regional 'Grad' Schools Still an Aim of the South

By Henry Lesesne

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 6.—The South's plan for regional graduate schools isn't dead by any means. Despite Congressional shelving of a bill approving the interstate compact, leaders in the Southern movement are quietly at work and believe the program can be put into operation.

The necessary legislation hit a snag in Congress because of the segregation issue, but Southern governors and educators feel it can be brought up successfully next year. So a detailed plan for graduate schools for both races is now being blue-printed for the future.

The South will go so far in the matter of political, educational, and economic rights for the Negro, but it is not ready to do away with segregation now or in the foreseeable future.

Dr. John E. Ivey of the University of North Carolina has been appointed to prepare a detailed plan on which the South can build a regional educational system.

Only One Approved

ONLY one State legislature—South Carolina's—approved the compact this year before the enabling legislation hit the snag in Congress. Approval of all the States is not absolutely necessary to the plan, but there isn't much doubt all the legislatures will act favorably. Most of them meet early next year.

Less than a year ago Congressional approval of the interstate compact was regarded as little more than a formality, but an election year and the civil rights fight were hardly conducive to a realistic approach to a regional program of paramount importance and as soon as the segregation issue was injected the fight was temporarily lost.

The regional plan does not, of course, originate segregation. It is a practice in all the 14 States. The South isn't, obviously, ready to abolish segregation, and establishment of separate schools of higher education in each field in every State is both educationally and economically unsound, from the Southern viewpoint.

Negro organizations oppose the program because it continues the policy of segregation and they insist it will not bring about anything approximating equality. The Southern governors and educators say the plan also embraces regional schools for whites in some fields also.

Long Discussed

THE regional plan has been long discussed by Southern sociologists. For almost a decade the plan cropped up in every annual meeting of the Southern Governors Conference, but it was not until early this year that anything concrete was proposed, and by then the civil rights program of President Truman had stirred up an everlatent sectionalism in a political year.

Nevertheless, the supporters of the movement feel that a good start has been made. Individual States are being compelled to provide or project additional graduate facilities for the minority race. But Southerners feel the regional plan is the only adequate solution in our time.

As a milestone of progress, it is significant that even a decade ago the South definitely would have turned a cold shoulder to the regional education plan, insofar as it involved the minority race, but today it is generally favored throughout the region. And some nationally known educators ouside the South have agreed it is the only workable plan for the present.

To Inaugurate President

Greensburg, Pa., Nov. 6.—The Rev. William Granger Ryan, priest of the Diocese of Brooklyn, will be inaugurated as president of Seton Hill College on Thursday, November 11. Father Ryan was elected to office last April to fill a vacancy created a year before by the death of Dr. James A. Reeves.

The Headmaster in Germany

Democracy Moves Underground

By Fred M. Hechinger

MUNICH (via airmail).—The democratic forces in Germany have started to move underground. They are slowly returning to the methods which they had to use during the Hitler period. The main difference is that there are not even as many of them today as there were then.

In Munich the anti-Fascist, anti-Communist group of progressive educators has formed an "educational resistance." It operates in a way similar to resistance movements in police states —by educational infiltration, by placing sympathizers in strategic positions, by trying to put pressure on the "hostile" authorities. The tragic irony is that the enemy of these democratic Germans is the German ministry, the German official. Their aim is the western democratic aim, but they can no longer fight for it openly.

To see one of the leading spokesmen of that small group I needed an introduction from a friend. The name served as a "password," and Dr. K. then spoke freely.

"In 1945 a group of anti-Nazi educators met in my house," he said. "It was a small group, but our total was more than 100 years in concentration camps. We planned to pin our hope and action on the democratic reorientation of our country, and we believed that you wanted to help us. Well, we seem to have bet on the wrong horse, but since we've fought illegally against the Nazis before, we are ready to fight against the neo-Fascists, the nationalists and the Communists all at the same time."

When I told Dr. K. that the education and cultural relations division of military government is prepared to join in that educational battle, he offered his and his friends' aid. "We will be called collaborators," he said. "But there is no other hope."

Tactfully Dr. K. suggested that it would be best for him to introduce me to another important member of the "educational underground." The fact was simply that this introduction was necessary if my visit was to be worthwhile.

Nazi Domination

DR. H., who had been a progressive educationist for many years, had recently been dismissed from the Bavarian Ministry of Education. The "disciplinary action" had been taken on a technicality involving an order by the United States military government as a pretext. Actually it is well known that Dr. H. had been in disfavor ever since he had spoken up against the Nazi and nationalist-tainted faculty of the university and supported the school reform plan.

More than a year ago an investigation of the universities in Bavaria revealed appalling conditions of Nazi-domination among the faculty. Counterintelligence swooped down on these institutions, and a clean-up was effected. In Munich 33 professors were dismissed on Military Government order.

By September of this year, 26 of the 33 had returned to the faculty. They had been denazified and their positions had been held open for them. In many instances eligible, non-nationalist professors had been turned down in the meantime. One member of the faculty told me openly that he hoped the remaining seven would be brought back soon. "They are experts in their fields," he said. "We can use good men, and politics are not the concern of the school."

One member of the "educational underground" told me that he had assisted actively in the process of denazification. Today he cites the case of Prof. Karl Friedrich Bauer, formerly of Munich University's anatomical institute. During the war he had been a leading member of the notorious SS-medical corps, according to authoritative reports.

In 1945 Professor Bauer was dismissed by Military Government order. A few weeks ago he was appointed director of the anatomical department at the University of Erlangen.

'Hope of Despair'

"THAT'S the result of my efforts on behalf of a better Germany," shrugged my Bavarian friend. "All we have left now is the hope of despair."

It was revealed that decisions concerning appointees to the faculty are made in secret session at the university. An unfavorable affidavit signed by any one of the inner circle is sufficient to blacklist the candidate, and there is no channel of appeal. Recently one such affidavit, signed by one of the leading professors, mysteriously fell into the hands of the "educational underground." The result was that the author of the character defamation immediately retracted his statements.

While American education experts are trying desperately to fight against the remaining—and growing—strongholds of nationalism and neo-Fascism, the Bavarian education authorities have managed subtly to get rid of our most effective allies.

Dr. Oskar Vogelhuber, advocate of progressive teacher-training methods in the Ministry of Education, found himself retired although older colleagues are being kept on their reactionary jobs.

Senior education official Dr. Baumann, school reform advocate for more than 20 years, was thrown out of the ministry as soon as Dr. Alois Hundhammer took over.

Meanwhile the forces of political reaction and nationalism are doing everything within their considerable power to block the efforts of United States and progressive German educators. Visits to a number of classrooms demonstrated plainly that the outmoded, authoritarian method of teaching is still predominant. A young high-school teacher, trained in the old tradition, pointed out that he had a number of army veterans in his class.

"They are bad students," he said. "They have not learned enough. We must be very strict with them now, and then we can hope that many of them will fail to pass their examinations."

One of our "underground" friends pleaded: "You can't permit the politicians to postpone the reform any longer. We need new and newly trained teachers in a hurry. You may be able to stop the hands of a clock, but time moves on. And you can't stop our children from growing up physically and mentally."

Few Illusions

THE majority of our education officials in Military Government have no illusions about the magnitude of the job which confronts them. They know it will do no good to cry over time lost by their predecessors; but they are alarmed and frustrated by the present occupation policy which reduces their powers to advisory level.

At the recent conference of the entire United States education staff at Berchtesgaden the overwhelming majority expressed the fear that this policy would make their position increasingly hopeless. Only an insignificant minority tried to cling to the high-level policy of expecting democracy to spring automatically and full-grown out of the poisoned body of German politics.

The majority view was expressed by Dr. Crabill, chief of the education and cultural relations branch for Bremen. "We have come here by way of a war to make certain fundamental changes," he said. "The entire occupation becomes a farce if we delude ourselves into believing that democracy exists or could exist in Germany today."

Schoolmaster In Will Called Turner Jekyll

LONDON, Nov. 6 (AP).—Did Joseph Mallord William Turner, England's famed but eccentric master painter, really live a Jekyll-and-Hyde existence after his supposed funeral in 1851?

A Bristol schoolmaster thought he did, although public records show the great painter died and was buried that year in St. Paul's Cathedral.

For 30 years Frederick Pickles, head of St. George's Grammar School in Bristol, spent all his spare time in tracking down and trying to solve what he called the "mysterious and baffling" story of Turner's life.

He ended up convinced that Turner lived in hiding for many years after his "so-called death" in 1851 and left many unknown masterpieces.

Pickles kept his hobby to himself during his lifetime. The strange story was disclosed recently in the will left by the schoolmaster, who died last April at over 80 years of age. It was greeted skeptically by art critics.

In his will Pickles wrote he had "for the last 30 years been engaged in continuous research work on one subject only—the whereabouts and occupation of the mysterious and baffling world renowned, artist Joseph Mallord William Turner."

Declaring that the painter "played the part of Jekyll and Hyde from his youth upwards," Pickles said that "his final disappearance in the year 1851, the date of his so-called death, was just in keeping with his previous practices."

"Turner lived to be a very old man," Pickles added, "and his final refuge was in the neighborhood of Bristol, where he had relations and boyhood recollections.

"At his death he left many fine paintings and innumerable small sketches."

Pickles said in his will that he had purchased several such pictures. He said he could identify them as Turner's work even though they were unsigned.

The schoolmaster's son, R.A.F. Group Captain Kenneth F. Pickles, said his father never gave the family any details of his investigations. A spokesman of the National Gallery said the statements were "rather suspect."

Encyclopedia Britannica says Turner's "mind had evidently given way" in his later years. In 1851, the encyclopedia said, the painter disappeared and later was discovered ill in a Chelsea lodging house. He died the next day, December 19, 1851, at the age of 76, the encyclopedia says, and was buried in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Saint Elizabeth Students Make Broadcast to Italy

Convent, N. J., Nov. 6.—Four students who are studying Italian at Saint Elizabeth College participated in a broadcast to Italy over station WRUL, a non-profit foundation which broadcasts information programs to foreign countries.

The students, who were introduced by Maristella Bove, professor of modern languages at the college, spoke in Italian on the democratic way of life at the college and also on what aspects of Italian culture appeal to students in the United States.

The broadcast was one of the Italian series originally initiated by Mrs. Francesca Braggiotti Lodge, wife of Congressman John Davis Lodge.

New Research Unit at McGill

Montreal, Nov. 6.—For the first time in its history, McGill University, which made its early reputation in the teaching of medicine, now has a building completely devoted to medical research.

Opened last week, the Donner Building provides facilities for concentrated study in such fields as biophysics, experimental surgery, clinical psychology and dental pathology.

The building, which cost $315,004 to erect and equip, was the gift of William H. Donner, of Philadelphia, following his visit to Montreal in 1946. The university, through the McGill Fund, is engaged in raising $9,075,000 for the further expansion of overcrowded facilities.

VMI Gets Gift Of $30,000

Lexington, Va., Nov. 6.—A gift of $30,000 to the VMI Foundation, Inc., from Leonard K. Nicholson, president of the Times-Picayune Publishing Co., New Orleans, La., was announced last week by Maj. Gen. Richard J. Marshall, superintendent of the Virginia Military Institute.

Nicholson, a graduate of the class of 1901, made the gift in honor of his classmate and former roommate at VMI, Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

The fund will be named for the Secretary, and income from it will be used to assist faculty members in graduate studies at other institutions of higher learning.

Whistle Stopping

Hills of Old Pennsylvania

By Orval Hopkins

IN a moment of unaccountable lightheartedness I undertook, a week or so ago, to transport myself and a staggering proportion of my family to Bedford, Pa., a village in south-central Pennsylvania some 30 miles north of Cumberland, Md. I had made reservations at the Bedford Springs Hotel, which is a couple of miles outside the town, and had visions of a quick trip in our aging but durable automobile, of arriving in time for lunch and of manfully touring the Bedford Springs golf course in the afternoon.

"We'll get away at 8 sharp," I announced to wife and progeny, waving my arms in an authoritative manner which never fails to bring on apathy in the children, "and we'll be there in time for . . ." Well, we left at 11:35, proceeded to Bethesda, where we left our youngest, a male with red hair, yelling at his grandmother, who smiled heroically and wished us a happy journey. And so, as a matter of fact, it was. I had called the AAA and told them importantly which way I was going, but a patient young man advised me to take another route and it turned out to be excellent counsel. This way led to Hagerstown, west to Hancock, Md., (not, of course, forgetting Frederick, where Polly, 7, got the unadorned word about Barbara Frietchie—spelled Fritchie, in Frederick), thence north to Breezewood, Pa., and west to Bedford.

My car quit on me a few miles from our destination—just coughed and quietly died. I crossed the road and threw a few rocks, cursing all the gods and particularly the one which watches over Buicks. However, my wife, a resourceful woman, simply moved into the driver's seat, pressed the starter and off went the motor. I never did find out what the trouble was, but I don't think the AAA was in any way to blame.

We rolled up without further mishap to the Bedford Springs Hotel, where our first act was to drop and break a fifth-size bottle of whisky which we had brought along for medicinal purposes. Shaken by this occurrence, we repaired to the two large, beautiful rooms assigned us and, after the usual violent struggle with Sam (4) and Polly, went down to dinner. This, as did all other meals we partook of at the hotel, proved a delicious repast, nicely served in a dining hall which looked at first to be several blocks long. Actually it was only a couple of hundred yards.

We were greeted at breakfast the next morning by G. Bland Hoke, manager of the hotel, an affable, industrious, bustly man who was in the double throes of entertaining the Pennsylvania Hotel Greeters and converting his own charge to a winter basis. Hoke told me that the main portion of the hotel, consisting of a central section and two almost endless three- and four-story wings, was built more than 100 years ago, and had been used as a summer White House by President Buchanan. This entire section is closed for the winter, Hoke said, while a large modern annex, built in 1923 and called Barclay House, and the golf clubhouse, which includes a cozy dining room and bar, remain open.

The hotel maintains a swimming pool and a small stable of horses. I was able to keep my children away from the former, but not the latter. Polly and Sam had leisurely rides on a black and white horse named Spot, though Polly's proved something less than dull when Spot broke into a slow canter, probably in impatience at plodding dolefully around the ring. Polly enjoyed this immensely, but it nearly turned her father gray.

The golf course is an 18-hole job, but only nine were open because of the lateness of the season. I toured this portion, actually a fairly easy layout, twice and failed to crack 60 either time. I was directly, in other words, on my game.

We left a couple of days later, after having a most enjoyable sojourn. Hoke and his good wife waved us Godspeed and we headed for home through the beautiful, autumn-touched, hazy Pennsylvania countryside. We returned through Cumberland, Romney, West Va., and Winchester and Leesburg, Va. Good road all the way, though I made the mistake of stopping for a time in Leesburg and like to never got out of the place. Traffic's worse than at 14th and E.

WORD COMES from Lew Herschel, who is basking (and working, he says) in Florida, that Albert A. Ady has been appointed county publicity director by the Sarasota Chamber of Commerce. Ady formerly was editor of the Montgomery County Sentinel, Rockville, Md., and correspondent for The Washington Post. He also founded the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Charm School, which teaches young beauties how to model, and I can't think of a nicer line of work.

Miami All Ready To Chill Gamblers

By Robert Vermillion
United Press Staff Correspondent

Miami, Fla., Nov. 6 (U.P.).—Northern gambling mobs and the small fry hoodlums who follow the big money are heading for the Miami winter playground this year with the happy expectation that the "lid is off."

They may be wrong.

A man who knows them, from the first rap they beat to their brand of cigarette, is waiting with a bulky dossier on who they are and what they plan to do.

Daniel P. Sullivan, director of the Greater Miami Crime Commission, hopes to do with publicity, evidence and the backing of 90 indignant civic groups what the law has been unable to do with its own weapons.

No Cause for Alarm

"There's no cause for alarm," Sullivan said, but the commission wants to make Greater Miami "safe for the legitimate tourist who desires to spend a happy and peaceful winter vacation here."

To accomplish that, the commission wants the town shut down tight, tighter than it was recently when police grabbed a bank of slot machines from city-owned property, only 100 yards from the American Legion's national convention hall.

Sullivan, a former FBI man with a good head for facts and evidence, said the mobs expect to run again this year in both Dade and Broward counties, which comprise Greater Miami.

He put the finger on the men who plan to do it.

Starting with the first big rush of tourist money southward, the gamblers expect wide-open action in at least three Dade County houses.

He's "on the Inside"

Sullivan said there were indications that a "New Jersey mob has put money up for the purpose of starting up these clubs."

Sullivan wants the New York-Chicago mob, headed by Frank Costello, to know that the crime commission is on the inside of their plan to open a club in Broward County. Costello represented by his nephew, Joe Doto, better known as "Joe Adonis," operated the Colonial Club last year. It was closed late in the season by a court injunction.

Others in this mob include Vincent Alo, alias "Jimmy Blue-Eyes," Meyer "The Bug," Lansky, and Frank Erickson, labeled New York Public Enemy No. 1 by the late Mayor Fiorello La Guardia.

The crime commission also knows, according to Sullivan, that Lefty Clark, who was a prohibition-era gambling house operator in the Detroit riverfront town of Ecorse, Mich., expects to be running the New York crap game at a club in Broward County.

From police departments in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles and Youngstown, Ohio, and from his own local sources, Sullivan said he knows that the "old Capone gang, now headed by Jack 'Greasy Thumb' Guzik, operators of a Nation-wide horse race bookie service," also hope to play and profit in Florida this winter.

Many Are Cold

Sullivan called the roll on a long list of other mobsters hoping to recoup in Florida for a "lean" season this summer in such watering and gambling resorts as Saratoga, N. Y.

They included Chicagoans Max Caldwell, Pete Tremont, Ralph Bugio, the latter two "former Capone gangsters now numbers operators on Chicago's South Side," and Pat Manno, Tremont's partner.

Youngstown's contingent may be headed by Joe "Toto" de Carlo of "the notorious de Carlo-Aiello Gang," Sullivan said.

Jane Bishop of Chicago holds three types of International credit cards now being issued by United Air Lines. By making deposit with any airline subscribing to the plan, traveler may obtain cards good for (1) unrestricted travel; (2) territorial use in North America, the West Indies, the Bahamas, Newfoundland and Hawaii, or (3) use within limitations imposed by individual countries.

Hotels Build Motor Courts in Florida

By Malcolm Johnson

TALLAHASSEE, Fla, Nov. 6 (AP). New motor courts are springing up faster than hotels to serve Florida's millions of travelers.

Some of them have everything a hotel can offer—room service, dining facilities, cocktail lounges. A few even have swimming pools, or are built adjacent to bathing beaches and golf courses.

They are taking away some of the business that used to go to hotels, but there is room for both, says State Hotel Commissioner J. Lee Ballard, and the competition is healthy:

There already are signs that hotels and motor courts are attracting different types of travelers, and a new pattern of patronage is being cut.

The motor courts get their business almost entirely from the automobile traveler who likes the convenience of being able to drive up to the door and unload his luggage directly into the room without bothering about parking.

On the other hand, it is the hotels that get the people who travel by plane, bus, train and other common carriers. Some hotels have so much business of that type they have built suburban motor courts to care for the automobile travelers they can't accommodate.

Ballard, a hotel owner himself, supervises construction and management of all Florida lodging and eating houses—the Nation's largest per capital concentration of travelers' accommodations.

In the last five years, 650 new motor courts and 255 new hotels have been built in the State, Ballard reported. That gives Florida a total of 1550 hotels with 86,000 rooms and 1800 motor courts with 28,000 rooms.

Ballard said most motor court managers still have a lot to learn if they are going to compete with the trained personnel of conventional hotels.

"They are failing to maintain their establishments and services in a manner which will result in a return business.

"As an example, many motor court operators are overlooking such small but highly important details as providing bathmats, fresh soap and other bathroom supplies and mattress covers."

Adequate heating is another problem of the motor courts with their separate cottages.

Although motor court rates generally are lower than those of hotels, Ballard said there "had been a recent trend toward increasing them to a point where considerable resistance from the public is being met.

"Usually there is no justification for higher rates because motor courts are constructed at moderate costs, and are operated at much lower costs than downtown hotels."

Balancing himself on tail, Rooney cuts loose with his best blow, a solar-plexus punch.

New Champ from Australia

Rooney the Kangaroo packs wallop in four feet, tail

UNLIKE JOE LOUIS, whom he hopes someday to dethrone, Rooney the kangaroo is a vegetarian. But he's tough, fast and full of ring savvy—and can hit hard with four feet and a tail.

That Rooney, known to his followers as the Pride of Australia, will ever ascend to the heavyweight throne is extremely doubtful. In the first place, he has persistently refused to abide by the Marquis of Queensbury rules. In addition, it is suspected that he has a glass jaw.

But in his own habitation—a zoo in Sydney—Rooney is tops. He works out every day, takes on all comers, has never been stopped and has amassed a string of victories as long as his tail.

Rooney knows his business but he has no use for the rules

A fancy Dan in the ring, Rooney steps back, sizing up opponent. Cagy, he's looking for opening.

As opponent moves in, Rooney leads with left. Tail gives Rooney balance needed in ring career.

Right hook by opponent snaps Rooney's head back but, like all smart ringmen, keeps guard up.

Punished by in-fighting, Rooney clinches, prepares to give opponent his solar-plexus punch.

Rooney's guile, tricky footwork floors opponent for full count. In ring, Rooney employs same dangerous tactics he uses when hunting rabbits which he grabs in front paws, kills with hind legs. THE END.

Mabel Studebaker

"Our very survival as a free nation depends on good schools"

MABEL STUDEBAKER, just out of Smith College in 1923, was headed for a medical career when she stopped off for a short summer visit with her parents in Erie, Pa. Two years later, she was teaching eager Erie youngsters the wonders of nature, and today, the tall, personable biology instructor is president of the National Education Association of the United States — one of the highest honors a member of her profession can receive.

She heads the N.E.A. . . :

This week, by proxy, she will be host to about ten million persons as they take time out from their normal activities to visit the nation's schools—part of the 28th annual observance of American Education Week.

In an American Education Week message, Miss Studebaker stresses education's importance as a means of strengthening the foundations of freedom. "America's very survival as a free nation depends on good schools," she declares. "They are the bulwarks of freedom, for the children of today will be the America of tomorrow. They will develop our resources, advance science and industry, create new works of art, promote the general welfare, make laws, and cope with international issues. They will face formidable and complex problems. How well they deal with them depends in large part upon the kind of education they receive now. To prepare them effectively for the work of their time is to help build the future security and greatness of our nation."

When Miss Studebaker left Smith College in 1923, she spent most of the summer at a Cape Cod biological research laboratory. This, she considered, would be good training for the fall when she would enter medical college. Then, came the trip home to Erie. Her father, a physician, didn't believe the medical profession was too promising, in those days, for a woman's life work. Her mother, a school teacher, thought teaching was excellent. The result: Miss Studebaker forgot about the medical career and enrolled in the Erie branch of Edinboro Teachers College. In 1925, she started teaching general science and biology in an Erie junior high school, and, two years ago, joined the faculty of Erie's Strong Vincent High School, from which she is now on a year's leave-of-absence.

Miss Studebaker was elected president of the N.E.A. at the Association's 86th annual convention last July 9 in Cleveland. A week later she was flying to London for a session of the World Organization of the Teaching Profession. This was followed by a fast trip to Paris and another to Switzerland. Ever since, because the demands by teachers' groups throughout the country on an N.E.A. head are numerous, she has been practically living out of a suitcase. Last month, for example, she attended conferences in 15 cities along the eastern seaboard from New York to Miami, and as far west as St. Paul. The rest of her year's term will follow the same pattern. Miss Studebaker agrees it's exciting, despite the nomadic aspects, but, now and then a nostalgic note for the comparative peace and quiet of a biology class creeps into her conversation.

Education in Alcohol

N. Y. U. uncovers new approach to problem

BY FRANK DE BLOIS

"NOT THROUGH MERE PERVERSITY," William James once wrote, "do men run after drink. To the poor and unlettered it stands in the place of symphony concerts and literature."

Since James' day the trickle of alcohol down the nation's throat has grown into a Niagara, and man's concern with the motivations that drive his fellowman to drink has increased in proportion. Today physicians, psychiatrists, church leaders, social workers, charlatans and crack-pots all have developed separate and distinct ideas on why 64 million thirsty Americans annually spend nearly nine billion dollars on distilled spirits, and why 750,000 U. S. citizens have drunk themselves ill of alcoholism.

Such widely divergent organizations as the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Licensed Beverage Industries, Inc., the National Committee for Education on Alcohol, Alcoholics Anonymous and the Yale Plan have been probing into alcoholism for years, and rarely have their findings agreed. State governments have fought alcoholism in the legislatures; city governments have fought it through locally-sponsored projects, and independent civic groups have been fighting it all over the land. Alcoholism has been attacked as a sin, as a crime, as a physical disease and as a symbol of mental disintegration. But not yet is it universally understood even by those who explore it.

Most recent serious entry into the field of alcoholic study is Manhattan's mammoth, busy New York University, which last summer opened an institute in school and community problems in alcohol education, the first of its kind to be held at an American university. At the institute, emphasis was placed on three aspects of alcoholism: (1) on public health, medical, social, legislative, research and rehabilitation problems; (2) on the evaluation of techniques and materials used in the study of alcoholism and (3) on the development of a resource unit for instruction in alcohol education.

"This institute," says Professor Morey Fields, director of the health education curriculum at N.Y.U., "has been planned to assist those who hold, or are prepared for leadership in health education as well as for those who are concerned with the social implications of alcohol problems and who want to participate in services to society, education and rehabilitation of the individual."

Lecturers Represented Many Fields

GUEST LECTURERS included Dr. Anton J. Carlson, renowned physiologist at the University of Chicago; Dr. Ralph Banay, former director of the psychiatric clinic at Sing Sing; Dr. A. Z. Pfeffer, attending neuropsychiatrist at New York's Bellevue Hospital; Dr. Sam Parker, director of psychiatry of New York City's Department of Hospitals; Mrs. Marty Mann, executive director of the National Committee for Education in Alcoholism; Joseph Hirsh, acting head of the Research Council on Problems in Alcohol; and Helen G. H. Estelle, president of the New York State Women's Christian Temperance Union. In panel discussions, the students exchanged opinions with a member of Alcoholics Anonymous, a state senator, a Salvation Army leader and a representative of the distillers' interests.

For three weeks, the institute's students—most of whom were school teachers, social workers and nurses—listened to the speakers, visited New York hospitals, courts and mission homes, then drew their own conclusions on man and alcohol.

Although none of the speakers could wholly agree on why men drink, most of them did agree that of the 62 million Americans who drink the overwhelming majority are unharmed by alcohol. Of the 750,000 who are already alcoholics, however, none can ever take a drink again in safety.

Dr. Carlson, the institute's first speaker, placed responsibility for the problems of alcoholism on public opinion. "Americans," he said, "feel that alcoholism is a sin. But the problem is not as simple as that. Alcoholism is a sickness that the intelligent citizen cannot be satisfied with curing alone. We must also find methods of prevention."

That even scientists are not wholly in agreement on alcohol was illustrated by Bellevue's Dr. Pfeffer, who followed Dr. Carlson and defined the alcoholic as "a sick person for whom drinking is the symptom of an underlying emotional problem."

Speaking on the neuropsychiatric aspects of alcoholism, Dr. Pfeffer observed that the alcoholic is always a profoundly disturbed person, even before actual alcoholism begins.

"The alcoholic," he pointed out, "is dependent; he shuns responsibility, attaches himself to strong women and lacks self-confidence. He is hostile to the world, he feels cheated. Usually he has developed in childhood the sense of anxiety which eventually may lead him down the one-way street to alcoholism."

Parents, teachers, health and social workers were among students attending N.Y.U.'s institute on alcohol.

These students

MUSICIAN

"I am a musician," said Frank Gullo, an instructor of music at Penn State and a graduate student at New York University, "and the discords of life have always been of as much interest to me as its harmonies. Like music, alcohol can produce both. Consumed in moderation its effects are often harmonious. Taken in excess, its discords may ruin or even destroy a man's life. I believe that an institute such as this one at N.Y.U. can perform an important public service if it merely increases the public's concern with this social problem."

Even the psychiatrists differ on drink's effects on man . . .

IN THE U. S. RIGHT NOW there are from 20 to 40 million people in need of psychiatric assistance or care. Five million of these are psychoneurotics, more than a million are mentally deficient. For all of these, psychiatrists addressing the institute were agreed, there are great and dangerous implications in drink. But for most other members of the population, drink apparently has no adverse effect.

Speaking on "Delinquency, Crime and Alcoholism," prison psychiatrist Dr. Ralph Banay joined the institute's speakers in lashing out at the public's misconceptions of unconventional social behaviour.

Our social philosophy and attitude toward crime and delinquency is still based on somewhat medieval principles, Dr. Banay held. "The criminal, the delinquent, the wrong-doer all have a strong moral connotation," he said. "The individual who is compelled by external force rather than inner inclination to adapt certain standardized behaviour patterns becomes automatically a public enemy, irrespective of whether he can comply with the demands of his environment or society. The law, unfortunately, doesn't recognize emotional disturbance."

"Alcohol alone," declared Dr. Banay, "does not induce anyone to crime. Through centuries of tradition, alcohol has become a medium of merrymaking and a solvent of sorrows, the poor man's solace and the rich man's luxury. It is used as an eye-opener and as a night-cap, for bracing one up or for relaxing one, to increase appetite or aid digestion, to relieve sickness or stimulate health, to celebrate at the baptism or condole at the wake. This multitudinous and metaphysical reasoning points to the real quality which drink possesses—of being all things to all men, depending on the man, the time and place."

During a five-year period at Sing Sing, Dr. Banay noted that 16 per cent of the criminals were intoxicated at the time they committed their crimes. Few of these, he discovered, were basically psychotic, but some of them showed such symptoms as hallucinations and delusions which indicated that they were suffering from neuroses.

"In my opinion," said Dr. Banay, "the conclusion that alcohol plays a great role in crime causation is erroneous. The fact is that there are latent conflicts in the personality which will in time propel the individual either in the direction of mental disease or into crime as a result of accumulated tensions within. Alcohol might act as an accelerating agent for these developments, but without personality defects, emotional conflicts, or disorganization, crime cannot ever be committed."

Four Standard Treatments Utilized

AT PRESENT, there are four main types of treatment for the alcoholic. The first is that sponsored by Alcoholics Anonymous. The second is the conditioned-reflex treatment where the alcoholic is given a drink and an emetic which causes nausea. Afterwards, he associates drinking with regurgitation, and this psychological aversion sometimes turns him from drink. The third recognized treatment is psychotherapy, and the fourth is the Yale Plan, in which a public clinic combines the techniques of social work, psychotherapy and medical treatment.

The manner in which the hospital aspect of alcohol is handled—in the opinion of Dr. Sam Parker, the third psychiatrist to address the institute—is influenced by anti-ethical ways of thinking.

"The traditional approach to alcoholism," said Dr. Parker, "is that it is a vice and that the alcoholic is a moral reprobate. This conception derives from an outdated era in which puritanical notions contaminated science. Under the domination of this attitude towards alcoholism, the alcoholic deserved punishment rather than help. Consequently, hospitalization was believed to be too good for the victim, and the less money or hospital space devoted to him, the greater was thought to be the savings. The only alcoholics actually hospitalized in our sense of the word were those who were already beyond the threshold of physical or mental salvation. The others were kept isolated and ostracized, and jail was felt to be just about good enough for them."

With the deeper insight that psychiatry has given us into the nature and causes of alcoholism, Dr. Parker believes that the alcoholic now has come to be understood as a special kind of neurotic. This approach, of course, demands handling the alcoholic as a patient.

"With progressive acceptance of enlightening psychiatric insight into the nature of alcoholism," Dr. Parker said, "the handling of these cases should gradually become acceptable for treatment within the confines of the general hospital, where the psychiatric teams of the staff, in conjunction with the local Alcoholics Anonymous groups, can have a socially-accepted opportunity to treat this disease as if it were no different from any other."

As the institute sessions drew to a close, panel discussions on the rehabilitation of alcoholics and education in alcohol were held. A member of Alcoholics Anonymous was joined by leaders of the Salvation Army, the W.C.T.U., the licensed beverage industry, the Y.M.C.A. and the National Committee for Education in Alcohol in outlining steps now being taken to understand alcoholism and save the alcoholic. When the panel had concluded, an interested observer might well have turned to his neighbor and remarked that divergent as opinions were on alcohol, the institute's lecturers seemed all to agree, at least, with Finley Peter Dunne's whimsical Mr. Dooley, who once remarked of whiskey that "Tis a bad thing to stand on, a good thing to sleep on, a good thing to talk on, a bad thing to walk on."

worked out the problems of alcoholism at N. Y. U. Institute

WRITER

The public health aspects of the problem of alcoholism motivated Yolande Lyon to enroll at N.Y.U.'s Institute. Miss Lyon, a former newspaper reporter and at present a writer employed by the National Health Council, is a believer in temperance. "It seems strange to me," she said, "that our patterns of behaviour have become so rigid that a person refusing to drink at a cocktail party is regarded as peculiar. A broader understanding of the entire problem of alcoholism is needed in our communities."

HEALTH WORKER

For several years, Marvin D. Mills has been a case worker employed by New York City's Queen County Tuberculosis and Health Association. "I have not come into contact with a great deal of alcoholism in this work," he said, "but through the years of dealing with sickness I have come to recognize the existence of a disease called alcoholism, a disease usually unchecked and scorned, yet one that each year is warping the lives of thousands of our citizens. It was to learn more of this sickness that I enrolled at N. Y. U."

TEACHER

"College girls today are full of curiosity," said Mrs. Eva Claire Ohlmeyer,. a housewife, mother and instructor in physical education at St. Mary's College in South Bend, Ind. "They are interested in problems which in grandmother's day were taboo. They ask a lot of questions and, consequently, a teacher must know a lot of answers. I have found that the social aspects of alcohol have become increasingly interesting to college girls throughout the country, and I want to make sure I know what I'm talking about."

Y.M.C.A. SECRETARY

"Although the Y.M.C.A.'s concern with alcoholism is great," said Samuel A. Williams, "we don't encounter much of it in our club rooms. Our members aren't alcoholics, and our interest is largely in the broader picture. As Christians, we are interested in a Christian approach to the illness of drink, and as Y.M.C.A. workers we are interested in physical, mental and moral rehabilitation of the alcohol sufferer. I am interested in the legislative side of the problem. I believe the State should care for its alcoholics." THE END.

On the banks of the St. Martin canal, Jean Jaquet, 13, stops to pass the time of day with a fisherman and his dog. A war orphan, Jean lives with his grandparents and has been "adopted" by a group of 15 Americans who send funds to France each month to assist in his support.

Afternoon in Paris

French boy relives memories in stroll along the Seine

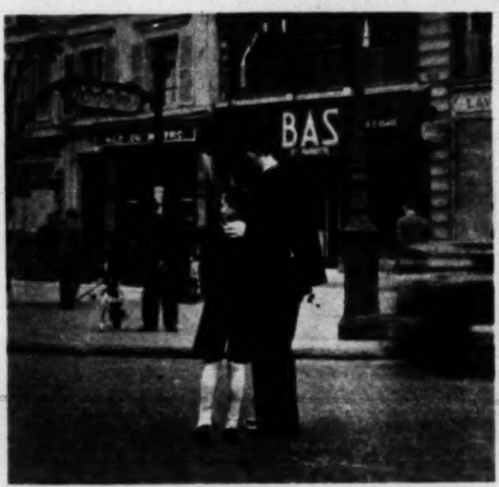
THANKS TO THE AID of 15 Americans, Jean Jaquet is a boy who can afford to look to the future as well as into the tragic past as he walks along the streets of Paris in the afternoon.

The things that lie in Jean's past are not pleasant to remember. In June 1940 —when he was five—his father, an infantry private in the French army, was killed during the German break-through at Sedan. A year later, his mother was killed in an air raid, and Jean was sent to Normandy where he lived with an aunt until the Allies had liberated Paris. Then he returned to live with his grandparents, both of whom worked all day in a desperate battle against economic insecurity. The battle was an endless one.

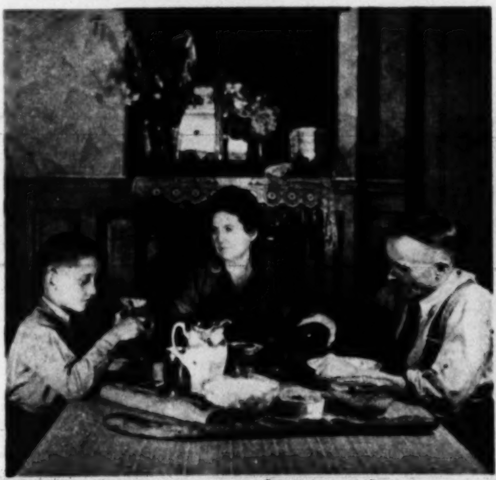
But today Jean is looking ahead once again. Last May, through the assistance of the American Foster Parents Plan for War Children, he was "adopted" by 15 Hollywood technicians who each month send funds to France to assist in his support. From his American friends Jean also has received gift packages containing clothes, canned foods, a camera, writing paper, chewing gum and a yo-yo. "They're very good to me," he says simply. "And maybe some day I shall go to America and thank them all."

At home, Jean has built a niche for himself in the lives of his grandparents. Before school each morning he makes the beds, washes the dishes, cleans the house and shines his grandfather's shoes. After school he does the family shopping, visits his nine-year-old friend the concierge's daughter and walks about Paris, visiting again the half-forgotten places he knew before the war.

Because both of his grandparents work, Jean does the family housekeeping and shopping after school.



Cop on the corner, Gendarme Louis, is another good friend to fatherless Jean, an orphan since 1941.



Fish, bread, cheese, wine are Parisians' dinner staples. Jean aids grandparents in struggle for security.

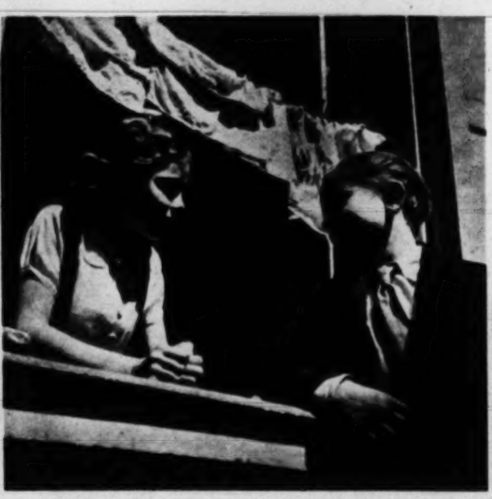
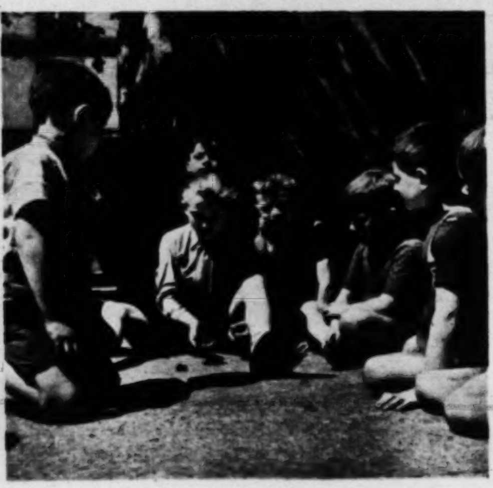
"He's trying to remember," his grandmother explains to friends.

"When I grow up," Jean says, "I shall become a locomotive engineer and travel free of charge, see the country at full speed and repair the engine myself when it does not work."

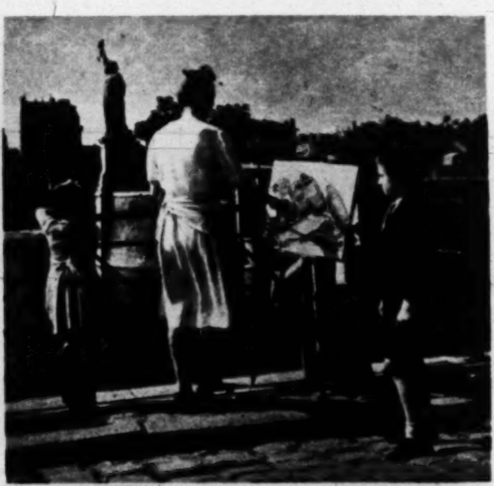
For Jean, the process of growing-up has been an awakening from the nightmare of childhood, a nightmare destroyed by 15 Americans whose "private Marshall Plan" has given him hope.



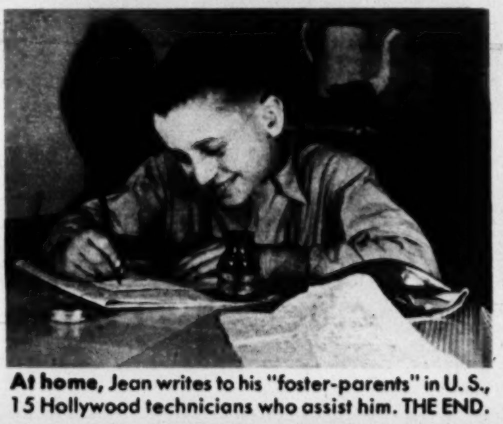
Jean's best friend is Edith Doublet, 9, daughter of the concierge. They talk for a while every day.



For generations, French boys have played knucklebones in the school-yards, and Jean is no exception.



On banks of the Seine Jean watches an artist at work. Miniature Statue of Liberty dominates the river.



At home, Jean writes to his "foster-parents" in U. S., 15 Hollywood technicians who assist him. THE END.

Thousands who are tired and pale can regain energy and healthy good looks with Ironized Yeast Tablets

Do household tasks exhaust your energy and leave you feeling fatigued and irritable? Do you look older than your years? Is your color poor? These signs often spring from a blood condition. You may have a Borderline Anemia, due to a ferro-nutritional blood deficiency. The red cells in your blood may be too weak to transmit full energy to your body. Results of medical surveys show that up to 68% of the women examined—many men and children—have this Borderline Anemia.

How Ironized Yeast Tablets build up your blood and vigor

If this common blood deficiency is robbing you of your healthy color and normal energy, take Ironized Yeast Tablets. They are specially formulated to help build up faded red blood cells to healthy color and size—help you reclaim your vigor and looks. Of course, continuing tiredness and pallor may be due to other conditions—so always consult your doctor regularly. But in this Borderline Anemia, take Ironized Yeast Tablets to help build up your blood. Take them to start your energy shifting back into "high"—to help restore your natural color! Take them so you really can begin to enjoy life again!

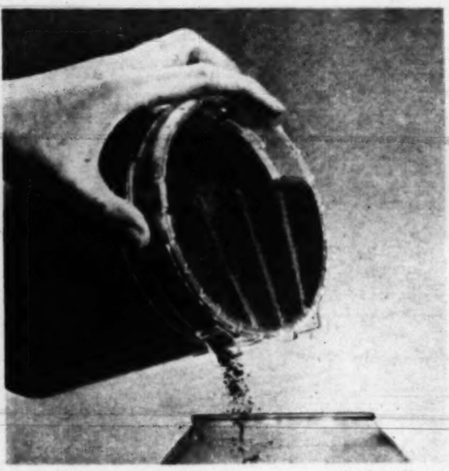
LIFE-SIZE TELEVISION is here. A new-type receiver can throw a video image varying in size from several inches up to 6 x 8 feet. For small audiences or in limited quarters, the receiver can be moved close to a screen to project a tiny picture. For large groups, the set can be moved back to throw larger images. Mounted on soft rubber wheels, the unit is highly mobile and requires no permanent installation. The set has 37 tubes.

NEW NURSERY ACCESSORY holds many items often scattered helter-skelter on floors. It attaches to any baby bathing outfit as container for soiled clothing, or can be placed on the play pen or crib to hold baby's toys.



COFFEE MEASURE takes one pound of coffee and has top compartments each holding one tablespoonful. A twist of top doles out one measure at a time. The device can be used, too, for measuring out soap chips or flakes.

"NEW LOOK" FOR BATHROOMS is provided now by cabinets equipped with fluorescent fixtures that furnish soft, shadowless light. For new or existing homes, installation charge is the same as for standard cabinets.

COMBINATION SKI AND SLED is something new for sportsters this winter. Designed as a ski-trainer as well as for snow fun, it has handlebar supports which help balance. It can be steered, braked, mastered on first try.

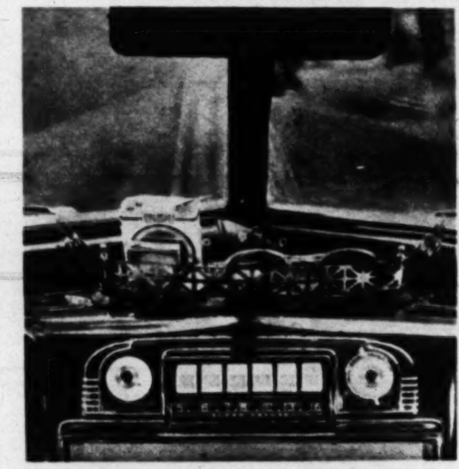
A NEW STEPLADDER is designed so you step into, not on it. Instead of the conventional treads found in most ladders, this one has hinged platforms at three convenient levels. When you stand on a platform, you're literally standing in the ladder, thus assuring firm footing directly over center of gravity. You're also closer to the job.

A DIFFERENT KIND of paint sprayer for the home is compact, fully electric, and lists at $9.95 complete. The self-contained unit can be held in the hand. It requires no motor, compressor or other extra equipment. Just plug into socket and spray. It's said to permit the amateur to get professional results. Besides the usual painting jobs around the home, it can be used for spraying light oils and garden insecticides as well.

A HAIR TWEEZER that holds and pulls hair by its own spring tension has been introduced. Working the opposite of most, it opens as you press, takes a firm grip on the hair as you release it. It's said to remove hairs painlessly; no jerking is necessary.

SMALL DESK TELEPHONE AMPLIFIER is designed to permit carrying on a telephone conversation with hands free to make notes. It allows a secretary to listen to or make stenographic record of any conversation, and provides group listening facilities. The device looks like a small table radio with a cradle on top for telephone handset. When the latter is placed in the cradle, voice of the person on other end of phone comes through via a loudspeaker. The instrument plugs in and operates from A.C. or D.C. power lines.



DASH FENCE for your car corrals elusive articles such as pipe, pouch, pack of smokes, sun glasses, keeps them always within easy reach while driving. Device fits any dashboard, attaches securely with suction cups.

Life With Family

Authority on family life says happiness is yours for the making

ALL THE GUIDANCE BOOKS in the world cannot insure your happiness. Nor can all the wise counselors of radio, discussion groups and the lecture platform devise an "absolute" way of finding it. Yet the chances are good that life—with family—can be beautiful if you do your own constructive planning and make your own decisions, rather than "live by the book." That's the theme of the recently published book, "Life with Family."*

Written by Jean Schick Grossman, an authority on parent education, and a successful mother, the book does not dismiss the real values of good guidance. It does, however, stress the importance of building your own happy home. Happiness is a personal thing, she says, and achieving it requires methods which fit your personal problems. By and large though, the book includes both good general rules and some excellent personal advice.

The author maintains, for example, that happiness exists within the family, and urges her readers to treat members of the family like friends, not merely relatives. Try just that, she says, and you've fairly well started a happy home. One particularly interesting chapter affirms her belief that "you don't have to be perfect" to create the perfect relationship between parents and children. She advises the elders not to try too hard for perfection, lest they attain what is not human.

She Learned from Others

Looking downhill, Mrs. Grossman recalls that the people who came to her for advice through the years, taught her, in turn, a good deal about raising her own family. Essentially, she writes, most people seek the same things for their children. To illustrate, she offers a report from her files: "Parents say they want: Happy, healthy, nice looking children . . . Plenty of dough . . . A good education . . . Ambition . . . Success . . . Work enough for everybody . . . A better world, fit for our kids to grow up in."

Your chances for happiness are excellent if you take time to have fun with your family. Author Jean Schick Grossman suggests you "grow young with your children."

"Mother's little helper" recognizes early the necessity for the family to pull together and share life's burdens and responsibilities. It is part of building a happy home.

AUTHOR'S SUGGESTIONS FOR LIFE WITH FAMILY

Through trial and error, Jean Schick Grossman, counselor on home life, put the following theories into successful practice while helping her family grow. Not set rules, she offers them as elastic suggestions to be adapted to your personal needs.

1. To begin with, like your children and let them know that you like them.

2. Avoid pitfalls of trying to make them over into your own image. Help them develop their own personalities.

3. Sometimes let your children find their own direction and rate of growth.

4. Admit your mistakes. Children will be encouraged to tell the truth.

5. Treat the members of your family as friends, not merely as relatives.

6. Bring your good friends home.

7. Have fun with your family.

8. Beware of "positive" promises.

9. Treat your youngsters as equals.

10. Finally, remember the old saying, "Children are quite likely to grow up in spite of parents." THE END.

Hamettes: taste-tantalizing "packages" containing ham, yams, pineapple and crisp bacon.

Hamettes

HERE IS A HONEY of an idea sent to us by a reader of this page, Miss Essa Kessey of Wilmington, Delaware. The flavor-blend of ham, yams and pineapple is a familiar one and a favorite, but Essa has wrapped it up in a new way and added the savor of bacon, too. Read, and taste: Patties of ham, seasoned with pickle relish and mustard; patties of mashed yams, flavored with the tang of orange rind; golden rings of Hawaiian pineapple—all packaged together and "tied" with strips of bacon. With only an hour to bask in the oven, the delicious Hamettes are ready for their triumphal march to the dining room table.

As each Hamette is really an individual main course, combining meat, potato and fruit, all you need to add is a green vegetable. Suppose we round out the whole menu: hot tomato juice, well-seasoned; Hamettes, green beans with a dash of nutmeg added to the other seasonings; hot rolls. Dessert? Try dark and sweet chocolate pudding made from packaged mix.

Hamettes

SUBMITTED BY MISS E. KESSEY, WILMINGTON, DEL.

2 cups ground, cooked ham*	2 tablespoons grated orange rind
1 egg
¼ cup pickle relish	½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon prepared mustard	⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 cups mashed yams	8 strips bacon

16 slices pineapple

(* Or sausage meat.)

Combine ham, egg, pickle relish and mustard. Shape into 8 patties the same size as pineapple slices. Combine mashed yams, orange rind, salt and pepper. Form into 8 patties, same size. With scissors, cut bacon strips in half lengthwise. Place a ham patty on pineapple slice, then a yam patty and another pineapple slice. Cross bacon strips; place a Hamette in center of cross. Bring ends of bacon up and over top, fasten with toothpick. Make 8 patties in the same manner. Place in baking pan, about one inch apart. Bake in moderate oven, 350° F., one hour or until bacon is crisp. Yield: 8 servings.

1 Mold savory mixture of ground, cooked ham and seasonings in neat patties, same size as pineapple slices. If pineapple slices are thick, use half as many, and cut in half crosswise.

2 Use kitchen scissors for cutting strips of bacon in half, lengthwise. Choose bacon of good quality, streaked with lean, so that it will hold shape during the long baking period.

3 Cross two strips of bacon and place a Hamette in center. Bring the ends of the bacon up and over top; fasten with a toothpick. Place in baking pan. Bake as directed. THE END.

1. For a Christmas gift to cherish, none is more perfect than a watch. For a watch is more than a wonderful surprise on Christmas morning—it echoes "Merry Christmas" through the year. Your jeweler has a wide choice of watches to show you, achievements of the skill of free craftsmen—of America and Switzerland, oldest democracies on two continents.

What to look for when you buy a watch

—the most wonderful gift of all

2. Your jeweler will show you the new styles now available—including water-resistant and shock-resistant watches, automatic self-winding and calendar watches, chronographs and other innovations from Switzerland. He will help you choose the type and style best suited for you—or the owner-to-be.

3. A water-resistant and shock-resistant watch is the ideal type for an active person. A good water-resistant watch will remain so while the crystal is intact, the case sealed, and the watch itself serviced by your competent jeweler. A good shock-resistant watch is self-protected against the shocks received in normal service.

4. One advantage of the self-winding watch is accuracy. The self-winding mechanism keeps the mainspring wound up to the same tension all the time, so that the power driving the watch mechanism is always uniform. Developed by a Swiss in 1783 as a gift for Marie Antoinette, the self-winding watch operates from the movement of the wrist.

5. How accurate should a watch be? Even the most accurate watch (the world's record* is held by a 17-jewel Swiss movement) may vary a few seconds a week, depending on wearer and weather. No matter what the make of your watch it can be serviced economically and promptly, thanks to the efficiency of the modern jeweler.

Turf's Triple-Talker

Fred Capossela's voice is familiar to track fans

FRED CAPOSSELA'S crisp announcement — "And they're off" — over a race track's public address system is as familiar to New York and Florida racing fans as a two-buck mutual ticket. But only one track addict in 100 knows what makes up Capossela's unique ability to follow that announcement with a rapid-fire description of a race, correctly calling names and positions of the horses as they run.

Every year, about 3,000 two-year-olds race for the first time, joining 17,000 older Thoroughbreds. These 20,000 horses, each with a different name, race under the individual colors of some 5,000 stables. At one time or another, "Cappy" calls a majority of these horses. While one race may only include four horses, others — particularly those for the two-year-olds—may have 20 entries. Still, Cappy seldom makes a mistake, and he calls seven or eight races a day, six days a week.

How does he do it? In the ten-minute interval from the time the horses enter the track to the moment they lunge from the starting gate, Cappy, binoculars in one hand and a program in the other, memorizes the jockeys' colors and the names of the horses they ride.

Relaxing, "Cappy" studies his stamps, one of finest private collections in U. S.

Like a magician droning an incantation, he recites: "That's Complex, Complex, with yellow and black, yellow and black. Bull, Bull, yes, Bull, red and orange, red and orange, Bull, Bull. Witching Chant, blinkers on, Witching Chant has blinkers on . . ."

That intensive period of associating names and colors pays off in perfect "spot-calling." But when the race is over, Cappy has to switch his color-name associations. In the next race the same colors may be used on another horse. Cappy dismisses this as an "occupational hazard."

Three Mikes Pose Problem

Formerly turf editor of a New York daily and an inspector for the New York State Racing Commission, Cappy has recently added television and radio to his spot-calling. The three-way treatment poses special problems. While his memory exercise remains the same, his delivery is changed. In addition to a factual account for the track fans, he must ad-lib descriptions of the scene for radio and television audiences.

During a three-way broadcast, Cappy works with three microphones controlled by a switch. While he is ad-libbing for radio and television, he has the track's public address mike switched off. As soon as the race starts, he switches on the track mike, gives the same call for all. When the horses hit the home stretch, the track switch goes off, because spectators at the track can then follow their horses to the wire. But Cappy continues to call them for the radio and television audiences.

You might think that Cappy relies almost solely on his prodigious memory, but it is more than that.

"Memory counts only about 40 per cent," he says. "Perfect eyesight counts 60. If I couldn't see the colors and horses, I couldn't call them. THE END.

STOP—
loosening your skin!

MAKE THIS TEST! You will be shocked to find out how loose your skin really is!

DO THIS! Sit before your mirror. Do exactly as the girl is doing in the picture above. If folds of skin roll up under your eyes, you have loose skin! This loose skin may easily wrinkle too soon causing you to look much older than you really are!

Millions are actually loosening delicate skin tissues around their eyes in the very act of creaming their skins.

But this old way of skin care is rapidly being discarded. Well informed women are adopting skin care that ends destructive rubbing.

My Lady Esther 4 Purpose Face Cream is self-acting. No more need for rubbing at all. Think what this means!

When you use my cream that requires no rubbing, you are not loosening your skin—you are not deepening fine lines! In short, you stop helping your skin to grow loose and older looking. You help to preserve tone, elasticity and smoothness your skin naturally has.

Clearer Skin, Too, The First Day

What's more, I can promise you a clearer skin the first day you stop rubbing dirt-laden cream back into tiny skin crevices and into pore mouths.

Here's why. The cleansing ingredient in Lady Esther 4 Purpose Face Cream is self-acting—it has the power to surround each tiny particle of stale make-up and grime and separate it from the skin. It literally lifts dirt away from your skin! No destructive rubbing is necessary—just smooth it on and tissue it off!

What to Expect

Your first trial will convince you that my 4 Purpose Face Cream is self-acting (no more rubbing) and that it makes your skin far cleaner than before, without rubbing.

So get any size jar—even the smallest size is ample to prove that you don't have to rub your skin any more to clean it.

And remember, this one cream does 4 things for your skin. Besides self-acting cleansing—it smooths! —it aids the natural pore-refining process!—and it makes a perfect powder base!

". . . Million, Million, Million."

JINGLE: The show business bible, "Variety," reports that some of the boys with the Economic Cooperation Administration in Paris have whipped up a jingle similar to the one you hear advertising a soft drink. They think it'll attract more interest. It goes: "Marshall Plan hits the spot: Five Million Dollars, that's a lot. Twice as much as the Russians, too; Marshall Plan is the Plan for you! Million, million, million . . ."

BARGAIN CORNER: The War Assets Administration is anxious to sell 22 forts along the Eastern Seaboard. If you're interested in storing butter or meat, used cars or unwanted relatives, you'll find these forts just the thing you've been looking for . . .

TYPOGRAPHIC HUMOR: In an ad to fill a vacancy in the Marquette, Mich. Fire Department, a local newspaper made the offer more attractive via a typographic slip offering applicants a " . . . monthly cost of loving bonus, $32.50" . . .

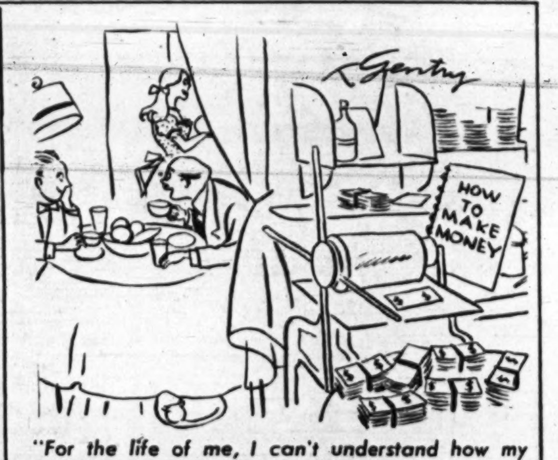
"You should see the other guy—there isn't a mark on him."



"For the life of me, I can't understand how my wife feeds us so well with prices as they are . . ."

At 17, pretty Pat Barnard of Great Neck, L. I., is a successful New York fashion model.

Teen-Ager Models Fashions

IN THE HOT GLARE of the studio floodlights, a willowy model in a chic dress sighed wearily and resumed a sophisticated pose. The photographer, the advertising agency art director and the fashion stylist moodily studied the effect. They finally decided that the model, although an experienced professional, was not "right" for the dress.

At that point, 17-year-old Pat Barnard walked into the studio on her first modeling assignment. About 15 minutes later, the other model had been paid off and dismissed. In her place stood Pat. For her first day's work—an hour of posing—she received $15. Today, as one of the newest of New York's 1,000 professional models, Pat averages about $75 a day.

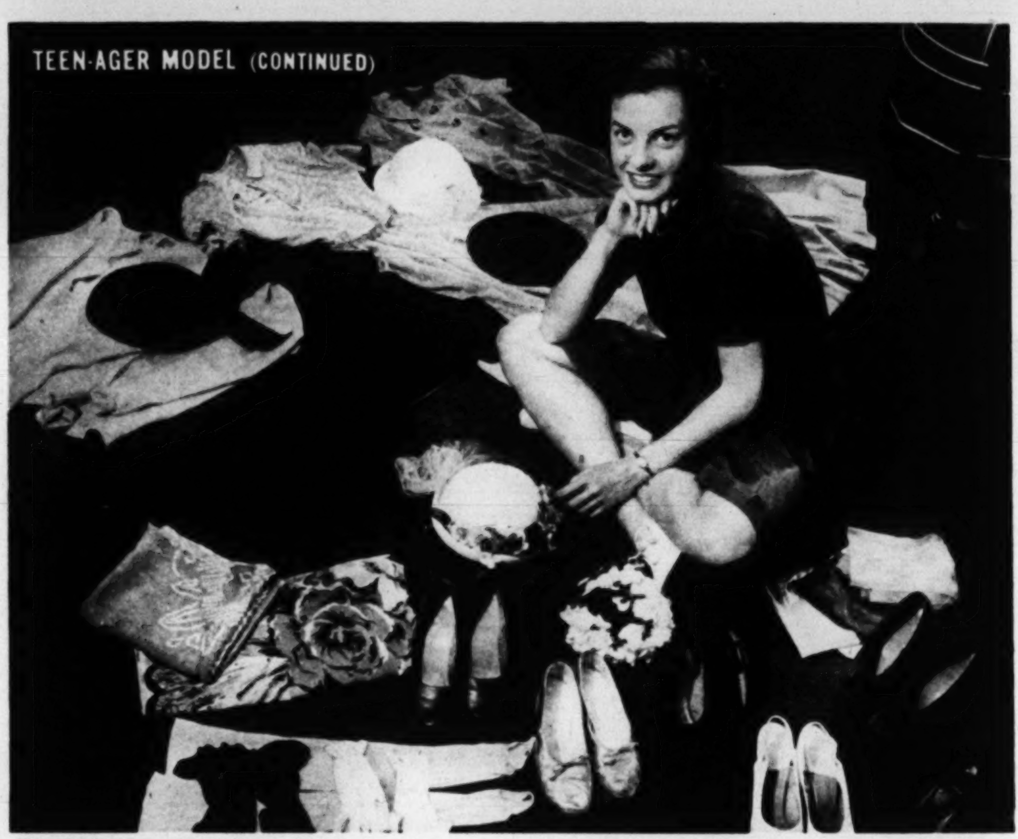
The Home of the Movies

Hollywood is a magic name, as well known to people of London as to movie-goers of Chicago. But Hollywood is more than a city of glitter. The home of the movies is a city of hard-working craftsmen, of happy families and comfortable homes. For the down-to-earth story of the movie capital, see PARADE, next week.

Next Week, HOLLYWOOD Story



Wardrobe, acquired during little more than eight months of modeling, has cost Pat $1,000, includes 15 pairs of shoes, four evening gowns, five suits, ten dresses, two fur jackets, three coats.

Stylists prefer "well-scrubbed look"

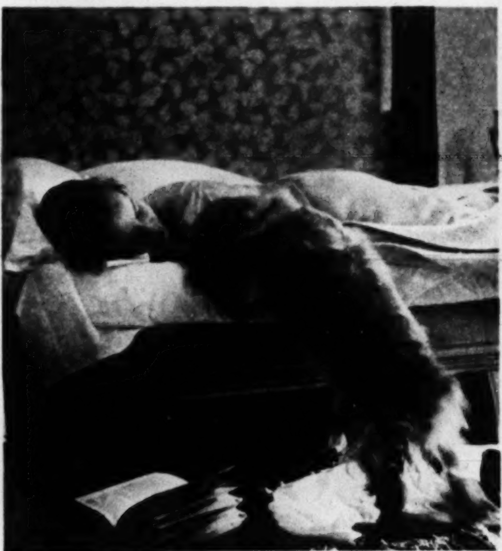
VISIONS OF MAKING a living by modeling beautiful clothes at $15, $35 or even $50 an hour bring some 4,000 girls knocking at the doors of model agencies every year. Pat Barnard is among the ten per cent whose personality and appearance meet professional standards. Although she has been modeling little more than eight months and has made unusually rapid progress, her success is no Cinderella miracle. Pat has what experts in New York's $15 million-a-year model-agency business call the "three B's"—Brains, Beauty and Breeding. Moreover, she is the type now currently in favor, the typical American teen-ager with that "well-scrubbed look." Pat is five feet, six inches tall (five-eight in heels), weighs 106 pounds, and has golden brown hair and brown eyes, set off by a glowing complexion.

Pat's working-day schedule would be rugged going even for an athlete. She leaves her home in suburban Great Neck, L. I., in time to be at the model agency by 9 a.m. There, she checks her assignments. Her schedule may call for three fashion posings. That means about seven hours in stuffy studios, under the physical strain of holding poses without moving.

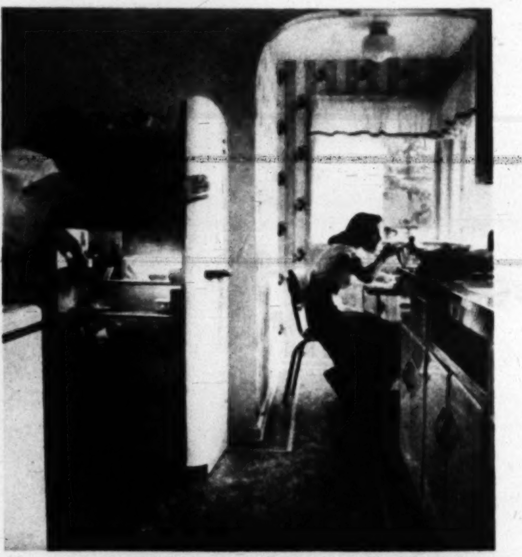
Must Always Appear Fresh

Between assignments, she rushes endless miles between one studio or agency to another to keep appointments. Fair weather or foul, photographers expect a model to appear before their cameras as fresh and uncluttered as though she just stepped out of a beauty parlor booth. Pat always does.

"I'm crazy about modeling," she says. "It's hard work, but I'll keep on as long as they'll photograph me. Of course, I might fall in love and get married, but up to now I've been too busy to think of anything but work."



"Get up!" Janie, Pat's cocker spaniel, makes her rounds every morning, wakes up family individually.



Hurry-up breakfast starts Pat's day. She shuns between-meal snacks, is allergic to milk, likes steak.

DANDRUFF

Be Sure Your Hair Tonic Actually

KILLS DANDRUFF GERMS*

Many hair tonics merely remove loose dandruff—don't kill the germ *pityrosporum ovale many authorities point out as a cause of infectious dandruff! So change to Lucky Tiger—get at that cause. Besides killing this germ on contact, Lucky Tiger removes dandruff scales, relieves itching scalp, gives hair added lustre, makes it easier to comb. Also keeps hair in place far longer—without that greasy look. Get Lucky Tiger Regular—or Lucky Tiger with Oil, if hair is extra dry.

Joseph Cotten and Jennifer Jones are ill-fated lovers in Selznick's "Portrait of Jennie."

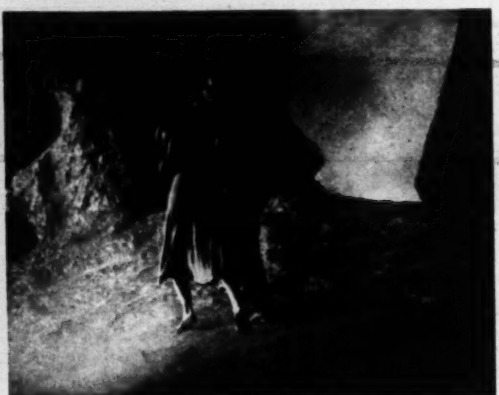
HURRICANE RESCUE

HOLLYWOOD customarily makes life pleasant for those in love, but in the new David O. Selznick release, "Portrait of Jennie," romance is mixed with a hurricane. Joseph Cotten and Jennifer Jones experience their first kiss in the midst of a raging New England storm. Filming of this scene required the couple to perform under a deluge of water, whipped into their faces by studio wind machines.

Cotten's boat has been wrecked and he is cast up, half-drowned, on a rocky ledge near a lighthouse.

As he struggles to reach safety, huge waves drive Cotten to his knees. He blacks out temporarily.

Cotten finds Jennifer on a wave-swept ledge; fury of the storm cuts short their long-awaited embrace.



Buffeted by wind and rain, they search for lighthouse. Pair was drenched during filming. THE END.

RHEUMATISM YIELDS TO DRUGLESS METHOD OF TREATMENT

Excelsior Springs, Mo. —So successful has a comparatively new, drugless method proven for treating rheumatism and arthritis that an amazing new book will be sent free to any reader of this magazine who will write for it.

This book entitled, "Rheumatism," fully explains why drugs and medicines give only temporary relief and fail to remove the causes of the trouble.

The Ball Clinic, Excelsior Springs, Mo., has perfected a system of drugless treatment for rheumatism and arthritis combined with the world famous mineral waters and baths. This new system of treatment is fully described in the book and tells how it may be possible for you to find freedom from rheumatism.

You incur no obligation in sending for this instructive book. It may be the means of saving you years of untold misery. For writing promptly, the company will send a free copy of the book entitled "Rheumatism — Good Health, Life's Greatest Blessing." Address your letter to The Ball Clinic, Dept. 519, Excelsior Springs, Mo., but be sure to write today.

Why Millions Like CHEWING-GUM LAXATIVE

- At last a laxative so pleasant, so different, that it has won millions who now refuse to take harsh, stomach-punishing laxatives!

FEEN-A-MINT tastes like delicious, mint-flavored chewing gum. And you chew it like gum! And scientists say chewing makes FEEN-A-MINT's fine medicine more effective—"readies" it so it flows gently and gradually into the system.

And here's the amazing thing! The action of FEEN-A-MINT's special medicine DETOURS the stomach. It doesn't act while in the stomach, but only when farther along in the lower digestive tract . . . where it should! Thus, FEEN-A-MINT won't upset the stomach!

Try FEEN-A-MINT—at any drug counter—for 25¢, 50¢ or only 10¢

The HOME BUILDER'S HANDBOOK

PLANNING—BUILDING—REMODELING

Jam-packed with practical up-to-the-minute information, this great new book tells you exactly how to get that "home of your dreams." Pictures and plans enable you to select the home best suited to you and your family. Diagrams, charts, and fast-reading articles tell you how to select your property, how to get financial aid, how to choose the right site, etc. There are new ideas for better bathrooms, more convenient kitchens—in fact, for making every room in the house more cheerful, more comfortable. And there are entire chapters on prefabricated houses, on heating, lighting, insulating, plumbing, air conditioning, etc., etc.

And here, for the first time, are practical remodeling jobs you can do yourself; hundreds of them, large and small . . . wouldn't it be fun to have a game room in that unused space in attic or cellar? Don't you need another bathroom and more storage space? Wouldn't a picture window make your living-room more cheerful? Well, in this great handbook, every housing need from the installation of a new kitchen cabinet to the building of an entire home is clearly explained by vivid illustrations and easy-to-follow diagrams.

BEAT TODAY'S HIGH HOUSING COSTS

Mr. Kenneth Duncan, author of "The Home Builder's Handbook," is an architect who has had wide experience in home planning, building and remodeling. In this great book he explains how houses can be built for a sum you can afford to pay. He explains in detail building construction and all other information you need to fix up your present home or build a new one. He gives you hundreds of valuable hints and tricks of the trade that can help you beat today's high housing costs.

Save Hundreds of Dollars

Not only does this amazing book show you how to make all needed improvements and additions to your present home easily and cheaply, but it gives you a practical working knowledge of building and construction that can actually save you hundreds of dollars when planning a new home.

The hundreds of remarkable pictures in "The Home Builder's Handbook" make it easy for you to apply the professional methods of architects, builders and contractors. Remodeling projects are made crystal-clear by photos and sketches so that you can actually see the finished appearance of every job before you undertake it. Illustrations and diagrams of actual construction methods show in every detail just how the work is done. Every page of this great handbook is designed to save you time, money, and disappointments; to help you make careful, practical plans; and to show you how—by doing some or most of the work yourself—you can have a more attractive, more comfortable home—a home that your family will be proud of for years to come.

Look at These Modern Developments in Home Planning and Building . . . Here are Just a Few of the Latest Features and Practical Remodeling Jobs Fully Described in This Great Handbook

Games and hobby rooms from unused space in basement or attic • Built-in radio, phonograph and record cabinets • How to group rooms for more comfortable living • Picture windows and how to install them • New ideas for nurseries and children's rooms • Step-saving kitchens and work-saving laundries • Built-in storage cabinets that put your walls to work • Sunny, cheerful dinettes, dining nooks and dining alcoves • How to transform dingy closet space into gleaming powder rooms, bathrooms, shower stalls • Built-in furniture—desks, dressers, etc., to save space and simplify housework • Attractive bedrooms and sleeping porches • Outdoor living—practical pointers on excavating, grading, landscaping, terracing, etc. • How to build chimneys and fireplaces • Radiant heating, and how to revamp heating systems for greater efficiency • Proper lighting—for every room in the house • Modern plumbing • The various types of pre-fabricated houses—their advantages and disadvantages • How to waterproof basements and foundation walls • How to insulate and how to ventilate • The legal and financial aspects of building—sample deeds, searches, permits, contracts; costs, mortgages, insurance, taxes, etc.

ALL SET FOR WINTER
I GUESS YOU FELLOWS THINK I ALWAYS PUT OFF DOING THINGS AND THEN FORGET ABOUT 'EM, BUT I BOUGHT MY ANTI-FREEZE WAY BACK LAST SUMMER AND I'M PUTTING IT IN RIGHT NOW BEFORE I GET INTO TROUBLE! SEE?
GEE, IS IT TIME FOR THAT AGAIN?
WHY DIDN'T YOU GET ENOUGH FOR ALL OF US?
I HAVEN'T GOT MY COAL YET!
I DON'T CARE WHAT THE ALMANAC SAYS, ARNOLD! YOU GET OUR SCREENS OUT AND OUR WINTER WINDOWS IN, AND QUICK!
GOSH, SAMPSON! DON'T YOU WISH YOUR POP WAS SMART LIKE MY POP IS?
OH, YEH! WELL, IT'S TOO BAD YOU DON'T LOOK LIKE YOUR MOTHER!
I HATE TO THINK ABOUT WINTER COMING!
SHUCKS, BINGO! YOU SOUND LIKE YOU'RE GETTING OLD!
M-10X
YEH! BUT WHAT WILL OUR HOT CAKES RUN LIKE?
GEE WHITH, MYRTLE! I'LL BET YOUR CAR RUNS LIKE HOT CAKES THIS WINTER!
WHILE YOU'RE TINKERING WITH THE CAR, FREDDIE, WHY DON'T YOU PUT IN THIS ANTI-FREEZE YOU BOUGHT LAST SUMMER?
WAKE UP, SUSIE! THAT'S WHAT I'VE JUST BEEN DOING!
WELL, IF THAT'S THE CAN YOU TOOK IT OUT OF, YOU USED THE MAPLE SYRUP YOUR MOTHER SENT IN FROM THE FARM!
DON'T LAUGH, ALICE, THIS MAY HAVE A SAD ENDING!
IF THIS WASN'T BE-KIND-TO-CATS WEEK, I'D RUN HYACINTH FROM HERE TO CHRISTMAS!
WE'LL GET HER NEXT WEEK!

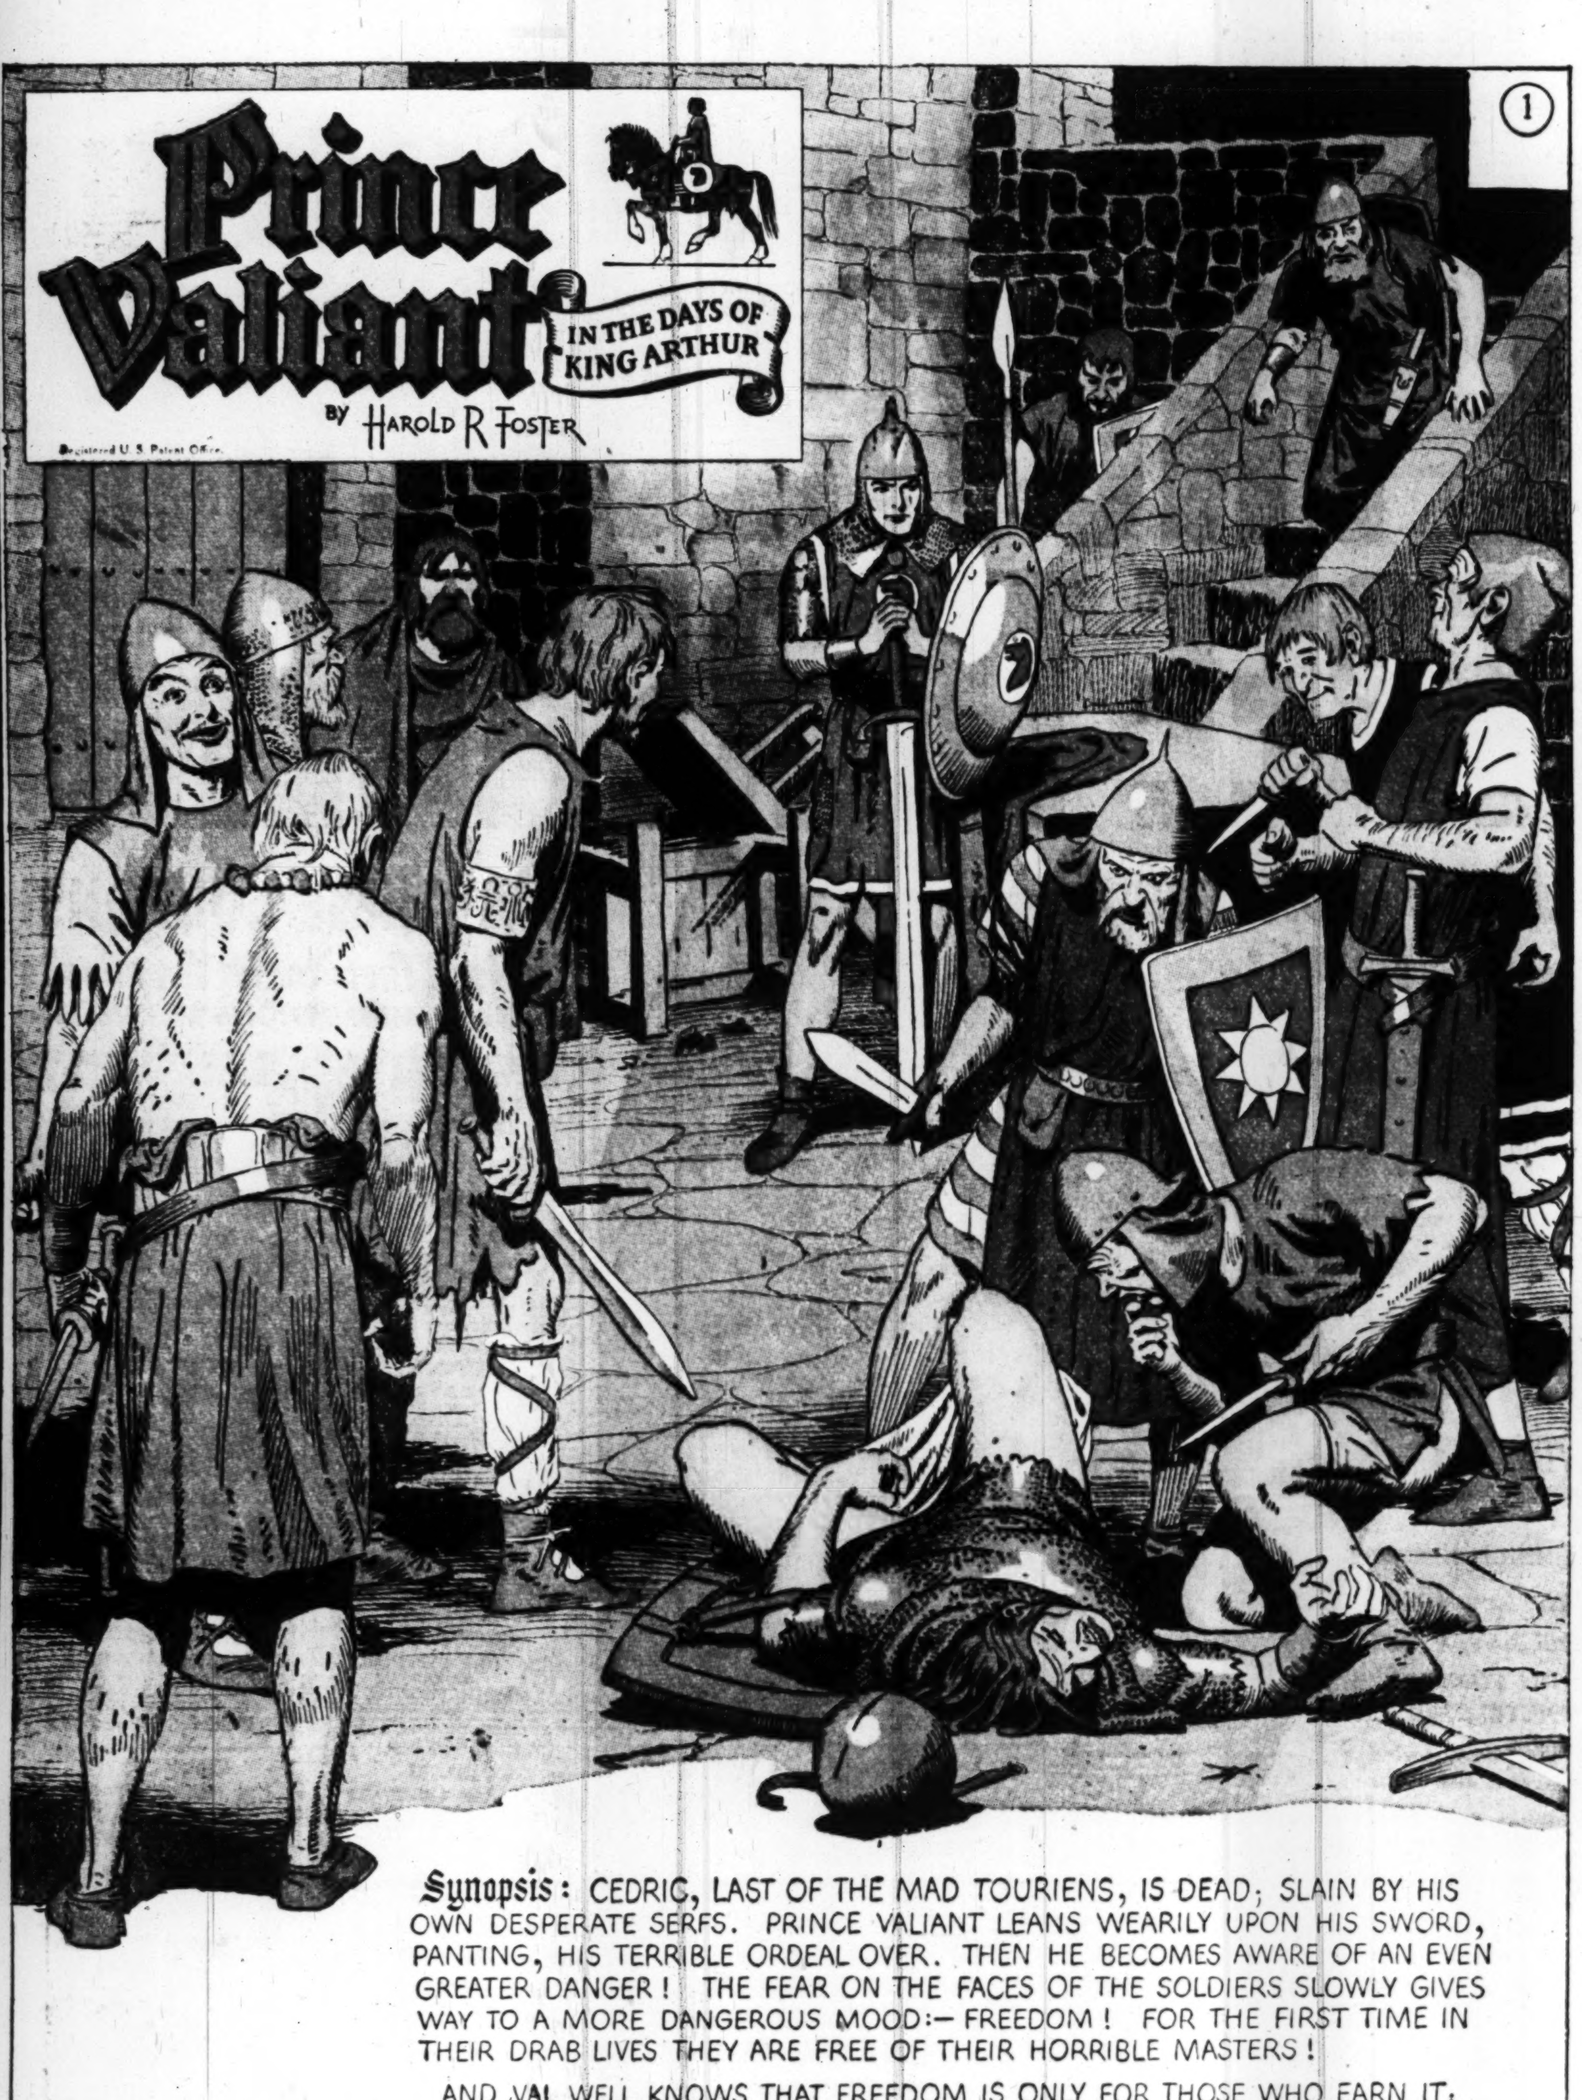
Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAROLD R FOSTER

Registered U. S. Patent Office.



Synopsis: CEDRIC, LAST OF THE MAD TOURIENS, IS DEAD; SLAIN BY HIS OWN DESPERATE SERFS. PRINCE VALIANT LEANS WEARILY UPON HIS SWORD, PANTING, HIS TERRIBLE ORDEAL OVER. THEN HE BECOMES AWARE OF AN EVEN GREATER DANGER! THE FEAR ON THE FACES OF THE SOLDIERS SLOWLY GIVES WAY TO A MORE DANGEROUS MOOD:— FREEDOM! FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THEIR DRAB LIVES THEY ARE FREE OF THEIR HORRIBLE MASTERS!

AND VAL WELL KNOWS THAT FREEDOM IS ONLY FOR THOSE WHO EARN IT; WHEN IT COMES SUDDENLY TO A SLAVE PEOPLE IT IS TOO INTOXICATING AND ENDS IN CHAOS!

"ATTENTION!" HE BARKS. "I HOLD THIS CASTLE IN KING ARTHUR'S NAME! YOU WILL TAKE ORDERS FROM ME UNTIL THE KING APPOINTS AN ADMINISTRATOR. RETURN TO YOUR DUTIES!"

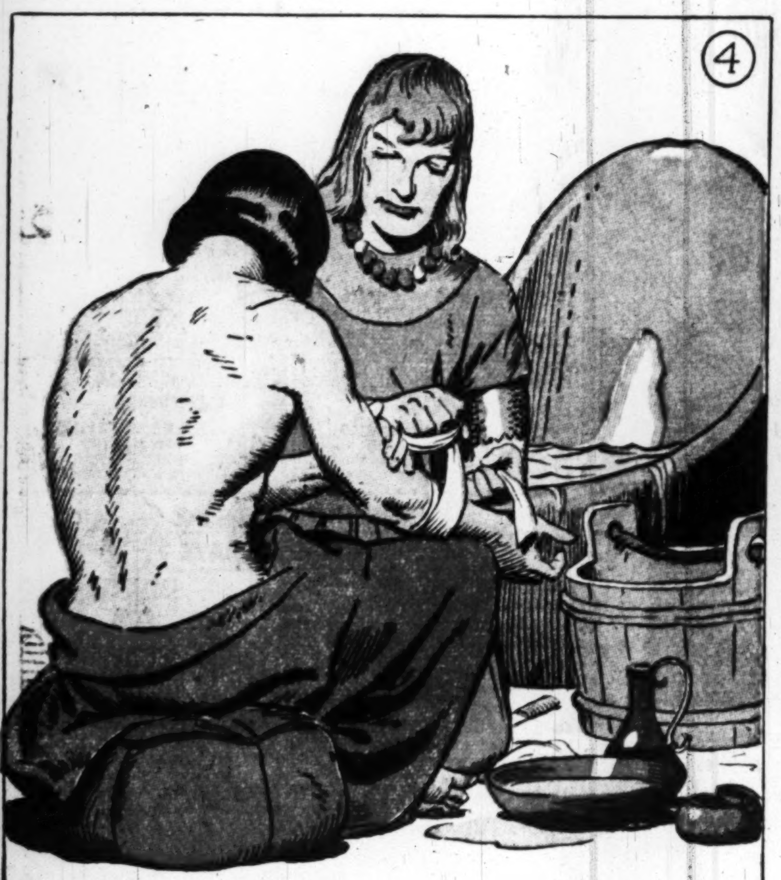
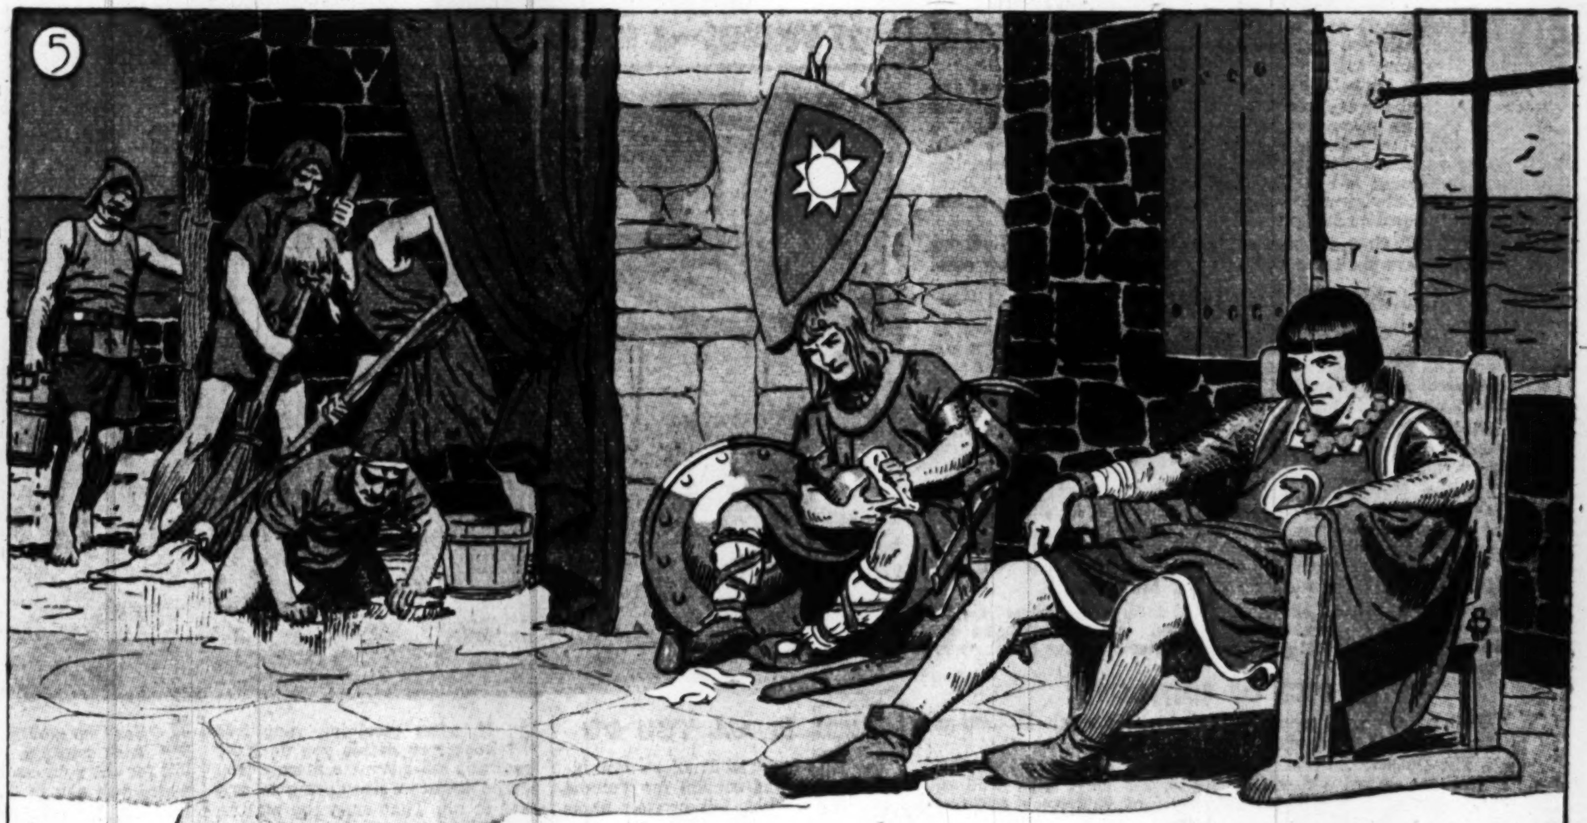
THE SOLDIERS HESITATE. IN THEIR EYES GLOWS THE LUST FOR AN ORGY OF DESTRUCTION. BEFORE THE COMMANDING FIGURE OF THIS RESOLUTE YOUNG KNIGHT THE OLD HABIT OF OBEDIENCE RETURNS. THEY OBEY.



OSK IS RELEASED AND COMES TO HELP VAL CARE FOR HIS WOUNDS.



ALTHOUGH HE HAS FULFILLED A QUEST IN THE SERVICE OF HIS KING, VAL FEELS NO SATISFACTION. DECEIT, BETRAYAL, SHREWDNESS AND FALSEHOOD HAVE BEEN THE WEAPONS HE HAS USED, AND IN THIS GRIMY CASTLE, AMONG THE BRUTALLY DOWNTRODDEN SERFS, HIS HEART IS SICK WITHIN HIM.

NEXT WEEK — The Dungeons.

512-PAGE ENCYCLOPEDIA VOLUME-FREE TO READERS

Then – Only If Desired – 26 More Volumes Sent To You – A Book a Week – In This Unique "Pay-As-You-Go" Credit Plan!

YES, we make you an OUTRIGHT GIFT of Volume 1 of one of the world's greatest and most famous encyclopedias. Send us only ten cents to cover the mailing cost. And the book is exactly as you see it here — 7 inches high by 5 inches deep by 1½ inches thick — beautifully bound, fully illustrated, containing 512 double-columned pages, hundreds upon hundreds of articles on important subjects — OVER A QUARTER OF A MILLION WORDS! That is the equivalent of more than THREE ORDINARY BOOKS. It is yours practically for the asking.

Why should we make so unprecedented an offer?

Because we want newspaper readers to SEE and READ the magnificent Funk & Wagnalls New Standard Encyclopedia. We want you to KNOW that everything you have heard about it is true — that it is the finest encyclopedia ever written or sold at any price for American home use.

We want you to COMPARE your free volume with those of sets selling at $100 and more. And finally we offer you an opportunity to receive the rest of the 27-volume set at price far lower than if the books were distributed through the usual methods.

FINEST FOR HOME USE

THE Funk & Wagnalls New Standard Encyclopedia is by all odds one of the greatest educational works of its size and scope ever done in America. It is a work of genius so vast that it staggers the imagination. It comprises man's knowledge from the very beginning down to the present day—condensed, simplified, made understandable, told in a language so simple and clear that even a schoolboy can use it with profit!

In the entire, huge 27-volume set are SEVEN MILLION WORDS—OVER THIRTEEN THOUSAND PAGES — OVER FIFTY-TWO THOUSAND DIFFERENT SUBJECTS—a work so tremendous that only an effort of the mind can encompass it—yet you can hold each of its volumes in one hand! You can read swiftly down its double-columned, illustrated pages, and find your answer in less time than it takes to tell about it.

GIANT WORK OF GENIUS

ONLY a genius of the first order could conceive so monumental a work, and then bring it from dream into reality. That man was the late Dr. Frank Vizetelly, Litt.D., LL.D., America's foremost lexicographer, managing editor of the top-ranking, unabridged Funk & Wagnalls New Standard Dictionary—the beloved "Viz" of radio fame—the man who did so much to better the quality of America's spoken and written speech.

Surrounded by a host of scholars, authorities in each field, Dr. Vizetelly brought this stupendous work into being. Here it is today, revised, enlarged, up-to-date in its newest edition, the finest of all encyclopedias for home use!

It is a work you will want to see, to read, to compare. You will want to be sure that it is the encyclopedia you have always wanted for yourself and your family. And today, through the pages of this newspaper you have that wonderful opportunity.

VOLUME 1 FREE—SO YOU CAN MAKE A DECISION

ALL you need do is send in the Reader's Certificate (and coupon for Volume 1) at t e right below, with 10c mailing cost. By return mail you receive—AS OUR GIFT—Volume 1 of the complete 27-volume set.

Read the book, see it, compare it with an equivalent volume of any other encyclopedia in the world. You will find that its 52,000 subjects are more than an encyclopedia for which you would have to pay a small fortune! You will find it more up-to-date, more complete than any other concise encyclopedia. You will find it more readable, handier, and easier to use. You will find it fascinating—the ideal guide to the knowledge of the world—a source of mental growth and inspiration unequalled in the world of books.

Then, and only then, if you want to own the rest of the 27-volume set, you may have the other volumes at almost incredibly low cost!

UNIQUE BOOK A WEEK PLAN

YOUR sending for the free Volume 1 does not obligate you to buy anything. As a matter of fact, you will get an extra gift with the volume—a valuable pamphlet entitled "Which Encyclopedia Shall I Buy?"—written by an expert in the field, and an interesting analysis of what to look for in an encyclopedia.

If, after examining the free volume, you decide you do not want the other books, all you need do is drop us a line saying so, and that is all.

If, however, you decide you do want the other volumes, you can receive them, as they come off press, at the rate of a volume a week. In that case you merely use the coupons printed at the right, which entitle you to the books. Best of all, by that method you receive the other volumes at an almost unbelievably low price, and you PAY AS YOU GO—remitting for each volume after you get it.

Thus, too, you receive the most up-to-date of encyclopedias, for each volume is finally revised as it goes to press. Books you will receive this winter and spring will contain events that have not yet occurred!

CHOICE OF EDITIONS

YOU have one more privilege—a choice between the DeLuxe and the Library Edition of the encyclopedia.

The DeLuxe Edition is bound in dark blue, leather-grained cloth, stamped in red and gilt, as illustrated here, with head and tailbands, and harmoniously colored page-tops. Endpapers and frontispieces are color reproductions of woodcuts by Hans Alexander Mueller, renowned artist in that medium, the frontispieces being a set of woodcut portraits of American presidents.

The Library Edition has all the above features, plus a more expensive binding. The covers of this superfine edition are in tan linen-weave cloth, with red and black title panels, decorated with genuine 22-carat gold leaf—making in all an extremely handsome and dignified set of books.

You have your choice of these editions in sending for your free Volume 1. However, remember that if you later decide you want to complete your set, the other volumes will cost slightly more in the Library Edition.

27 VOLUMES — A SUPERB REFERENCE LIBRARY!

HERE IS ALL YOU DO

1. Clip out The Reader's Certificate (and coupon for Volume 1) at the right. Fill in your name and address, and mail it to us with 10c coin or stamps to cover mailing cost on your free book. Do not forget to indicate your choice of editions on the Certificate.

2. By return mail you will receive your free Volume 1. It can be sent to you only by mail from the publisher's warehouse. At the same time the free book is sent to you, the publishers will reserve the balance of a set in your name.

3. If, after receiving your free book, you decide you do NOT want any other volume, merely drop the publishers a line saying so, and that is all. That ends the matter. The publishers cancel your reservation, and of course you keep the FREE book.

4. If, however, after examining your gift volume, you decide you want the rest of the set, do nothing at all. Volumes 2 and 3 will automatically go forward to you in two weeks, and every two weeks thereafter you will receive two more volumes until your set is complete.

5. Send no money in advance. In each package you will find a bill for the volumes shipped to you, which you pay in 5 days after delivery. With your remittance you enclose the appropriate Encyclopedia Coupon, printed at the right, and you pay only the amazingly low price of $1.49 per volume, plus mailing charge, for Deluxe Edition (or 40c extra per volume for Library Edition). Send in your Reader's Certificate for your free book TODAY. We have allotted a limited quantity for newspaper readers, and will distribute these as Certificates are received. Please act at once!
